SERVING WAITSBURG, DAYTON AND THE TOUCHET VALLEY

Published Since 1878

ONE DOLLAR

Lane Gwinn

Veterans attending the Memorial Day Service at Waitsburgs Memorial Wall, mustered to honor Alex Dahlby who has enlisted in the Army. Dahlby is graduating from Waitsburg High School on June 9, 2023. After AIT training, Dahlby plans to attend Eastern Washington University, where he will be a member of the ROTC program (an Army ROTC graduate is commissioned as an officer in the Army) while getting his computer science degree.

Parade brightens Dayton Days

THE TIMES

DAYTON—Dayton Day's Parade came through town on Saturday, May 27. A procession of adorable kids on bikes was followed by floats and presentations that cheered the crowd lining the street on the cloudy but cool day. The rodeo at the Columbia County Fairgrounds follows the annual event.

FFA wraps up the year with Annual Awards Banquet

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

The Waitsburg FFA held its annual Awards Banquet on May 24 in the elementary multi-purpose room. FFA President Garrett Palmer began the opening ceremonies before guests and members enjoyed dessert.

A list of names, including parents, community members, and businesses, was read in appreciation for all they do for the Waitsburg FFA Chapter.

FFA members of numerous career development events were honored and received certificates and pins. The guests heard the FFA Creed before members were recognized for the Discovery, Greenhand, and Chapter Degrees.

Roseann Groom, Olivia Leid, and Mark Pickel were given Honorary Chapter Degrees.

There was a recap of the State Convention and proficiency awards. The trap shooting team was recognized, and FFA Pride awards were given for Most Valuable, Most Inspirational, Most Active Officer, and Most Active Member.

Chapter Scholastic Achievement and Senior Recognition members were named, and student-teacher Alyssa Drader was honored.

After the new officers for the 2023-2024 school year were announced, the banquet finished with retiring the senior officers' jackets and closing ceremonies.

AT THE LIBERTY:

"GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY VOL. 3"

THE TIMES

DAYTON—In Marvel Studios "Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3" our beloved band of misfits are looking a bit different these days. Peter Quill (Chris Pratt), still reeling from the loss of Gamora, must rally his team around him to defend the universe along with protecting one of their own. A mission that, if not completed successfully, could quite possibly lead to the end of the Guardians as we know them.

The critics at the Rotten Tomatoes website give this movie 82% favorable rating, and the audience gave it 94%. That website's audience summarizes the movie as "Taking the team in a darker direction without sacrificing heart or humor, "Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3" ends the trilogy on an entertaining high note". This movie is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, strong language, suggestive/drug references and thematic elements. The IMDb website parent's guide notes the following: moderate violence and gore, with lots of violence and fighting scenes, moderate profanity – including at least one F word, mild alcohol, drugs, and smoking, and severe fighting and intense scenes. Runtime is 149 minutes.

The Liberty Theater balcony (Rows 3-6) will remain closed through most of May for construction, although balcony Rows 1 and 2 will likely reopen soon.

Also note: In response to comments that dialog is sometimes hard to understand at the theater, we will show on-screen captions on SUNDAYS and TUESDAYS for all movies, and we request your feedback about whether you want us to continue to show this or not.

ROBIN LEVENTHAL ART EXHIBIT AT WAG

Robin has had her hands in dirt since she can remember.

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG— WAG, the Waitsburg Art Garden, is hosting Walla Walla Artist Robin Leventhal on June 2 and 3, Friday and Saturday.

Leventhal is a chef instructor at the Wine Country Culinary Institute by day, and a trained artist at her core. Her current work combines elements from nature, including stones, seed pods, and shells, with manmade fragments holding paint and rust from the past.

"Erosion, oxidation and patinas each have a story to tell," wrote Leventhal in her artist statement provided to The Times.

"All life is held to an ultimate truth, the inevitability of a temporal end. Throughout our journey, experiences become markers in our own history, fragments of a larger story" she continued.

Her mixed media pieces have a visual and tactile story to tell, and the artist encourages viewers to, "Please touch the art."

The exhibit is part of downtown Waitsburg's Happening events.

