didates in a race for the District 2 seat on the Walla Walla County Board of Commissioners.

That seat, which covers the eastern half of the county, including Waitsburg and Prescott, will be vacated by Waitsburg resident Perry Dozier, who is not seeking re-election.

Also running for the position are Republicans Don Gibbard, Todd Kimball, and Jacob Radke, and Democrats Randal Son and Michael Bates.

Hansen says her experience actively managing her family's farm, operating a custom seeding, spraying, and harvesting business, and her recent graduation from the Washington Agriculture and Forestry Leadership Program provide a strong foundation to build on in serving as commissioner.

Hansen has a degree in Agri-Business/Agri-Chemical Management from Spokane Community College and was formerly employed with the McGregor Company for 10 years prior to working full-time operating the farm alongside her husband Norm.

for Dayton Days, volunteered for Waitsburg Days of Real Sport and Waitsburg Celebration Days, is a member of the Washington Wheat Growers Association and U.S. Dry Pea and Lentil Growers Association, and has been an active school volunteer.

"Being a strong voice for agriculture is vital because of the amount and diversity of agriculture within our county. Being raised in a small community, I understand the importance of the representation of small communities and the need to help promote economic growth within them," Hansen said.

Hansen said she is especially concerned about the decrease in funding for the county public health department and hopes to explore options for restoring those funds.

"I look forward to a positive campaign, meeting citizens, and tackling the challenges facing our county," Hansen said.

WAITSBURG – This year's annual American Legion Memorial Day Service at the Waitsburg Cemetery included the addition of four names to the memorial wall and a muster for two high school students, Caitlyn Jones and Trey Potts, who have enlisted with the military.

Legion Commander Ron Standring and Auxiliary President Rose Engelbrite opened the ceremony, which began with the flag-lowering by Wilson Hollow Wranglers 4-H group members Jared, Drew, and Amy Farley.

HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATORS ARE LOOKING INTO ASSISTED LIVING OPTION TO STEM LOSSES

By Michele Smith
THE TIMES

DAYTON—At their regular board meeting last week hospital administrators addressed what CEO Shane McGuire characterized as "a significant care hole" in the local community for patients who do not need long term nursing care, but require some assistance with activities of daily living.

McGuire also said there is a need to trim the financial loss at Booker Rest Home, which is about $500,000, annually.

"How can we absorb another half-a-million-dollar loss at Booker?" McGuire asked the commissioners.

McGuire said the state is performing greater scrutiny of nursing homes to see if patients really need to be there. Five of the patients currently in BRH don't meet state criteria for long term care, McGuire said.

Also, reimbursement rates are lower for patients who don't need long term care, but continue to stay in the facility, he added.

"We make patients better, and then they don't meet the criteria for long-term care. They do okay, and then crash back in," he said. "Where do we send them if they don't meet the criteria?"

McGuire said some financial relief can be accomplished by moving those nursing home residents into assisted living, which is more cost effective for all parties involved.

Chief Nursing Officer at DGH Stephanie Carpenter agreed.

One day in the Booker Rest Home costs $235 for a private room, and the total monthly cost is around $6,000, she said.

With that in mind Carpenter and McGuire are working on a plan to set aside six beds in the facility specifically for assisted living residents. McGuire said the Department of Health will license up to seven beds, with good reimbursement rates.

Carpenter said she needs to check into state regulations, to see if a mix

OBITUARY

RICHARD "RICH" WAYNE WEBBER

NOVEMBER 2, 1939- MAY 15, 2016

Richard ("Rich") Wayne Webber passed away May 15, 2016 at home. He was 77 years young.

Born to John Henry (Randolph) and Iris Webber in Walla Walla Washington, he was the youngest of ten children. During his youth, Rich attended Waitsburg schools and participated in school sports, including football and baseball. He graduated from Waitsburg High School in 1958.

He joined the U.S. Army Reserves in 1958 and remained on active duty until 1965.

Richard married his high school sweetheart, Vera Jones Webber, May 11, 1956 and they had just celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

In his younger years, he worked for area farmers before beginning his sawmill career. He was a certified grader of dimensional lumber for many years and retired from Louisiana Pacific.

Before his retirement he returned to school and earned an Associate Degree in Auto Mechanics, in 1998, from Walla Walla Community College. Richard was also a lifetime member of the Lyons Club, holding several offices, including president and zone chairman.

An avid outdoorsman, Richard loved all fishing and hunting, as well spending time at various lakes with his boat. He also enjoyed bowling and horse racing. He was known as a "Jack of all trades" by those who loved him and was an excellent provider.

