Waitsburg Celebration Days This Weekend

WEEKEND FEATURES PARADE, POKER RIDE, CAR SHOW, BREWFEST, MUSEUM TOURS, MUSIC AND 3-DAY CARNIVAL

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The 'Burg will be hopping this weekend as folks come from far and near to participate in Waitsburg Celebration Days. The three-day event, held the third weekend in May, was organized as a placeholder for the former popular Days of Real Sport which featured horse racing at the Waitsburg Fairgrounds.

State spending cuts forced horse racing to fall by the wayside for smaller venues, but WCD organizers jumped in to offer another kind of ride. Karen's Ride, a poker run named in honor of the late Waitsburg community activist Karen Mohney, has now become a popular tradition, even bringing in riders from out-of-state.

Waitsburg Celebration Days has grown to include much more than the poker ride. The weekend promises to provide fun for the entire family, with a parade, car show, brewfest, carnival, live music and dancing, and much more. WILSON-PHILLIPS HOUSE FEATURES PRESCOTT, LAMAR DISPLAY

Prescott native Mary Grant Tompkins will be on site to share history of the two towns

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG - The Bruce House Museum and adjoining Wilson-Phillips House, which features revolving displays, will be open to the public following the Waitsburg Celebration Days parade on Sat. May 19. Waitsburg Historical Society member, Mary Phillips, has been hard at work organizing a new display in the Wilson-Phillips House, featuring the history of the towns of Prescott and Lamar. Prescott native Mary Grant Tompkins, who donated several items in the display, will be on site at the museum to share her extensive knowledge of the area. Tompkins' great-great grandfather was a Pettyjohn, and one of the first Prescott pioneers, Phillips said. The mission of the Waitsburg Historical Society is "the preservation of the Valley of the Touchet River and the memorabilia thereto." The Valley of the Touchet River extends to the Lamar Station, west of Prescott, in Walla Walla County. Lamar, which is located on the Touchet River, about six miles west of Prescott was originally named Riverside. The name was changed by the

The weekend kicks off at 4:30 p.m. Friday with a Historical Sunset Cruise that departs from the Waitsburg Fairgrounds. ATV riders will drive mountain roads, stopping along the way to learn about historical points of interest. This year's ride covers new territory, with a loop through Bundy Hollow and then ending back at the fairgrounds bonfire.

Auto enthusiasts will want to be downtown at 6:30 p.m. when the One-of-a-Kind Auto Show Evening Cruise departs Preston Park. Anyone interested in participating, including old or new vehicles on four wheels or two, is welcome to join the lineup at 6 p.m. The cruise will also end up at the fairgrounds bonfire.

The entire community is invited to spend Friday evening around the Brats & Brews Bonfire at the fairgrounds, adjacent to the Lions Club Building, from 4 to 9 p.m. The Q Woodfire Grill will provide brats. Beverages will be available, and the popular Walla Walla band biGfONT will provide musical entertainment.

Friends of the Pool to Begin Fundraising

DAYTON WILL HIRE A CONSULTANT TO COMPLETE A FACILITY CONDITION ASSESSMENT THIS SUMMER

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Vicki Zoller from the newly formed Friends of the Dayton Community Pool Committee was present at last week's city council meeting to talk about efforts the committee is making to help raise funds for repairs at the Dayton City Pool. The city recently decided to close the pool because it has significant infrastructure problems.

Zoller said the committee is working with the Columbia County Community Network to set up a 501c3 organization under their umbrella.

"This will insure that all monies are used in proper accordance, and help to provide the transparency of donations, and expenditures," said Zoller.

She said the committee is already writing grants to help with funds and transportation for youth in the summer recreation program, so they may travel to Prescott and Walla Walla pools this summer.

"We're looking for a long-term great solution for the community," Zoller added.

The committee will be asking for help from the city and from citizens through fundraisers, as well as grants.

"We're not looking into a levy at this time, but that is not off the table," she told the council.

Anything that is done will need to include ongoing maintenance of the pool, she said. "We can't rebuild it and dump it on the city to maintain it, because the money just won't be there," she said.

Zoller said the Friends of the Dayton Community Pool plan on being the hub through which fundraising will take place.

"We have officers for our group and a fairly decent committee, but more members are welcome," said Zoller.

The next committee meeting is on Tuesday, May 29 at 5:30 p. m. in the county's public health office on Main Street, she said.