Artist Robin Leventhal will be at WAG for two days, June 2 and 3. She will be exhibiting her mixed media, ceramic work in Waitsburg's garden art venue.

RSVP FOR LIVING HISTORY PERFORMANCE WITH ED BURLINGAME

THE TIMES

WALLA WALLA—The Living History performance on June 4 will be about Ed Burlingame, whose work in irrigation helped turn acres of sagebrush into farmland. Burlingame will be portrayed by Tom Williams.

The event includes a bus tour to Burlingame's still-active and extraordinary irrigation project built in the 1890s. See the water system's impact firsthand.

The event will take place on Sunday June 4 at 2 p.m. To insure a space, RSVP by Friday June 2—call (509) 525-7703 or email info@fwwm.org. Seats are limited.

The bus will bring participants to Washington's little Grand Canyon, the Touchet Formation, to learn about the Missoula Floods.

YUTZY AT STATE TRACK

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

DW COMBINE—Reuben Yutzy competed in the shot put at the State Track meet on Friday, May 26.

Coach Nechodom said, “Reuben looked very sharp, having put in a few weeks of some focused effort to improve his form. He wasn’t quite able to put it all together for a big PR, but competed well and was an encouragement to the other athletes”.

Reuben’s parents and grandparents were able to join him in Yakima. Reuben finished the day with a throw of 38’8.5”, placing him 13th overall.

Waitsburg Class of 2023

WAITSBURG—It is almost the end of the school year and Waitsburg is gearing up to celebrate its graduating seniors. Each week we will highlight students from the Class of 2023.

DAMIEN REYES

Damien Reyes takes two classes at Waitsburg High School and then goes to work at Whiskey Canyon or relaxes at home.

After high school, Reyes plans to work for the grain growers during harvest and then work at dams building/repairing electrical hydro generators.

Reyes’ best memory of high school is playing football.

Dia Adkins

DIA ADKINS

Dia Adkins is a member of the yearbook and The CARDINAL staff and a senior band member.

After graduating high school, she plans to further her studies at Walla Walla Community College.

Adkins’ favorite memories of high school are being with her friends.

OWEN YOST

While attending high school, Owen Yost worked at Bluewood during the skiing season. He plans to work harvest this season and then for Bluewood before pursuing a full-time job.

Yost has been an FFA member and is the current sentinel for the club. One of his favorite memories is the FFA State Convention.

Yost remembers the two days a week of school (during the pandemic) and has fond memories of field nights and planning graduation with Mrs. Groom.

Palouse Outdoors: The Phenological Calendar of Kokanee

By Brad Trumbo | THE TIMES

Whether you realize it or not, most outdoor enthusiasts are phenological scientists. You may never have published in a peer-reviewed scientific journal or even considered proper phenology as practical in everyday life. Maybe you've never even heard of phenology. But if you appreciate the outdoors or even just vegetable gardening, chances are, you're a seasoned phenologist.

Simply put, phenology is a branch of science dealing with the correlation between climate and environmental cues, and periodic biological phenomena such as fish spawning, deer and elk rut, songbird migration, and upland bird nesting seasons.

For example, the big game hunter reads the moon phase and weather patterns to estimate the peak of the rut for hunt planning. Anglers keep an eye on snowmelt and spring runoff timing and water temperature to predict migration and spawning periods for fishes like salmon, bass, and walleye. My wife keeps an annual calendar of weather and plant bloom patterns to phase seed starts into her vegetable garden.

As a professional scientist, it's only natural that I also rely on phenological cues to plan outdoor activities, most commonly fishing.

Spring in the arid lands of the Pacific Northwest is an incredible season, rich with the hues of our natural landscape responding to longer and warmer days. Brilliant canary-yellow clusters of arrowleaf balsamroot, cotton-topped common yarrow, fuchsia cushions of longleaf phlox, and the snowstorm of black cottonwood and white poplar seeds wafting on the breeze all hint at the timing for fishing desert lakes.

By mid-May, I am already chasing trout among the puddles of the Washington scablands. But as the water temperature warms, my thoughts drift to kokanee, advancing in their early summer patterns.

When balsamroot clusters speckle the shrub-steppe, glowing like yellow lava perforations among the sagebrush, it's time to drop a downrigger and squid bait behind a dodger for these silver-bullet landlocked sockeye salmon.