Richard was very involved in his children's and grandchildren's lives, coaching their baseball and

A Celebration of Life will be held at a later date.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago Thursday, June 8, 2006

Charles Smith bought the Bullseye Tavern with plans for a "ruffsawn wood bar saloon." He didn't ever imagine that he'd have this much fun with its renovation, especially since the discovery of comic books, magazines and newspapers in the ceiling above the false ceiling of the former bar and grill.

The Walla Walla Elk's Lodge honored these Preston Hall Middle School Students of the Year at a banquet in May. The students are chosen by their teachers based on academics, citizenship and progress, and each received $50 to congratulate them: Zach Bartlow - 6th grade; Amanda Weis - 8th Grade; and Alyssa Hafen - 7th grade.

Jerry Baker, Jay Penner, Wally Bird, Kirk Fortner and Dean Nichols rode motorcycles in Indianapolis to take in the Indianapolis 500 recently. After the race, they went to St. Louis where they visited the arch and the Anheuser-Busch brewery. Coming home they stopped in Hesston, Kan., and visited the combine factory there.

Twenty-Five Years Ago June 6, 1991

Woody Epp was in the office this week to give us some of the details of the successful 6th version of the Touchet River AA Roundup. For a change (from last year) the weather cooperated. Nearly 500 folks camped out at the race track where the Lions served breakfast on Saturday and Sunday, and where the cooking and activities went on.

Dwight Penner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Penner of Waitsburg, was recently named winner of the 1991 DEKALB Agricultural Accomplishment Award. The award, sponsored nationwide by DEKALB Plant Genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leadership and supervised agricultural program. Presenting the award was Waitsburg vo-ag instructor, Scott Branson.

Fifty Years Ago June 9, 1966

Waitsburg beef shown by FFA and 4-H groups at the Toppenish show in April received top awards according to word received this week by FFA sponsor Jerry Gordon. The awards were made on carcass quality. Jim Bloor's Angus was the outstanding beef in the entire show, and received a "Steer of Merit" rating as did the FFA beef shown by Larry Conover. Two animals shown by Debbie Conover received steer of merit awards in the 4-H division. Honorable mention was made to stock shown by Steve Olsen, Jerry Wood, and Norman Hansen.

Newcomers to Waitsburg in the summer marvel at our "quiet" little town. Little do they know that Waitsburg operates with only two seasons a year - nine months of socializing and three months of harvest. Everyone breathes a sigh of relief with the close of school in June. That means three months to get the harvesting done and take a short vacation before the pot starts boiling in the fall.

Seventy-Five Years Ago June 13, 1941

Clarence A. Burch has resigned as janitor of Central School after 32 years of faithful service.

Kenneth Zuger has received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Washington State College.

Miss Rowena Rice of Walla Walla and John A. Danielson were wed in that city June 1.

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Mount and daughter Miss Dorothy, and Miss Winifred Neace are attending the Rose Show in Portland this week.

The McKay School went to the park at Walla Walla, and Last Springs went to Lewis & Clark State Park for their picnics last Thursday.

One Hundred Years Ago June 16, 1916

A surprise party was given Lloyd Van Vleet Monday evening at the home of his mother, Mrs. Riley Rayburn. The following were present; Maurine Keiser, Marguerine Smith, Lea Woods, Luelia Everhart, Joe Free, Harold Roberts, Jas Zumwalf, Lindsay Crowder, and Lloyd Van Vleet.

Born in this city Thursday evening June 8, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shuham, a daughter. The young lady has been named Annette.

Very much like summer this week. In fact, this year is proving very much like a new Ford story we heard the other day: Why is 1916 like a Ford? No spring.

One Hundred Twenty-Five Years Ago June 19, 1891

Married in this city, Tuesday June 16, by Rev. E. Walden, Perry Perkins and Miss Ivy Mitchell. May their journey through life be full of pleasure and prosperity.

The Shiloh camp meeting is now going on, despite this inclement weather. There is a very encouraging encampment exceeding that of any previous year, during the early part of the meeting. The camp meeting will continue over next Sabbath and will close on Monday.

A very pleasant musicale was given at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. A Stewart on Wednesday evening.

Don't forget to tell your neighbor that Waitsburg will have the grandest celebration this fourth ever seen in the Inland Empire.