City Administrator Trina Cole said there is a projected timeline for getting a consultant on board to look into the issues with the pool.

CAROLYN HENDERSON: TALK ABOUT ART Watercolors by Walla Walla Artist Debbie Bruce

For many of us, our exposure to watercolor is limited to the plastic paint sets our parents picked up at the box store. In less than an hour, the neat little ovals of 12 separate colors turned into a mass of mess, and that's saying nothing about what the painting we worked on looked like.

Lesson learned early: watercolor painting is not child's play.

But done by the right hands – those of a skilled and competent artist with hundreds, or thousands, of hours of practice and experimentation -- watercolor paintings are beautiful indeed: translucent, colorful, delicate yet bold.

"What is difficult about watercolor is also what makes it fun and wonderful," says Debbie Bruce, a Walla Walla artist who has been working in the medium for more than 20 years.

"It needs to be planned out carefully, and is more about letting the light come through, knowing what to leave, and allowing the transparency and light and dark values bring out drama and color."

Bruce creates landscape and floral works with an easy, flowing style, one that belies the careful preparation and thought that goes into every piece. Thirty years as a professional florist result in a keen appreciation for flowers in all their intricacy.

"I especially love to paint light coming through the petals," Bruce says. "I am intrigued by the unending variety and color that flowers bring, and to me they are a great expression of joy and beauty."

Bruce's work, which includes original paintings as well as paper and ceramic prints, note cards, and coasters, is on special display at Wenaha Gallery through Saturday, June 2. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Northern Pacific Railway in 1902. At one time, the tiny town had about 60 families, a hotel, post office, school, mercantile, depot, restaurant, Acme flour mill, insurance broker and livery stable. The town businesses slowly disappeared, with the Post Office closing in 1916.

The Lamar Cabin, built in 1863 by George Dudley Goodwin, and later purchased by James and Joseph Lamar is still on site. The cabin is located at on SR124, one mile west of Harvey Shaw Road intersection, not far from the north bank of the river.

Prescott was named in 1881 after C. H. Prescott, the general superintendent of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, after he designated it the location for the railway's division shops. The Prescott Post Office has been in operation since 1881, though the town was not officially incorporated until 1903.

Though the current population remains at roughly 300, the town was once bustling, with six churches and a flour mill.

The Wilson-Phillips House display includes books and photos from the Pettyjohn school,

Prescott High School Tigers memorabilia, photos of historic homes, and the Prescott jail, which has since been moved to the Fort Walla Walla Museum. Other items on display include a photo of the homestead Waitsburg long-timer Jack McCaw was raised in, and high school awards from the 1940's, honoring McCaw for "Scholarship" and as an "Outstanding Ag Student."

Waitsburg Celebration Days attendees will want to be sure and take in this display, as well as the many other displays featured at the museum complex. Vendors will be on the complex lawn selling their crafts and wares through the afternoon.

Ten Ton Coffee Opens in Waitsburg

LUKE CHAVEZ AND JOHN AVERY ARE EXCITED TO SHARE THEIR MAIN STREET SPACE WITH THE PUBLIC

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Luke Chavez and John Avery are hoping to celebrate in a big way over Waitsburg Celebration Days weekend: with the opening of their brand-new coffee shop.

Ten Ton Coffee, located in the Ten Ton Press building on Waitsburg's Main Street, is slated to open this weekend.

Renovating the building has involved a lot of blood and sweat (if not tears), and has been a true family endeavor. Chavez' mother, Lane Hill, allowed the partners to transform half of her building's first level into a warm and inviting gathering place. The rest of the space will be retained as an art studio.

Avery's father built the coffee shop tables and sandwich board, and Chavez' aunt and uncle, Gail Gwinn and Joe Patrick, helped throughout the process, varnishing floors and diving in to do whatever needed done.

Local woodworker Jim Walsh built the custom bar and serving area. The bar top is crafted from the old Farmer's Café sign that once graced the front of the building, and an old "Restaurant" sign has been turned on it's side and incorporated into the back wall detail.

The space is warm and cheery, with bright blue walls, a green ceiling and tables accented in green and "Charisma" (coral), with pops of black throughout. Generously sized coffee mugs in orange, blue and black line the counter.

"We want somewhere that is very warm, inviting and comfortable to hang out in," Chavez said. On warm days, the building's rolling door will be opened, allowing customers to feel like they are on a patio, while still seated inside.