While squid is not exactly a natural food source in the seep lakes, a small, orange, eyed skirt with tiny trailer hooks tipped with scented corn inexplicably does the trick when trolled behind a small dodger. Downriggers make it easy to target a specific depth, and this technique becomes more successful as the lakes stratify and food sources concentrate.

Lakes in Washington's channeled scablands typically register around 55 degrees Fahrenheit at the surface in mid-May – cool enough that the kokanee scattered about the depths from approximately 12 to 75 feet. Additionally, the cold water had the fish finicky to start the day, making their half-hearted bait bumps nearly unnoticeable on lines clipped to a downrigger ball. But a rod with a two-ounce weight dropped off the back of the boat provided quick adjustment to encounter fish at many depths, as well as greater sensitivity to strikes, landing a limit of "kokes" in short order as fish warmed up and committed to the bait.

Kokanee are sought for their table fare first and foremost. Small fish tugging against heavy tackle doesn't produce the most inciting of battles, and their weak mouths make them difficult to land if they fail to inhale to bait. Additionally, as fish strike the trolling squid, they typically hook themselves. It may take a few fish to get over the instinct to set the hook, but simply reeling up and keeping the pressure on can be most effective for landing fish.

Kokanee action in June can be more reliable as fish narrow into their preferred depth and become more active in warmer water. Bigger fish can be found in some lakes with a little research, but a passel of 10- to 12-inch kokanee is perfectly suited for a smoker, oven rack, or frying pan, and sublimely paired with a Pinot Gris or Chardonnay and fresh asparagus spears from the garden. Another phenological sign of the time to kick back in the boat and coax up the tasty (albeit tiny) freshwater salmon of the frigid depths.

Brad Trumbo

Kokanee are small chrome-sided sockeye salmon that thrive in deep freshwater lakes and find a small rubber squid wiggling behind a flashing dodger irresistible. These fish are "landlocked," meaning they have no connection to the ocean, but they do make upstream spawning migrations in lakes with headwater streams.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago

May 30, 2013

The Dayton school district will say farewell to three very special ladies at the close of this school year. Elementary school principal Katie Leid, first grade school teacher Julie Howard, and school secretary Dallas Dickinson are all set to retire. Combined, these women have well over fifty years experience in education, and for them the decision to begin a new chapter in their lives is bittersweet. Leid, who was born in Walla Walla and raised in Waitsburg, has served as principal for the past nine years in Dayton. [...] Howard has taught kindergarten, first, second, third, and fifth grades over a period of 26 years. [...] Dickinson began working in the Dayton school district in the 1990-1991 school year. She says she started as a volunteer in the computer lab in the early days of computers, and she got her foot in the door by putting on workshops about how to open Microsoft Word documents.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

June 4, 1998

Waitsburg High School junior Beth Abbey kicked the final 300-plus meters of the 1,600 m. run, pulling away from the pack and crossing the finish line over 40 meters ahead of her nearest competitor to win first place at the Washington State Girls B State Track Meet in Cheney last weekend. "I'm just in shock," Abbey said after finishing the race in 5:30.3. "I didn't think I'd be here after missing the first three meets of the season." Abbey was one of a group of Waitsburg students who traveled to Japan in late March. That and a late basketball season delayed a normal start to the track season for Abbey. A grandstand full of cheering people gave Abbey an adrenaline charge in the final stretch.

MY RECIPES

Luke Chavez

Pizza with White Sauce

As we move into the backyard growing season, I am always looking for flexible recipes that can be a foundation to whatever ingredients are ripe and ready to harvest. This splendid pizza has a flavorful garlic and herb white sauce base that pairs beautifully with any number of fresh seasonal topping combinations. From asparagus in the spring, corn and tomatoes in summer, to mushrooms in the fall, this versatile pie is a favorite in my kitchen all year long.