THE (VERY) DARK SIDE OF LIVE STREAMING THAT NO ONE SEEMS ABLE TO STOP

By Caitlin Dewey, The Washington Post

In an interview last month about Facebook's recent push into live-streaming video, chief executive Mark Zuckerberg repeats the word "raw" as if it's some kind of sacred totem. Facebook Live is "raw and visceral," he says. It's this "new, raw" way to communicate.

Zuckerberg doesn't seem to realize that, when it comes to online video, "raw and visceral" - from viscera, which literally means guts (!) - can be a very bad thing.

In the weeks since, a woman live-streamed her suicide, a teenager broadcast her friend's rape, and a man narrated his standoff with a Florida SWAT team. So it's safe to say that Zuckerberg and other champions of the live-stream revolution are wising up to what "rawness" actually means.

Rawness is fast emerging, in fact, as the central paradox of live streaming: The very intimacy and immediacy that make the medium attractive are also the things that make it almost impossible to keep clean.

"These are real-time messages," said Emmett Shear, chief executive of Twitch, the online platform in which a man recently broadcast audio of himself beating his partner and a high-profile gaming tournament was drowned out by a racist comments stream. "This isn't like Facebook posts that get to sit there for a few hours. This is like, you gotta be on it 30 seconds after they posted it, because that's the entire window of impact."

These are still early days in the live-stream revolution, of course, and everybody emphasizes that they're still working out the exact mechanics. Shear's Twitch, a four-year-old site popular among gamers, only really hit the big leagues when it was bought in late 2014 by Amazon.com. Periscope, a mobile streaming app owned by Twitter, launched just over a year ago in March 2015. And Facebook Live, that network's big push into streaming video, is only just wrapping up its eighth week.

For even these newborn platforms, though, the need to nail down moderation is particularly urgent. On asynchronous networks, such as Reddit, Twitter and Facebook, content accumu-

Contributing and Non-Contributing Historic Buildings

By Ginny Butler, president, Dayton Historic Depot Society

Within each Historic District there are both contributing and non-contributing buildings. What makes a district is that there is a clear majority of buildings that contribute in a major way to the period of significance, which in the case of the Downtown Historic District is 1879 to 1949.

The purpose of the design reviews conducted by the Dayton Historic Commission is to ensure that this balance of contributing building verses non-contributing continues, by reviewing any proposed work on the exterior of the structures within the district.

This week we are showcasing both a non-contributing and a contributing building. Moose Creek just went before the commission for approval of an additional entry toward the back of their parking area which will lead to outdoor seating under an arbor type structure.

The approval given by the commission was based on whether the proposed changes would have a positive, negative or neutral impact on the District. The finding was that it would not have a negative impact.

The Guensey/Sturdevant Building was restored in 1993 and was listed on the National Register of Historic Places as an individual historic property before the district was formed in 1999. This insured that all of the exterior restoration work followed the Secretary of the Interior's Guidelines for Historic Preservation.

In 1993 it was mentioned in the Preservation Washington's winter issue as "the best preserved example of the Italianate commercial buildings that once lined Dayton's Main Street. Following an extensive rehabilitation, the building is once again a reflection of the city's prosperous 19th century heritage." Of course the following year would see the Columbia County Courthouse restoration completed.

The Wenaha Gallery is an original tenant providing quality framing and original art to shoppers in Dayton. We are all looking forward to the opening of Chase Hudson's coffee house in the retail space next door. It's looking fantastic.

lates an audience over time - people see a tweet or photo only as it gets passed around. On Twitch or Periscope, however, the vast majority of a stream's total audience will see footage, even graphic footage, the moment it goes out.

On top of that, while there's no research on streaming video specifically, there's plenty of research to suggest that graphic, widely circulated media can have a dangerous public-health effect: Videos about gun violence or self-harm tend to be "contagious."

In one disturbing incident on May 9, 30-year-old Adam Mayo barricaded himself in his house and sent a series of nine live broadcasts showing his armed standoff with Tampa police. Despite the fact that Mayo brandished a handgun, and repeatedly promised to start shooting - "Miss," he yells at one point, "you got a body bag ready?" - Facebook moderators didn't step in to shut down the stream.

A day after that, on May 10, a 19-year-old French woman used Periscope to broadcast the hours leading up to her suicide, as well as the event itself. In truncated archives of the video, still available on YouTube, the feed is eventually cut by a frowning man who looks like an emergency worker. In the comments that bubble across the screen, some viewers wonder why the stream was not ended sooner.