Avery said many Seattle coffee shops have only tables or couches. "We included the bar in the plans as kind of a social spot. It's a place to sit and get to know other people and foster community spirit," he said.

Both Avery and Chavez have many years' experience as baristas and working in fine dining in Seattle. They are excited to put their skills to work in a place of their own in Waitsburg.

"We feel like we are filling a need in the community. We're excited to bring our collective experience to the endeavor," Chavez said.

At this point, they hope to be open five days a week, either Wednesday through Sunday or Thursday through Monday. They anticipate being open in the morning through three or four in the afternoon.

"We are working to source as many local ingredients for our coffee and baked goods as possible," Avery said. "The menu is still under development, but we will have pastries, breads with sweet, savory and lighter options," Chavez added.

Regina Weldert, of Rey's Roast in Dayton, helped the partners develop a custom espresso blend. The shop will serve espresso, regular coffee and cold brew in the summer.

"Our hope is that this will be a beautiful space where people will sit, meet, linger, and chat. It will be truly unique and like nothing that is currently available in Waitsburg," Chavez said. "We're very, very excited."

Dayton Council Gets Planning, Code Compliance Updates

MULE MANIA COMING MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND

CITY COUNCIL ALSO HEARD MORE DETAILS ABOUT UPCOMING COLUMBIA COUNTY EMS LEVY

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—At last week's city council meeting, City Administrator Trina Cole said the public works staff was to meet with the Washington Dept. of Ecology on May 15 to talk about the wastewater treatment plant and the financing for it.

Planning Director Meagan Bailey discussed successes with code compliance enforcement, particularly yard debris at a house on Clay Street which has been cleaned up.

"Just this week we had 15-16 grass letters go out and about half of them have called to tell us they have mowed the grass," she said. Bailey assured the council that code enforcement is very active.

Bailey said that RFPs for the preparation of the city's upcoming comprehensive plan update will be out next week, she said.

Bailey reported that building permit activity is picking up. She said she has a pre-application meeting scheduled for a new Seneca building, which is a "very large valuable structure".

The dog park sign will be installed at end of month, and trees will be planted at the park this weekend, said Bailey.

Bailey said the City Planning Commission is working on amendments for a very large zoning ordinance update, but she is also looking into an infill study done by the former city planning director. She said her office will reach out to landowners with empty lots to see if they are interested in selling them. Special guests Fire Chief Jeromy Phinney, and retired Fire Chief Rick Turner, presented the Dayton City council with information about the upcoming EMS Levy, which will appear on the August ballot, and asked for their endorsement of it.

Turner said WACs and RCWs provide for fire protection, but not for EMS services. He said if the levy passes, the yearly cost for providing for ambulance service will be $12 per year for a 200,000 home.

The council approved a request from Katie Wamble to close S. 2nd Street, from Spring Street to Tremont Street on July 21, from 6-10 p.m. for a band to perform during Alumni Weekend.

The council authorized the Relight Washington Grant Agreement with the state Transportation Improvement Board in the amount of $63,967.

The city is finishing up contracts with Pacific Power, Inc. Street lights in Dayton will be switched to LED lights, saving the city approximately $5,600 a year in electric bills.

The city council also authorized:

Ordinance No. 1929, repealing certain ordinances and chapters of the Dayton Municipal Code that are already covered by existing state law, have adopted state law by reference, or that are no longer necessary, some of which are from 1918.

Ordinance No. 1931, Amending Ordinances 1896 and 1905, Section 06 of Title 1 Chapter 2 of the Dayton Municipal Code, Open to the Public – changing the time of city council meetings, from 7 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Ordinance No. 1932, amending sections 17-02.022 and 17-02.025 of the Dayton Municipal Code regarding frequently flooded areas concerning two lines which are out of compliance with federal regulations.

Resolution No. 1340, amending the City of Dayton personnel policies and procedures manual, section 6.12, regarding sick leave.

A variety of events will take place at the Columbia County Fairgrounds

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON--Mule Mania begins its Class list schedule of events for mules and donkeys, on Saturday, May 26, at 8 a.m., at the Columbia County Fairgrounds.

The Mule and Donkey show features riding and driving competitions throughout the day, and on Sunday, from 7:30 a.m. until sometime in the afternoon, said Bev Rising, Mule Mania president and show manager.