Ingredients:

For the Dough:

- 3 ¾ cups bread flour
- 2 teaspoons kosher salt (or 1 teaspoon table salt)
- 1 ½ cups warm water
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons instant yeast
- 1 tablespoon olive oil

For the Sauce:

- 1 cup whole milk
- 1 bay leaf
- Pinch ground nutmeg
- Pinch ground white pepper
- 1 ¼ tablespoons butter
- 3 garlic cloves, minced

- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon fresh thyme, minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh sage, minced
- Salt

Optional toppings:

- Sliced provolone cheese
- ½ bunch asparagus, shave lengthwise into ribbons
- Olive oil
- Salt
- 2 to 3 spring onions, white and green parts, chopped
- Mozzarella cheese, grated
- Parmesan Cheese, grated

Directions:

Make the dough: Sift together flour, yeast, sugar, and salt into large mixing bowl. Pour in the water and oil. Mix with wooden spoon until dough forms together. Knead on floured work surface for 5 minutes, then cover with kitchen towel and let rest for 3 minutes. Then knead for an additional 5 minutes until smooth.

Cover dough and let rest for 20 minutes. On floured surface, stretch rested dough out in four directions, then fold back onto itself, back into a ball. Place dough in bowl, cover with towel, and let it proof for about 1 hour and 20 minutes. Dough should double in size.

Divide into 2 balls for medium sheet pan pizzas, or into 4 balls for small round pizzas. Place balls of dough on floured surface and use your hands to stretch and shape the pizzas. Lightly oil baking sheets (if using) and dust with flour or corn meal before laying out crust. Lightly cover with towel while oven heats and toppings are prepared.

Place pizza stone in center rack (if using). Preheat oven to 500 degrees.

Make the sauce: In a small saucepan, combine the milk, bay leaf, nutmeg, white pepper, and a pinch of salt. Set over medium-high heat and bring just almost to a boil. Careful not to scald. Lower heat and keep warm. Next, melt the butter in a saucepan over medium heat. Add the garlic and sauté for 30 seconds until just lightly fragrant. Add the flour and whisk constantly for 2 to 3 minutes to cook the roux. Butter and flour will be foamy and just starting to turn lightly golden brown with a sweet nutty smell. Pour the warm milk in a steady stream while continuing to whisk. Whisk smooth and bring to a gentle boil, then reduce heat to simmer until thickened, about 3 to 4 minutes more. When sauce is thick and silky smooth, take off the heat, remove bay leaf then stir in the minced thyme and sage. Season to taste with salt and set aside.

Assemble pizza: In a mixing bowl, toss the asparagus ribbons with a drizzle of olive oil and a pinch of salt. Then, spread an even layer of white sauce over each pizza crust surface, stopping about 1/2-inch from the edge. Top sauce with a single layer of provolone slices. Over the cheese, spread a layer of the asparagus and onions, then top that with a thin layer of both mozzarella and parmesan.

Transfer pizza to oven, and bake for 10 to 15 minutes, until crust is golden, and cheese is bubbly. A little bit of charring on the crust will just add to the authentic pizza flavor. Allow to rest for a few minutes before slicing. Serve with crushed chili flakes and grated parmesan.

Notes:

Pizza stones or tiles are a great way to get a nice crispy crust. The stone must be placed in the oven while it preheats. Alternatively, you can use a heavy sheet pan or round metal pizza pan. Large cast iron skillets also work great.

This pizza dough is easy enough for a quick weeknight dinner and creates a delightful crust that will impress a crowd. With this garlic white sauce as a base, you can experiment with your favorite seasonal toppings. Some great combinations include mushrooms and olives; left-over grilled chicken with sweet peppers and cherry tomatoes; or spinach and feta. Get creative and enjoy!

Utah Road Trip

The road trip to see the Utah National Parks was planned to arrive in Moab, Utah, on Saturday afternoon. A SERVICE BRAKE SYSTEM light beeped on the Tahoe on the way to Moab. The speedometer was not accurate, and the cruise control would not work. We continue to drive using GPS to gauge our speed.

When we arrived in Moab, we soon discovered that it was the weekend of the Moab car show. So, we dragged the gut with the other “old” cars and waved from my 20-year-old Tahoe.

We spent Saturday afternoon at Dead Horse Point State Park. The visitor's center was closed when we arrived. We drove to the spot where the cowboys ran some wild Mustangs into a natural canyon. They took some of the horses with them. According to the website, the horses left behind were trapped with no food or water and jumped to their deaths off the point.

