Dayton City Council adds planning position

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Mayor Zac Weatherford called the Dayton City Council regular meeting to order at 6 p.m. on March 14, 2023. Council members Teeny McMunn, James Su'euga, Laura Aukerman, Kyle Anderson, Dain Nysoe, Shannon McMillen, and Tiger Dieu were present.

Sheriff Joe Helm attended via Zoom and reported the number of traffic and other incidents from last month. He said two new deputies are doing well at the academy and are set to graduate on April 24, 2023, and will return to Columbia County to complete a fourteen-week Field Training Officer (FTO) program.

Helm said the department would offer a citizen's academy beginning on April 7, 2023; those interested should apply on the Columbia County Sheriff's Office Facebook page. Informational pamphlets are available at City Hall.

Helm said his office, in conjunction with the Coalition of Youth and Families, will conduct a "Drug Take Back Day" on April 22, 2023, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Bank of Idaho parking lot. Unwanted drugs, including prescription and over-the-counter, can be put in a drop box for incineration. The first one hundred people to arrive will also receive a free lockbox.

Columbia County Commissioner Ryan Rundell, speaking for the county, announced new rates for the transfer station: $106.17 per ton with a minimum (under 300 lbs) charge of

The board considered two actions to address the open Director of Planning position and renewal of the contract with AHBL for on-call land use and planning services.

Ordinance No. 2001 would create a new classification and amend the salary schedule to add a part-time Planning Department Manager position. The city has identified an available qualified candidate. The council authorized the ordinance 6-1, with Su'euga dissenting.

The city has not filled the Director of Planning and Community Development position and contracted AHBL to provide planning and development services as an outside contractor. The council considered renewing the contract with AHBL. However, some council members expressed concern over how long the firm has taken to resolve some cases. Resolution 1508 to continue the outside planning services with AHBL was not approved.

Nysoe opened a discussion on the interlocal agreement between the city and county for services from the Columbia County Sheriff's Department, Dispatch, and Municipal Court. Nysoe said the city's cost is based on the Consumer Price Index (CPI), which increased by about eight percent this year. That increase could add approximately $5,000 monthly, costing the city $700,000 annually for the services. In Nysoe's view, the City does not have the revenue to keep meeting the contract's obligations.

Nysoe suggested the public safety committee review the contract and propose an alternative. The council discussed abandoning the agreement entirely. A plan of action to address the issue was not decided on at the meeting.

Mayor Weatherford read a draft letter of support from the City of Dayton concerning the Columbia County Comprehensive Flood Hazard Management Plan update, which would replace an existing plan adopted in 2002. Weatherford said he would sign the letter and hoped the

CERB invests $2.1 million in four counties

Columbia and Walla Walla Counties will receive funds for port projects.

THE TIMES

OLYMPIA, WA – The Washington State Community Economic Revitalization Board (CERB) approved $2 million in low-interest loans and $150,000 in grants for economic development and public infrastructure improvements to spur business growth and job growth creation in communities throughout the state.

Columbia County – Will recieve a $50,000 grant to the Port of Columbia for the "BMS Craft Malt & Grain Cluster Study." This planning study will determine the feasibility, optimal configuration, and next steps for developing the infrastructure to enhance the artisan grain business cluster at Blue Mountain Station, the port's 21-acre food processing park . CERB funds are matched by $12,500 in local resources.

Walla Walla County – $2 million loan to the Port of Walla Walla for the "Life Flight Networks Hangar and Crew Base." This project is for the design and construction of a hangar for Life Flight Networks and crew quarters. It will be a 24-hour base of operations to provide life-saving transport for seriously ill or injured patients. The Committed Private Partner is Life Flight Network LLC, which will invest $5.5 million in the project, which is estimated to create and retain 29 jobs. CERB funds are matched by $500,000 in local resources.

Douglas County – $50,000 grant to the City of Rock Island for the "Marketing and Stakeholder Outreach Strategic Plan" and the development of a marketing and outreach strategic plan to attract targeted businesses to the city's Industrial Development District. CERB funds are matched by $12,500 in local resources.