Periscope did not agree to elaborate on the details of that delay or the specifics of its moderation process generally - nor did any of the other platforms The Washington Post approached for comment for this article. But both Periscope and Facebook Live - and, to a slightly lesser extent, YouNow and Twitch - rely primarily on reports from users to alert moderators to violence.

That means that in order for a live stream to come down while it's still live, viewers have to be quick to flag it and moderators quick to review those flags. It would appear that, somewhere in that system, there's still quite a dangerous bit of lag.

This can be improved even if there's no perfect solution. (Shear likens the problem to a gardener battling weeds: You can spray plenty of Roundup, but you won't get all of them.) Platforms like YouNow, which is popular with teens, and thus has far more stringent rules, have developed some automated tools to bring problematic content to their attention faster. Meanwhile, Facebook has assigned a dedicated team to moderate nothing but abuse reports on Live, which can be tagged with descriptors like "violence" or "self-injury" to help moderators prioritize.

Virtually everyone is interested in regulating how live streams, once broadcast, are replayed and archived: The best defense against the next viral snuff film may be controls that prevent it from circulating again off-site.

All of this is enough to make one wonder whether the hype about live streaming is really worth it: It seems a lot of heartbreak, and a lot of risk, to see some shaky, confessional live vlogs that are euphemized as "rawness."

But it would be a mistake to condemn the genre, argues Benjamin Burroughs, a professor of emerging media at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. After all, there is a flip side to all of these horror stories: Millions of live streams that make us laugh, or condense distance, or provide new and novel access.

"That ability to broadcast events in real time allows for the viewing of images and events that would otherwise be filtered," Burroughs stressed. And for better or worse, once that image is out, there's really no undoing it.

Jack McCaw and Chuck Reeves sang "The Star Spangled Banner." American Legion Auxiliary Essay Winners, Loren Negron (grade 9), Jaidyn Brown (grade 12), and Caitlyn Jones (grade 12), read essays on this year's theme "How Do We Keep Lincoln's Promise to our Veterans and their Families?" Brown's essay, which touched on the importance of improved benefits for veterans, won at the state competition level. (See essay below.)

The families of Robert Hulce and Loren "Bud" Love were thanked for donations of memorial flags that will be flown at the wall.

The names of four World War II veterans were added to the wall this year including: Hugh F. Gruver, Jim E. Hansen, Wilson H. Poolman, and Sylvan T. Severtsen.

McCaw and Reeves called roll call for the different branches of the military and were then joined by Makenna Barron to lead the audience in singing "God Bless America."

American Legion Auxiliary Junior Members Bailey Standring and Kathleen Kuykendall placed the Memorial Wreath and lit the Eternal Flame and Addie Johnson and Makenna Barron sang "Amazing Grace."

Standring called all the veterans forward and offered words of advice in a muster for WHS seniors Jones and Potts. The new enlistees were presented with a Leatherman from the Legion and pocket flags from the Auxiliary.

Jones is the daughter of Collette Jones of Waitsburg and has been very active in a variety of activities while in high school. She played volleyball for four years and has been ASB and FFA secretary. She is a member of FFA and the LEOs Club. Jones was joined by her recruiter and will join the United States Air Force.

Potts is the son of Jay and Angie Potts of Prescott. He played soccer for three years and played basketball and baseball for four years each. He was football videographer his senior year. As a junior, Potts attended the Kiwanis Law Enforcement Camp and he fought fires for the Clearwater-Potlatch Timber Protective Association during his junior summer. Potts has enlisted with the United States Army.

The ceremony closed with a benediction by Russ Knopp, a gun salute by Dayton American Legion Post #42, taps played by Wyatt Bohlman, and a Patriot's Salute to Our Fallen Heroes by Bojac Farms. A potato bar, hosted by the Legion Auxiliary was held at the elementary school following the service.

How Do We Keep Lincoln's Promise to Veterans and their Families?

A State-winning American Legion Auxiliary Essay by Jaidyn Brown

Veterans have a lot of things that are hard for them to have access to. Some of them don't have access to much money, or when they return to civilian life some of them don't have access to a place to live because they might have been away for so long. Lincoln said, "To care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan." So how do we do this? One of the things that many people see is that veterans don't have homes or jobs once they get out of the service.

Getting veterans in a home or maintaining a job is something that I think needs to change. The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has things that can help solve this problem but I think they need more. The VA provides home loans that you pay little interest on, and they provide few benefits for unemployment. But what else can we do? Another thing is that the military does offer benefits for veterans and their families, but is that enough?