We had our ticket to Arches National Park on Sunday at 7 a.m. I did not tell Allen until we arrived home, but we had “Buddy” in the Tahoe.

Buddy was very knowledgeable about the National Parks. He would let us know what was coming up and where to stop. He gave us the history of the area. So, on “Buddy's” advice, we stopped at the Courthouse Towers viewpoint and walked around the Balance Rock. We saw the North and South Windows and the Turret Arch. The Delicate Arch and the Sand Dune Arch were must-sees. The trails we took were easy and had great views.

As there was no food or services in the park, we packed a cooler with items to make a sandwich and enjoyed our lunch at the table outside the visitor's center. It was a nice 80-degree day, and the scenery was breathtaking throughout the park.

Sunday afternoon, we spent at Islands in the Sky in Canyonlands National Park. Buddy insisted we stop at the visitor's center and the Shaffer Canyon Overlook. We saw the famous Mesa Arch and walked some trails.

Monday was spent looking for someone in Moab to check out the “service brake system” light. No one in Moab would take the time to help. So, we drove on!

We headed south to the Needles district in Canyonlands. We saw the Newspaper Rock Petroglyphs and walked the Roadside Ruin trail to see the native plants and Puebloan-era structures. We stopped at the visitor's center and continued to the Natural Bridges National Monument, where we saw the four natural bridges.

On Tuesday, we were headed to a third national park, Capitol Reef. On a gravel road to the San Rafael Swell and the Temple Mountain Wash Pictograph, we noticed one of our tires was low on air. Since we were out of a National Park, he couldn't warn us to stay off that road.

Fortunately, a man at a campground offered to fill our tire with his air compressor. We continued five miles to the Globin Valley State Park, covered with sandstone formations called goblins or hoodoos. After walking the grounds, we arrived back at the Tahoe and found the tire was flat!

I asked a young man who was preparing for a hike if he could change our tire. He and his wife changed the tire. We paid the couple for their help and headed to Torrey, Utah, on the west side of Capitol Reef National Park.

On the way, we stopped in Hanksville to check the tire's air pressure and had dinner at a great place called Stan's Burger Shak. We drove through Capitol Reef, mostly in the dark, on the way to Torrey, where we had booked a hotel.

A few miles west of Torrey was a town called Bicknell. At Parts City Auto we got the tire repaired, and they checked to make sure the bearings were not bad due to the SERVICE BRAKE SYSTEM issue. We drove back to Torrey to see Capitol Reef in the daylight.

We drove through the park and ate our packed lunch on the grounds at Fruita Gifford House. We each bought a famous Gifford pie, as “Buddy” said it was a must, and enjoyed the afternoon.

After lunch, we drove south to Escalante Petrified Forest State Park, where there was little to see. So, we left and headed to Kodachrome Basin State Park. It was a little overcast and not what we expected.

Very beautiful views and scenery were found at the Grand Staircase Escalante National Monument. We walked the trails and then drove north to Panquish, Utah.

The plan was to stay the night in Panquish and enter Bryce National Park on Thursday. But we received news from home that a family member had become ill. The plans were changed to go home as family is more important than a road trip.

We ate dinner at the restaurant connected to the hotel on Wednesday night. As we were being seated, I joked, “Don't eat the special. When the waiter came, he told us the special was chicken stew. He was from Paugh and explained how the chicken stew was made. We all ordered the special.

The following day after a light breakfast, we headed for home. Thank goodness the GPS monitored our speed, as the speedometer still was not working. We had a twelve-hour drive ahead of us to get to Waitsburg.

The twelve-hour drive turned into fourteen hours as we all got a mild case of food poisoning from eating the special. We did not stop for lunch or dinner, but restroom stops were a must every half hour!

We arrived home late Thursday night. Everyone was feeling better by Friday, and the Tahoe got fixed by Jay at Jay's Garage in Dayton.

When on a road trip, learn how to change a tire before you go and DON'T EAT THE SPECIAL!

And thanks to my sister, Sandra, take “Buddy” with you if you go to a National Park. Buddy's real name is Dave, and he narrates your trip from an app. He is really good.

The family member is feeling much better, thank goodness.
