Port hears city's plan to run treatment plant pipe along railroad right of way

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Columbia Port Commissioners held their regular meeting at 5 p.m. on July 11, 2023, in the port office. Commissioners present were Genie Crowe, Seth Bryan, Johnny Watts, and the Executive Director, Jennie Dickinson.

Dayton Mayor Zack Weatherford gave a presentation on using the port's railroad right-of-way to lay sewer lines for the city's new wastewater treatment plant project. The pipe would generally be laid on the north side of the track connecting the gravity sewer line at Commercial and Stedman Roads to the area near the proposed discharge point for the plant. The port commissioners did not object to the plan.

The commissioners had discussed a letter Dickinson had written supporting the sale of the Columbia Pulp property to any buyer who planned to use the facility for manufacturing rather than sell the property and equipment piecemeal. Watts thought Dickinson overstepped her authority by sending such a letter. Dickinson said the letter was within her purview as the Economic Development Director. The two other commissioners did not question her power to do so.

During the discussion of the Lyon's Ferry Campground, Watts repeated his demand to see the documentation that KOA requires the existence of pull-through campsites for their franchisees. Watts seemed concerned that the operators were misleading the port into assisting with improvements at the Port-owned facility and questioned if KOA requirements existed.

The KOA standards, including the requirement for the pull-through site, can be found at <https://ownakoa.com>.

Dickinson informed the commissioners that she is participating as a steering committee member for a regional tourism marketing effort called "Visit Walla Walla Project."

Dickinson said there had been a tour of the colocation center for the port's broadband project before the meeting. Representatives from the three participating service providers, PocketiNet, Columbia iConnect, Inland Cellular, and contractors involved with the project's construction, were at the tour.

Kelly Hinds was given an emotional farewell by those present at the meeting as she retired from her position.

The next meeting of the Port Commissioners is scheduled for 5 p.m., August 9, 2023.

Rural Library District still at risk

New interim director announces changes, Ruffcorn increases demands

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Board of Directors for the Columbia County Rural Library held their regular meeting on Monday, July 17, in the Delaney Room. The meeting was attended by the public, in person and on Zoom. Board Chair Jay Ball, board members Chuck Beleny, Kevin Rust, and Sharon Mendal were joined by Interim Director Ellen Brigham. Vice Chair Karin Spann was not in attendance.

The meeting opened with Tanya Patton presenting a detailed history of Dayton's library and the community's efforts to secure the public library's future by creating the Columbia County Rural Library District. After the city struggled with funding the library, citizens rallied to find a more effective funding model.

The board worked through its agenda for the evening, which included discussing the district's drug policy and approving paying the bills.

Rust proposed suspending some expenditures until after the election. Board Chair Jay Ball said the library's activities should continue unchanged as the petition works through the system. The board tabled the discussion until the next meeting.

Approximately forty members of the public attended the meeting at the library and on Zoom. Ball opened public comment, which was focused on the library petition. Most speakers who supported the petition said they did not want the library to close but wanted the offending books moved from the children's section or the library. One person suggested some of the offending books could be kept off the shelves and shipped to patrons who wished to check them out.

"Books should be moved out of reach of children and monitored," said one audience member.

Chair Ball interjected, asking the new interim director to give details from her director's report in the July newsletter.

Brigham said, "I know that I am entering this position, it's the third day, at a time of a lot of divisiveness and even anger. So we want to make some changes to give everybody a better library experience, everybody, people on both sides, in the middle, everybody."

She said that first the library will be moving the entire young adult non-fiction section upstairs to be combined with adult non-fiction section. She said this will make it easier for adults of all ages to know where to look for material, including subjects like college prep. This should also give parents with young children peace of mind to browse the children's section downstairs.

After Ball returned the meeting to public comment, Jessica Ruffcorn, a Dayton resident who submitted the petition to dissolve the Rural Library District spoke on its status. She started by saying she and her group had heard rumors about books being moved.

"I personally was very excited to hear that the rumor was true. Before getting into the nitty gritty details that I am sure the room is eager to hear from me about, I want to thank Ellen with a sincere heartfelt thank you. This is an amazing positive step forward for the library and for our community going forward.