Being a dependent of someone who was in the military for over 20 years, I know how difficult benefits are. Some policies don't cover much, and some won't make a dent in the payments that families have to make because of health issues, or problems that the service man or woman has come across. I think that this country could do more for our veterans. I'm not saying that we need to be paying full coverage for everything that they can go through but I do think that they could pay a little bit more. They've sacrifice their lives for this country and I think that they deserve that and more. The last thing that I know is very hard for some veterans is that some of the VA offices you have to wait a few days because of how busy things are.

If there is a veteran who is suffering from Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, do we really want them to have to wait days to be able to talk to someone, or to see a doctor? Veterans who need someone shouldn't have to wait days, I think that the VA offices should have more than one or two counselors and they should have a hospital full of doctors to assist them when they need it most.

Our veterans have done so much for us. So how about we try to keep the promise that Lincoln made, and take care of the veterans who have served, to take care of their family and make sure that they have all they need. Let's pay them back because they have risked so much for the rest of us.

YouTube Video Promotes Shopping Local in 1938

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The students laugh and squirm and look generally unnatural as they stand in large groups in front of a slowly panning movie camera. Business owners also look stiff as they pose for a short moving picture shot, some of them smoking cigarettes.

These are all citizens of Dayton in 1938, shown in a short 15-minute movie created to promote patronizing local merchants. Also shown in the video are many scenes showing business fronts on Dayton's Main Street and surrounding areas.

Several of the businesses portrayed are still around, including Elk Drug, Suffield's Furniture, Dayton Hardware Store (now Dingles), Columbia Chronicle-Dispatch, and Blue Mountain Cannery (now Seneca Foods).

The origin of the video is a mystery to us at The Times. It was posted last month by a YouTube user named "Arky Sparky," who has posted a number of old videos from various parts of the country. We were alerted to it last week by several Dayton residents.

The video is called "Dayton Washington 1938," and can easily be found with a YouTube search.

Its introduction begins with a deep-voiced announcer proclaiming the importance of local businesses in supporting roads and emergency services through their taxes. The intro ends with, "ladies and gentlemen, support, wholeheartedly, your local merchants." It is followed by a statement on the screen which says, "The following leading MERCHANTS have sponsored this program."

Movie images of local businesses are followed by shots of their owners and employees posing for the camera. These are interspersed with several shots of large groups of local high school and elementary school students. There are no still shots. A music soundtrack that sounds typical for movies of the era, accompanies the video.

While some of the businesses shown are familiar, many are not. They include auto dealers (Low Motors Chevrolet, Maughan Motor Co. and a Hudson and Terraplane dealer), gas stations (Texaco, Motor-est and Blue Mountain Service Station), retail stores (Hamilton Hardware, Harvester Supply, Edwards Department Store, Z.E. Scott Lumber and Coal, Hechtner's 5 & 10 Cent Store, Moore Paint Shop, Columbia Market, Dayton Drug), and other businesses (Dayton Hotel, Columbia National Bank, Dayton Creamery, Rogers Construction, Bake Rite Bakery, Mill Stream Dairy).

If any of our "older" readers have memory of, or information about, the making of this movie, we'd love to hear from you.

These images are screenshots taken from the YouTube video showing Dayton merchants and school students in 1938.

of Medicare Part A swing beds, nursing home beds and assisted living beds can be intermingled.

An audit firm specializing in Medicare Part A billing will be looking into the current nursing home census and the payment model, McGuire said.

When that is done he said that he will present several options to the finance committee, and to the board, for consideration. McGuire also tossed out the idea that the hospital district could partner with another entity to build an assisted living facility.

"We have enough property here," McGuire said. But for now the administration will look into setting aside a few beds for assisted living. "We can dip our toe in," said McGuire.

Hospital renovation and enhancement project update

Construction on the hospital remodel is tentatively slated to begin June 27, McGuire told the commissioners. The current total estimated project cost is firming up at $5,643,226.55, with an 8% contingency, but costs are not final until construction documents are at 90%, and the MACC is established, said McGuire.

A mandatory pre-bid conference last week was well attended, with four electrical contractors touring the facility, ensuring good competitive bids, McGuire said. A sealed bid opening is slated for June 2, with bid openings in Spokane and Dayton over the phone. The construction documentation set for the project can be viewed at build.cchd-wa.org.

Cash flow and financial statements
McGuire told the commissioners that the April financials show a good trend year to date, but may present a false sense of security.

"We are working to manage cash aggressively as we still run a new operational loss, on an ongoing basis," he said.