Kitsap County – $50,000 grant to the Port of Brownsville for the "Port Property Development Feasibility Study" and the development of a strategic plan to determine the infrastructure necessary to develop port properties for economic development of the state of the ment. CERB funds are matched by $12,500 in local resources. "CERB projects represent an important partnership between the state and local communities resulting in enhanced economic vitality. These projects will ultimately lead to job growth across the State through infrastructure development and planning," said CERB Chair Michael Echanove. These four projects exhibit the range and scope of projects funded by CERB.

The release of CERB funds to these projects is contingent upon each applicant completing specific pre-contract requirements, such as finalizing other funding sources and obtaining necessary permits.

Since 1982, CERB has committed more than $243.8 million to local jurisdictions across the state, an investment generating more than 39,000 jobs, and private capital investment of $6.3 billion – a $26-to-$1 return on CERB investments. Read the 2022 CERB Legislative Report at https://tinyurl.com/ynan8rfz to learn more.

As Washington's strategic economic development resource, CERB is focused on creating private-sector jobs in partnership with local governments by financing infrastructure improvements. These improvements encourage new business development and expansion. In addition to funding construction projects, CERB provides limited funding for studies that evaluate high-priority economic development projects.

PORT OF COLUMBIA WANTS PUBLIC INVOLVEMENT UPDATING COMP PLAN

DAYTON—The Port of Columbia is working to update its Comprehensive Scheme of Harbor Improvements as required by Washington State law. Also known as a comprehensive or comp plan, it outlines for the public the assets the port manages and states in advance the port's goals and strategies for stewardship of those assets in support of the economic vitality of Columbia County.

The port manages vital economic and community assets, including the Rock Hill Industrial Park, Blue Mountain Station, the Columbia Walla Walla Railroad, and Lyons Ferry Marina.

Any improvements or significant expenditures affecting port assets must be in accordance with the adopted comprehensive plan. Changes to priorities can only be made through a port-adopted update to the Comprehensive Scheme of Harbor Improve-

"The comprehensive plan is basically a roadmap of the land and facilities the port owns and takes care of on behalf of the taxpayers of Columbia County," said Port Commission President Seth Bryan. "Our community has a role in helping guide how the port invests in these public assets, and we highly encourage everyone's participation in this process. Your input can help ensure our work aligns with community priorities and continues to support the economy and quality of life for our entire county."

Since January, the port commissioners have convened monthly workshops immediately following their regular meetings. These workshops are open to the public and will continue through August 2023.

Consultants from Maul, Foster, and Alongi were hired to assist the commissioners in assessing port assets and discuss priorities and potential next steps during the public workshops.

After assessing and defining the port's priorities and assets, the commissioners could begin updating the plan by October 2023.

Those interested in the process and providing public comment are encouraged to attend monthly Commission meetings. Public comment is accepted during the commissioner meetings but not during Public comments are accepted anytime at www. portofcolumbia.org/contact-us, directly via email to auditor@portofcolumbia.org, or via mail or in person at the Port's drop box at 1 Port Way, Dayton, WA 99328. Written public comments will be provided to the Commission in advance of meetings.

School Board heard about Dayton FFA activities

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON - The Dayton School Board held its regular meeting in the high school library on March 15, 2023. School board members Chair Jefferey McCowen, Grant Griffen, Aneesha Dieu, and Zac Fabian were present. Korinda Wallace was absent. Superintendent Rich Stewart was also present.

The board approved the consent agenda, which in addition to administrative items, included a Gear Up field trip to visit college campuses, donations, the resignation of an elementary para-professional, and the resignation and hiring of coaches.

Approval of June 3, 2023, as the high school graduation date, was also included in the consent agen-

The Dayton FFA made a presentation to the board on its current activities. The group has been focused on career and leadership development programs, having already completed events on job interviewing, soils, tractor driving, and potato and apple judging.

The FFA arranged a trip to Olympia for some members to gain first-hand exposure to the legislative process.