Next, Ruffcorn said she would answer the question she thought was on everyone's mind, "will the LIBRARY - PAGE 4

AT THE LIBERTY:

“Indiana Jones and the Dial of Destiny”

THE TIMES

DAYTON—Harrison Ford returns to the role of the legendary hero archaeologist for this highly anticipated final installment of the iconic franchise-- a big, globe-trotting, rip-roaring cinematic adventure. According to the Rotten Tomatoes website, “Daredevil archaeologist Indiana Jones races against time to retrieve a legendary dial that can change the course of history. Accompanied by his goddaughter, he soon finds himself squaring off against Jürgen Voller, a former Nazi who works for NASA.” The critics on that website rate this movie as 69% favorable, but the audience gave it an 88%. The audience summary was “With plenty of entertaining action and a few surprising twists, Indiana Jones and the Dial of Destiny ends the series on a high note.”

This movie is rated PG-13 for sequences of violence and action, language, and smoking. The IMDb parental guide says that this movie has moderate levels of violence and gore, and mild levels of profanity, alcohol/ drugs/smoking, as well as mild levels of frightening and intense scenes. Runtime is 154 minutes.

The Missoula Children’s Theater returns to Dayton to provide theater training for 6 days for children ages 6 and older. At the end of the workshop the children put on two performances (Aug. 11 and 12) of the play – “The Secret Garden”. Children (age 6 and older) must register (free) to be in the cast or attend the workshops (rehearsals are Aug. 7-11). Registration is open August 1 and 4 (Tues and Fri) at 2-5 pm.

Our free kids’ movies continue through July 28 on Tuesday and Friday afternoons. Please see the Liberty Theater website for details and the schedule for upcoming movies. A special discounted price of $2 for a small drink and small popcorn is available.

WALLOWA-WHITMAN OFFICIALS REOPEN PITTSBURG LANDING CAMPGROUND

THE TIMES

JOSEPH, ORE. — The Wallowa-Whitman National Forest will reopen the Pittsburg Landing Campground on Friday, July 14. It has been closed since June 28 due to increased conflict between visitors and an adult bear habituated to human food, explains Sweyn Wall, Recreation Manager for the Hells Canyon Recreation Area.

“Our crews have been closely monitoring this situation,” said Wall. “It’s been several weeks since the bear was last seen near people. It has been observed eating natural food sources, which is a good sign.”

The Forest requires proper food storage in the Pittsburg Landing area to balance visitor and wildlife safety with recreation access. Visitors to the site will need to store and use food and other attractants in a “bear-resistant manner.”

This requirement is intended to reduce conflicts between humans and wildlife, said Jamey Basye, Hells Canyon National Recreation Area Deputy District Ranger.

“Proper storage of food, trash, and other attractants is an important component of our decision to reopen Pittsburg Landing Campground,” said Basye. “Minimizing readily accessible food sources for wildlife will help reduce some of the safety concerns that led to the campground closure in June.”

Bears, mountain lions, and other wildlife can become dangerous when associating people with accessible food sources. These food-conditioned animals often can’t be scared away or successfully relocated to other areas. Should they continue to return to areas occupied by humans in search of food, the animals may ultimately be euthanized for public safety.

CWWFD#2 ISSUES BURN BAN FOR JULY 17 — SEPTEMBER 5

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG—Columbia-Walla Walla Fire District 2 announced a burn ban in effect from July 17 to September 5, 2023, for the entire district, including the City of Waitsburg.

The ban is an annual precaution and has gone into effect a week earlier than last year. Interim Fire Chief Coulter Mohny said the department had hoped a ban would not be necessary this year. However, the district is experiencing drier than normal conditions and increased fire incidents. He said the ban period is subject to change due to weather and other conditions.

For further questions regarding the burn ban, contact CWWCFD2 at clerkfire2@hotmail.com or reach out directly to Mohny.