McGuire said that some of the loss may be offset by the 2016 Medicare Cost report, which is eighteen months away.

"The community tax support we receive occurs in April and October and has covered our operating deficit," he said. "Year to date we show a positive bottom line of $25,780, after non-operating (tax) revenue is added in," said McGuire.

McGuire also said there are some liquidity issues. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services will provide a one-time reimbursement of $368,682 in September, and $291,444 in tax revenue will be received in October, he said.

McGuire said he will work on creating a contingency plan to support operations through the cash-tight period, and will look into the possibility of interest-bearing warrants with the Columbia County Treasurer, and a line of credit with Banner Bank.

Outreach and business enhancement initiatives

McGuire said that he, respiratory therapist Tom Anderson and Dr. Lewis Neace met with Walla Walla General Hospital CEO Monty Knittel and cardiologist Dr. Douglas Whysam about the need to create on-site cardiology services in the CCHS clinics. The idea is to have two physicians provide four hours of clinic time in each of the clinics, once a week each. Stress echo testing in the RT lab would also be offered on those days, he said.

Another business opportunity is wound care for diabetics supported by hyperbaric chambers, McGuire said. "Reimbursement for hyperbaric therapy is good," he said.

McGuire said they are looking at a model with a company called Healogics to place two chambers on site, paid for by monthly fees.

Code Compliance and Quality Assurance

Code Compliance Officer Cheryl Skiffington is developing a handbook of CCHS standards of conduct for the board to review.

Quality Assurance Officer Janet Ihle, shared with the board some highlights from the annual Critical Access Hospital Evaluation for 2015, which is a summary of accomplishments and challenges as related by department heads, committee managers, directors and leaders.

WHS Freshman Wins State FFA Creed Speaking Competition

Loren Negrón learned to believe in herself and hopes to inspire others

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Waitsburg High School freshman Loren Negrón has every right to be proud of herself for winning first place in the creed speaking competition at the 86th Washington State FFA Convention over the weekend of May 12-14.

But for the Philippine native, the experience became much more than just meeting a goal. It taught her to believe in herself, to be an inspiration to others, and showed her much it means to have the strong support of friends and family.

Negrón moved to the United States last year, after being raised and homeschooled by her parents in the Philippines. Her parents served as missionaries there and founded the Jesus Garden Ministry, which is still in operation. Negrón's father, an American, also taught English to Koreans.

Negrón said safety was a large factor in her father's decision to relocate the family to the U.S.

"When I got here I was amazed at how blessed Americans are to live in this kind of government as compared to the Philippines where there are bombs and terrorists. There is no safety that you can enjoy there and sometimes people would live in fear," she said.

Negrón said her family first moved to Dixie and she chose to attend Waitsburg High School because it was smaller and seemed more friendly than Wa-Hi. The family has since moved to Walla Walla, but Negrón intends to continue her education in Waitsburg.

Negrón said she joined FFA last January at the suggestion of FFA Advisor Nicole Abel, who was impressed with a Filipino farm diorama and presentation Negrón gave as an ag science project. Abel convinced Negrón to take part in the job interview contest, which required that she become an FFA member. "Once I was in, I just loved it. I love how FFA gives opportunities to young adults like me who are willing to work hard for their future," Negrón said.

And hard work is one thing Negrón doesn't shy away from. Negrón made it as far as the semi-finals in the job interview competition and then decided to tackle the creed speaking competition. Competitors must recite the five paragraph FFA Creed in four minutes, and answer three questions related to the creed.

Abel said every freshman is enrolled in agriculture science and is required to learn and recite the FFA Creed with the purpose of helping them become comfortable speaking in front of groups and in a professional setting.

Negrón speaks three languages: the Filipino dialects of Tagalog and Visayan, as well as English. While she grew up speaking English, she said she still had to work hard to get her accent, pronunciation, and enunciation to the point where it pleased the judges.

She placed first at finals, but only placed second at the district competition where she got docked for enunciation. But she was still eligible for the state contest. Negrón said she practiced intensely, watching YouTube videos and working with teachers and fellow FFA members.

While she struggled with pronunciation and enunciation, Negrón feels her unique background gave her an edge in the question portion of the contest.

"I had only been here for a year and didn't know much about ag in America so I thought kids here would have a bigger advantage. But throughout my journey I learned, as Mrs. Abel had said, that my answers really separated me from the other contestants.