Rising said there should be a great show this year. "Bobbie Jo and Barney Chambers are bringing a lot of mules, and lot of people with them, to compete," she said. Rising is also expecting some six-up mule driving teams.

The Mule Mania Chuckwagon Cook-Off will take place on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. at the fairgrounds. This year, four chuckwagons are expected to serve about 200 people. Tickets can be purchased at the Mule Mania booth in the Fairgrounds Youth Building.

Rising said the silent auction will take place directly after the Chuckwagon Feed, and proceeds from the auction and raffle items will go to benefit local charity.

"We try and do a lot for the community," she said. "Last year, Project Timothy, Young Life, the Dayton boys' basketball team and the Community Food Bank were the recipients, of this benefit."

The Mule and Donkey competition will continue at 7 p. m., after the silent auction.

A family-friendly music event is planned for 9 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Pavilion. Chief Springs brew will be served in the roped off beer garden, and a DJ will provide the music.

Rising said Mule Mania is a great draw for spectators, with economic benefits for the community.

"Some of the Mule Mania participants stay in trailers at the fairgrounds, and some in the hotels. They shop and eat here, too," she said.

The Times will have a complete preview of the expanded Dayton Days Memorial Day Weekend Celebration in next week's edition.

PUZZLES / RECIPE

Weekly SUDOKU

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX Pecan Sandies

saw a recipe for Pecan Sandies in the Whitman County Gazette under My Favorite Recipes. Different people submit recipes. My first thought when I saw the name was of the packaged Pecan Sandies that were always a favorite, so I figured I couldn't go wrong. I thought everyone knew what Pecan Sandies were, but I found one person (in my household) that hadn't heard of them.

These are a winner, trust me. I thought maybe they would be a lot like shortbread - dense - but with the cream of tartar, they are a light and melt-in-your mouth kind of cookie. I bet you can't eat just two!

INGREDIENTS:

1 c. butter softened	1 tsp vanilla
1 c. canola oil	4 c. flour
1 c. white sugar	1 tsp baking soda
1 c. powdered sugar (sifted)	1 tsp cream of tartar
2 eggs	1 tsp salt
	2 c. pecans, chopped

Another ¹/₂ c. powdered sugar to roll dough in (more like a cup)

DIRECTIONS:

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

Cream together butter, oil, white sugar and one cup of powdered sugar until smooth. Beat in the eggs, then stir in vanilla. Combine the flour, baking soda, cream of tartar and salt. Then stir into the creamed mixture. Mix in the pecans. Roll dough into one-inch balls and roll them in the half cup of powdered sugar. Place on baking sheet lined with parchment paper and flatten a bit. Bake 10-12 minutes or until golden. Cool on wire racks.

MY NOTES:

A few things: I didn't see the "sifted" on the powdered sugar, but it didn't seem to matter. I thought the dough might be too sticky to make balls, so I added about another half cup of flour. It was still a soft dough, but I had no trouble making the dough into balls.

My oven wasn't quite 375 degrees, so 10 minutes wasn't enough. You want to bake them at least until they are set, so for me it was more like 12 minutes. It's a good idea to make a test cookie to check the cook time. Not that I do. I taste them when they come out of the oven, so if they are a bit undercooked, it's too late, as I've already put the other batch in.

Oh, and they are not 100% Pecan Sandies. I only had a cup of pecans, so I filled the other cup with walnuts. I believe walnuts can easily be substituted. Guess you'd have to change the name though.

This recipe makes a good-sized batch, which I was hoping for, as I go visit my kids this weekend and will take some to each.

I give this a four-star, and I think you will too. ENJOY!

Work on upgrading the Waitsburg 4-H livestock barn and pens at the Waitsburg Fairgrounds is ongoing, and animals are already in residence, including the first pair of goats. The pens have been cleaned and renovated, a fingerprint scanner tracks how much time kids spend at the pens each day, and a bio security station has been installed.

"John Gleason, of Affordable Concrete, will pour pads for the wash pens at each barn, we'll get sawdust in the center aisle of the horse barn and, hopefully, a new coat of paint to finish up," said Pen Pals 4-H leader and barn co-supervisor Lisa Morrow.

Clockwise from above: FFA and 4-H kids presented thank you cards and a gift to the Waitsburg Lions during their May 8 meeting, thanking them for their monetary assistance with the upgraded livestock barns.