The group scheduled its annual plant sale at the high school greenhouse for May 25-27 to raise money to support FFA activities. Stewart said he was confident the district would receive a $50,000 grant to refurbish the high school greenhouse.

The ASB secretary, Parker Brown, gave that organization's report describing plans for Spring Spirit Week, ASB officer elections, and an update to the

Sam Korslund, the District Athletic Director, reported on the following participation in spring

HS Softball	23	MS Softball	17
HS Track	19	MS Track	7
HS Golf	5

He said many students participated enthusiastically in the meeting with the uniform supplier and enjoyed helping select the designs for the Dayton teams.

The AD Director said 27 boys signed up for football and 18 girls for volleyball as opposed to only five boys and no girls from Dayton on last season's DW Combine teams. He said, "the future is definitely looking bright."

Elementary School Principal Amy Cox said this year's Family Night was a big success. Unfortunately, the students did not meet their Read Across America goal, which would have triggered a series of unfortunate events for the principal, including being wrapped by a snake, eating insects, and so on.

Stewart mentioned the possibility of a mini-skill center process by establishing a cooperative between Dayton and other school districts, such as Waitsburg and Pomeroy, to "take advantage of each other's strengths, so our kids can take advantage of those strengths." He said, "We need to expand our programs."

The board voted to move the regular meeting to April 5, 2023, in the school library and add a study session on April 19 in the elementary school library. The board does not typically meet during spring break; the change accommodates the later work session on the 19th. Stewart said he should be able to provide the board with the information necessary to consider program and staffing changes based on next year's budget.

The board approved the purchase of a new 78-passenger bus for delivery before the start of the next school year.

The meeting adjourned at about 7:34 p.m.

council members would sign. The letter implies no contract nor obligation by the city to expend any funds. He said the letter would aid the county in obtaining funding to develop the new plan.

The Dayton Third Street Project is scheduled to begin this summer. The city will advertise for bids this week; bidding will open on April 6, 2023.

Weatherford scheduled a workshop for Monday, at 1:00 p.m. on March 20, 2023, to discuss the next steps forward for the wastewater treatment plant. He said he had not yet received the signed documents for the land sale.

Nysoe said he had been approached by several citizens concerned about derelict buildings in the city, including those destroyed or mostly destroyed by fire. He said it was a safety issue and the city needs to be more proactive in enforcing codes. He mentioned the former McQuary's Grocery building, saying the roof was detached and about to fly off.

Misty Yost, Deputy City Clerk wanted to remind the community that Public Works is starting to dig out and read water meters, so they may expect to see them working in their yards. Also, the next water bill will show a cumulative total on the usage bar graph for all the water used while meters were not being read. At the time of the meeting, twelve remote-read meters had been installed, starting with the far N.E. end of Dayton Ave.

During the final public comment period, Rundell warned the board about the negative effects on the city should the interlocal agreement be abandoned. He said the level of service from the Sheriff's Office would be significantly reduced, and it would only be legally obliged to enforce felony violations. Also, the city would be responsible for jail and court services, public defender, prosecutor, and dispatch

The meeting adjourned at 8 p.m., with the next meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. on April 11, 2023.

DW COMBINE—Mike McGhan has been coaching high school golf since 2006. This year the team has one returning and four first-year golfers. He looks forward to seeing the kids improve each week as they work hard.

Junior Cayle Davis is the veteran on the team, and sophomore William Daves is a first-year player. Though new to the team, freshman Carson Potter has some experience golfing with family and attended the summer program at the Touchet Valley Golf Course. Junior Opal Hair-Morin and freshman Sarah Daves have never touched a club. And are getting better at putting, chipping, and driving every day.

The Wolfpack golfers have back-to-back matches coming up. On Wednesday, March 22, they will play at Wine Valley Golf Club in Walla Walla. They will tee off on Thursday, March 23, at the Walla Walla Country Club.