"I've seen things they haven't seen; the discouraging things in life that they don't see here like seeing kids living under bridges and working with them to give them a better life. I know what it's like to work on a farm, especially when you're poor. My family on my mom's side were ag workers on pineapple plantations so I knew how discouraging and how hard it was. And at the same time I know why agriculture is so important and how it changes people's lives.

"Technology here can't be compared to the Philippines. You use tractors. Most of the farms in the Philippines use caribous – the animals – and it's all by hand. We're lacking the technology that you have," Negrón said.

Negrón said that as she continually recited the words "I believe," that appear throughout the creed, they began to affect her.

"I have been through some things that had caused me to become insecure and lose faith in myself. The first time I read the creed, I thought there were so many 'I believes.' It just kept hitting me like a spotlight. I decided that I was just going to believe in myself," she said.

Negrón also credits her success to the support of Abel, her classmates, family, and FFA family.

"At state, everyone kept telling me I could do it. One of the people that really touched my heart the night before the competition was (FFA President) Tristan Newman. He told me to do my best and if I wasn't going to place first, I was going to be the first in their hearts anyway. With that kind of support and faith in yourself, you can go anywhere," she said.

"Loren did a spectacular job! It is an honor to be her advisor. Her parents made my job easy as they have raised a kid that knows what hard work is and how much you have to put in to succeed in our district," said Abel.

Negrón said she was amazed when she was named as the state winner, out of 32 competitors, and overwhelmed at the prospect of reciting the creed before more than 3,000 state attendees.

"I was really trying to stop myself from crying. All I was thinking was that this is my chance to inspire people. If they get to know my story they will believe in themselves and say 'if this girl has just been here for a year and she's not from our country and she went to state, then I can do something, too.' I want to inspire young people to take a chance, take a leap of faith, and just do what they want to do. To just believe in themselves," she said.

Negrón plans to keep on believing in herself all the way to the national level competition in Indianapolis, Ind. in October. Not only that, but she plans to perfect her job interview presentation and hopes to place first in it at next year's state convention.

Callas Wins 300 Hurdles at State

WAITSBURG, DAYTON WRAP UP TRACK SEASON AT STATE, WITH MULTIPLE PODIUM FINISHERS

By Ian Smay | THE TIMES

CHENEY – Waitsburg and Dayton finished their track campaigns this weekend in Cheney at the State 2B Track & Field Championships. Waitsburg had nine athletes compete in the year's final meet, while Dayton had three of their own take part over the weekend.

Waitsburg junior Landon Callas stood atop the podium after the finals of the 300 meter hurdles. He won the finals race in a personal best time 40.02 seconds.

"He beat a quality field and earned the victory," said Waitsburg coach Jeff Bartlow. "Landon worked extremely hard, listened to his coaches and continued to improve each week. He was excited about state and was excited about the chance for a victory and a championship."

Callas also took part in the 110 meter hurdles and was a part of the 4x100 meter relay team, both of which did not qualify for the final round.

Waitsburg's Emily Adams also had a strong weekend, placing high in the finals for the 800, 1600, and 3200 meter events. She would end up 2nd in the 800 and 4th in both the 1600 and 3200 meter races.

"Her performance was especially gratifying after she struggled early in the meet in the triple jump, an event she placed in as a sophomore," Bartlow said, "She had a great day (Saturday)."

Adams, a sophomore, also participated in the preliminary round for the triple jump, but did not qualify for the finals.

Cardinal senior Mark Montgomery set a personal best in the discus, ending up 8th in the final. "He really got better and better each week and also worked extremely hard. He shined in the disk," said Bartlow.

Skylar Wood ended his season with a 15th-place finish in the 3200, and the 4x100 meter relay team of Joe Leamy, Nick Kitselman, Travis Crockett, and Callas finished the weekend in 11th place. Crockett also participated in the 100 and 200 meter sprints as well as the high jump. Zion Branson came in 13th in the shot put.

"We had a great season. Our boys team is loaded with juniors and we will again be strong at the District and State level next year," said Bartlow. "We will miss our three seniors, all throwers (Mark Montgomery, Zion Branson and Brandon Penner), but have a strong team coming back."

Dayton had three athletes take part in the state meet. Freshman Neylan Bryan finished 13th in the 400-meter race, barely missing out on qualifying for the final heat. Alexis Wanlarbkam closed out her season with a 15th place showing in the 100 meter hurdles, also missing out on a place in the final round.

"I was pleased with our athletes' performances. Neylan and Alexis pushed their way through occasional bouts with worry and self-doubt and ran their fastest times of the season," said Head Coach Dan Nechodom.