WAITSBURG—Allison Bond is the founder and project leader for Rural Youth Enrichment Services' (RYES) Waitsburg Urban Forestry project. This mentoring project provided evergreen seedlings to Waitsburg Elementary School students on past Arbor Days.

Bond arranged for a row of trees to be planted in front of the elementary school to celebrate International Day of Forests this month. Volunteers included Andrew Knee, Doug Biolo, Kate Hockersmith, Eric Umphrey, and Bruce Donohue, who joined Bond in planting the young dogwood trees delivered from Wenzels Nursery.

The United Nations General Assembly proclaimed March 21 as the International Day of Forests in 2012 to raise awareness of the importance of all types of forests. The theme for 2023 is 'Forests and Health,' which fits in perfectly with the Waitsburg Urban Forest project's goal of teaching the importance and care of trees to the city's youth.

Whether the Weather...

By Vicki Sternfeld-Rossi | THE TIMES

Will the weather cooperate? That is the million-dollar question. If my trip to Los Angeles today is any indication, it's not great. I will leave Walla Walla in the rain, only to arrive in Los Angeles in more rain.

Typically, I leave Walla Walla in bad weather to enjoy the California sun; this time, it's the opposite. It will be raining when I leave Los Angeles on Wednesday morning to return home. If my weather app is uncharacteristically correct, Walla Walla should be dry if a bit cloudy.

Meanwhile, true to form, I will be traveling while injured.

On Saturday, while walking Mugsy, I stopped to chat with some friends. In the chaos of dogs and people excitedly greeting each other, my finger got slammed by the gate. My black and blue, swollen ring finger is still bendable, so I assume it is not broken.

Being so familiar with injuries, I was not deterred from playing tennis the following Sunday. We were able to take advantage of the early spring weather to play outside for a change. I even remembered to wear sunscreen.

However, the sunny weather and my impatient nature got the better of me last Friday. I ran into Cascade to buy some seeds, and there were racks of plant starts outside the store. With some seeds beginning to germinate and others already planted, I bought plenty of starts to speed the garden bounty along.

Now I have a good head start on onions, cabbage, and leeks. Considering we still have not taken our hoses out of winter storage, I will admit that today's rain was welcomed.

I'm still traveling on my snow tires. I remember the snowstorm in April last year, so I'm taking the tire change slowly this year. I'm not optimistic enough to change my tires quite yet.

I bought new patio furniture while laboring under what I call the "Field of Dreams" philosophy. If I have new furniture and invite people for an outdoor party, the good weather will come. It worked for Kevin Costner, so keep your fingers crossed.

Sometimes I get lucky. The unassembled furniture arrives today. A happy coincidence because I leave town today and won't have to listen to Daniel cursing about the misfitting pieces, wrong screws, bad nuts, etc., while he assembles the chairs and couches. I will be in Los Angeles, avoiding mudslides, which is much less stressful.

I arrive in Los Angeles late Monday, followed by a busy Tuesday schedule. I have scheduled time for, you guessed it, a fish dinner with friends. Seafood is always better on the coast, and with all the rain in L.A. recently, the coastline has probably moved closer to my friends' homes.

Whether the weather will cooperate with flights (fog, rain delays?) is always iffy. And as much as I prefer sitting on my deck watching the birds dive-bombing the feeders, the neighbor's cat chasing the birds, and Mugsy chasing the cat, I must leave this "survival of the fittest" game. It is time for dentist and doctor appointments, client visits, and a check-in with my office. The birds, cats, dog, and sun will have to wait until Wednesday.

Wine of the Week

Saint Cosme 2020/2021 Côtes du Rhône

By Paul Gregutt | THE TIMES

This popular southern French blend is a great introduction to a style that is the basis for many more expensive Walla Walla wines. The grapes used are some combination of Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre (often labeled as GSM) with perhaps a splash of Carignon or Cinsault. This is a tangy, salty and brambly red, with palate-coating berry flavors that seem perfect for that first grilled spring lamb. Both 2020 and 2021 are current releases both are good – this brand is consistent so either one works well here. Prices run around $18 give or take a couple of dollars.