Dayton's sole male competitor at state, Cal Martin, qualified for the finals in the javelin. His best throw of 159 feet 5 inches in the final gave him a 7th place finish, which secured a spot on the podium.

"We enjoyed and appreciated the support and encouragement of the school and community, including a rousing send-off," commented Nechodom. "The entire high school stood and cheered in the parking lot as we left, and we drove past several groups of waving and cheering grade school kids."

Lady Bulldogs Win Two at State

DAYTON SOFTBALL FINISHES SEASON AT STATE TOURNAMENT, BUT WITHOUT PODIUM FINISH

By Ian Smay | THE TIMES

YAKIMA – The Dayton High Softball team's season came to an end Saturday at the State 2B Softball tournament in Yakima. The Bulldogs won two of their four games over the weekend, but their efforts did not result in a top-four trophy winning position.

The Lady Bulldogs' opening game did not go as planned, as they were shutout by a strong Pe Ell/Willapa Valley team. Dayton only managed two hits over the seven innings, from Mia Becker and Kellie Moore. Pe Ell had their bats rattling as they scored 16 runs on 18 hits.

"Our first game was an eye opener," said Dayton Assistant Coach Desirae Jones. The 16-0 loss sent Dayton to the consolation side of the bracket, ending hopes for a state title.

DHS came back strong after their opening-round defeat with a 19-9 win over Colfax. "The girls were able to come back and get fired up against Colfax," said Jones.

Heidi Dobbs, Madison Mings, and Megan Robins got three hits apiece in a stellar 17-hit performance as a team. The Bulldogs scored 18 runs over the first three innings to set the tone for the afternoon, never looking back as they put away Colfax with relative ease.

The game ended after five innings due to the 10 run mercy rule, and Colfax was sent packing. "It was nice to see them respond after the first game loss," commented Jones.

Following their victory in the second game Friday, Dayton opened up Saturday with another strong performance against Concrete, coming away with a 14-2 victory. Pitcher Savannah McFarland opened the game with six straight strikeouts, and ended the game with only four hits allowed and 10 strikeouts over the five-inning game.

The Bulldogs backed up the dominant effort put in by McFarland with another offensive outburst. Multiple hits from Scully Castorena, Hanna Becker, Mia Becker, and Dobbs helped lead the Dayton sluggers to the win.

The Concrete win set Dayton up for an afternoon showdown against Brewster. The Lady Bulldogs opened the top of the first with a run, but were quickly behind, as Brewster had an 11 run first inning. This proved to be too much, as Dayton was never able to get the lead back, and fell 17-7 in another shortened game. "This was a pretty defeating inning. But, they picked themselves up and battled on," Jones said.

A valiant effort from the Dayton girls resulted in 12 hits, but it was not enough as Brewster kept their momentum going, scoring their 17 runs on 16 hits. The last game of the season for the Lady Dawgs saw Mings, Mia Becker, and Castorena all put in multi-hit performances. Unable to cut the lead to under 10 runs, the Bulldogs season ended after the fifth inning.

"Terry (Robins, Head Coach) and I are very proud of this team," Jones said. "They were led by seniors Kellie Moore, Madison Mings, and Hope Lopez. They played with a lot of heart and represented Dayton and what it means to be a Bulldog. They battled and won Dayton finished the season with a 17-11 record.

THE TIMES

DAYTON - For several years, top notch musicians have converged on the Walla Walla Valley during the month of June, sharing their love of chamber music through spectacular performances.

And though the name of the festival would suggest that the festival is limited to the city, in truth the Walla Walla Chamber Music Festival offers events in neighboring communities, and this year two of those musical moments will take place in Dayton.

Fun With Music, to be held Friday at 4 p.m. at the Dayton Memorial Library is an outreach activity geared towards, but not limited to, children. It is a perfect way to learn more about chamber music.

The musicians will play short selections, drawing attention to different elements in the musical composition, like rhythm, melody, harmony and instrumentation. Priority seating is reserved for children, but all ages are welcome.

The chamber musicians will return to Dayton on Thursday, June 16 for a 10 a.m. open rehearsal at the Liberty Theater. The open rehearsals are a one hour opportunity to watch the complex and creative process of bringing musicians together to interpret a piece of music. It's a joyful, free, and informal way to hear the music in a new way.

The Walla Walla Chamber Music Festival kicks off June 2 and runs through the 25th, with over 30 events. Further information on the festival, and performances, can be found on the Walla Walla Chamber Music Festival website, www.wwcmf.org.