Basket Weaving at The Refinery

WALLA WALLA—The Refinery in Walla Walla offers numerous classes for the general public and memberships to access studio tools and equipment. Class options range from working with clay, wall sculptures, macrame, block printmaking to basket weaving. With the studio's growing success, there is a waiting list to become a member.

The Refinery is a community pottery and art studio that provides diverse art experiences and nurtures artists at all skill levels, as stated on their website.

The Refinery enjoys guiding people in their creative journey, so my sisters and I signed up for a basket weaving workshop. The class size is limited, so we booked two months in advance. During the three-hour class with our excellent instructor Alex, we started with a few tools and two hoops, added round rattan, and weaved with flat rattan to create a basket that any mother would be proud to display.

Some of us weaved tighter than others, and some followed directions better than others, so all our baskets were just a little bit different. It was a fun class, and we learned techniques that we can now use to make our baskets at home. We will soon purchase the materials needed and design a basket. In the meantime, we will sign up for a class to give the pottery wheel a spin. I can see the clay flying as I speak!

Town Hall hosts annual St. Patrick's Day Dinner and Silent Auction

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG-The annual St. Patrick's Day fundraiser for the Waitsburg Town Hall was attended by around 150 guests on Saturday, March 18. Proceeds from the evening's ticket sales and auction will benefit the Waitsburg Town Hall Association's work maintaining and operating the historic community space.

Town Hall Board President and head chef Jim Romine served a delicious corned beef and cabbage dinner. Assisting Romine were board members Allen Huwe, Louie and Marie Gagnon, Ron Standring, and Ron Griffen. Board Treasurer Jim Davison organized the auction. Volunteers Andrew and Trisha Knee, Paul and Lynn Powers, and David and Joy Smith were of great help in the success of the fundraiser.

Though bidding had been higher in the past, the evening was a success. Local individuals and businesses donated various auction items, offering something for everyone. Items with the most competitive bidding action included a load of gravel, a wooden American flag plaque, a sport fishing package, and a Cutco outdoor knife.

Attendees won door prizes and gift certificates and were able to bid on ready-to-eat corned beef packages to take home.

Karen Huwe was the evening's entertaining MC and fast-moving auctioneer. Moving through the crowd, she kept the energy up and the bids coming. Eagle-eyed; she could turn an inadvertent nose rub into a successful bid for five pounds of mouth-watering corned beef.

The fundraiser could not have happened without the generosity of the following community members and businesses:

Claudia Abel, Auto Spa, Marge Benson, Jen Bishop and Burger Hut, The Blue, City Lumber & Coal Yard, Pat Davison, Dingle's of Dayton, Merry Lynn Donnelly, El Sombrero Mexican Restaurant, Elk Drug, Sherri Erikson, Marie Gagnon, Gaudy Gals, Hot Mama's Espresso, Ice-Berg Drive-in, Ironwood Solutions, Konen Rock, Laht Neppur, Ed Lambert, Les Schwab, Melissa Lambert/P.E.A.K, Liberty Theater, Amanda & Mason McCleary, McGregor Company, Jean Miller, Nancy's Dream Garden Center, New York Store, Amy Paolino, Jim & Virginia Romine, Simply Sawdust, Sportsman's Warehouse, Ron Standring, Tallman's Pharmacy, Ten Ton Coffee/Waitsburg Times, Tuxedo Bar & Grill, Van Ausdle Tire, Jim & Rebecca Wilson.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago

March 21, 2013

Long-time Waitsburg resident, activist and tireless historian Jeff Broom received the prestigious Commercial Club Community Service award on Tuesday, a recognition some said was long overdue. "Jeff has done more than his share to see that Waitsburg is on the map and deserves our thanks for all his volunteer work to support our wonderful community," club members Larry and Deanne Johnson wrote in their nomination letter. Broom, who received a standing ovation from Commercial Club members during the award ceremony, humbly accepted the award from former Times publisher Tom Baker, saying his community projects have slowed down recently but he will keep volunteering for the foreseeable future. He said his main focus remains on the Waitsburg Historical Society, which he chairs.

Peggy Baker was the number one seamstress among the Wait-Hi girls and Sandy Olsen was runner-up. These girls will compete with girls from the S. E. district for a place in the State Contest. The prizes at the state level are two Bernina Sewing Machines. Judging for the District Contest will be held April 5th at the home of Mrs. M. L. Weaver.

Irish Brown Soda Bread

There are few sensory experiences more inviting than the smell of fresh baked bread filling your home. Though I was once terribly intimidated by bread making, through careful and delicious experimentation it has become a satisfying addition to my kitchen repertoire. While pulling a fresh loaf from the oven is sure to impress special dinner guests, it can also be a wonderful way to elevate a middle-of-the-week meal for two. Recently, while researching recipes in preparation of our family Saint Patrick's Day feast, I was reminded of the approachable ease in making Irish soda breads. Because it is relatively quick to prepare, this richly flavored bread with a craggy texture and delightful crumb has become a fast favorite in our home.

Ingredients:

½ cup wheat germ

- 1 ¾ cups unbleached all-purpose flour, plus more for dusting
- 1 ¼ cup whole-wheat flour
- ½ cup plain cake flour
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 ½ teaspoons baking soda 1 ½ teaspoons cream of tartar
- 1 ½ teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened, plus 1 tablespoon butter melted
- 1 ½ buttermilk

Directions:

Heat a heavy skillet over medium heat then add the wheat germ. Toast wheat germ until golden brown and fragrant, stirring with a wooden spoon and shaking the pan often. Be careful not to burn. Remove from the pan and cool on a plate. Set aside.

Adjust the rack in the oven to the upper-middle position and preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

In a large mixing bowl, whisk together the toasted wheat germ with the three flours, brown sugar, baking soda, cream of tartar, and salt. Use your fingertips or a fork to work the softened butter into the dry ingredients until the texture resembles a coarse crumble.

Next, add the buttermilk, stirring with a fork until the dough just begins to come together. Turn the dough out onto a lightly floured work surface and gently knead to form a bumpy texture, about 5 to 10 turns. Do not over knead the dough; it will not be smooth. Over mixed or kneaded dough will result in a tough bread.

Pat the dough into a round, 6 inches in diameter and 2 inches high. Place bread on a baking sheet lined with parchment paper and score the loaf with a snarp knife, making a cross snape over the top. Place pan in hot oven and bake until bread is evenly golden brown and cooked through, about 45 to 55 minutes. The loaf is done when a skewer inserted into the center comes out clean, or when a thermometer inserted reaches 190 degrees. When done, remove the bread from the oven, brush the top with the melted butter, and cool to room temperature on a wire rack about 30 minutes.

Notes:

Pay close attention when measuring the dry ingredients for the dough as the ratios are very important to a perfect loaf. Because it is a key ingredient in the recipe, make sure that your baking soda is not too old or stale. The dough for this brown soda bread will be slightly sticky and wet compared to some white soda bread recipes being quite similar to scone dough.

This rustic soda bread, also called Wheaten Bread, is found across Ireland where it is served daily from breakfast to dinner. Serve it simply with a high quality salted butter and jam at breakfast or afternoon tea. It is also wonderful slathered in butter and served on the side of steaming bowls of soup or stew. Try it as part of an appetizer board with various cheeses and cured meats, or smoked salmon. For last week's festivities, I served this bread with scratch-made corned beef and a buttery batch of colcannon.

DR. ROGER HEVEL VISITS THE LIBRARY

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG—Dr. Roger Hevel, one of The Times' "Nine over 90" honorees, visited the Weller Public Library last week with his daughter Claudia.

The former physician and his late wife, Laura Jean, came to Waitsburg in the early fifties to open a practice after the previous doctor moved. The couple has supported the city by funding swim lessons, upgrading the library, and giving time and monetary donations.

Library assistant Sarah Roberts welcomed the Hevels, giving Roger a ride in the lift and a tour of the updated children's department.