OBITUARY

John Erick Stockton

October 25, 1930 – July 9, 2023

John Erick Stockton passed away peacefully at Dayton General Hospital on July 9, 2023. He was born on October 25, 1930, in Moline, Illinois to Homer and Alice Stockton. His family later moved to Davenport, Iowa. He attended schools in Davenport, Iowa where he was involved in football and track and field. After high school he attended Augustana College in Rock Island, Illinois. During his college years, he continued to be involved in football and track. His college career was interrupted when he enlisted in the Air Force during the Korean War. He was stationed at Fairchild Air Force base in Spokane, Washington. While he was stationed in Spokane, he fell in love with the Northwest climate and country. When he finished his term in the Air Force, he enrolled in Eastern Washington State College. While there, he met Leah Oates where she was working on a degree in Education. On March 18, 1956 they were married in Richland, Washington and thus began their marriage of 67 years. After graduating from Eastern, they began their teaching careers in Greencreek, Idaho, where they were half the staff. While there, their three children, Stan, Dawn, and Kim were born. After they lived in Greencreek, Idaho, they moved to Harrison, Idaho where John taught and coached.

John Erick Stockton
October 25, 1930 – July 9, 2023

From Harrison, they moved to Dayton, Washington where John continued his teaching and coaching career at Dayton High School. John enjoyed teaching Biology, Chemistry, and Physical Education and was passionate about coaching football and track. He was always eager to expand upon his knowledge of science and so, during summers, he attended National Science Foundation seminars, "so he could learn them kids". During summers, he also worked various jobs such as painting buildings, driving wheat truck, and working for Green Giant as the foreman of the bug crew.

John retired from teaching in 1985. He continued being involved in coaching by working with the football and track athletes.

He is survived by his wife Leah, his son Stan (Kathy) in Cibolo, Texas, his daughter Dawn in Denver, Colorado, and his daughter Kim, in Moscow, Idaho. Grandchildren include Ian, (Ashley), Allan, Helen, Joshua, Benjamin (Erin), and great grandchildren, Cyrus, and Dekker.

There will be a celebration of life at a later date.

A special thank you to the amazing and wonderful doctor and nurses who cared for John at Dayton General Hospital. Corbeill Funeral Home of Dayton is caring for the family. www.corbeillfuneralhomes.com

ROAD CONSTRUCTION AT SUDBURY ROAD LANDFILL BEGINS JULY 17

WALLA WALLA — Customers at the Sudbury Road Landfill should expect delays starting Monday, July 17, as construction begins on the Landfill Roadway & Compost Pad Improvement project.

Construction began at the compost pad on July 17. The compost pad will be closed during this work, and all green waste and compost customers will be directed to the temporary staging area at the active pit.

Construction at the entrance to the landfill is expected to start on July 24 and should take the contractor no more than ten working days to complete. There will be night work for this phase to minimize the impact on landfill customers.

During construction, flaggers will be present at the entrance during the day to allow sanitation trucks priority access to the public scale. Landfill customers should expect delays and gravel roads at the entrance.

The work consists of repairs and full reconstruction of the asphalt at the entrance and compost pad of the 1970s facility.

The City of Walla Walla Landfill-Sudbury Road is located at 238 E. Alder St, Walla Walla.

Information about this project is available here: <https://www.gowallawalla.us/current-projects/2022-landfill-pavement-improvements> petition to dissolve the library go away, and unfortunately the answer to that is no.”

She explained that the petition is in the hands of the county auditor, If signatures are certified, it will go to the library board who must accept it and place it on the November ballot.

Ruffcorn said that didn't mean all hope is lost though. She said she asked the community involved in the petition where they stood after hearing books were being moved. Though it started with inappropriate books in the children's section, the lack of action by the director and library board had created distrust and raised many new questions and issues to be addressed.

Ruffcorn presented the following demands to the library board:

1. She and those involved in the petition would like to see a complete list of the books being moved. She said there are books not in YA section that are in question.

2. The library board must revise the policy on collection development so the books cannot be moved back in November, or that new books won't be added that bring up the same issues.

3. Revise the challenged book policy; “as previously we were told that any challenge brought to the board or director would be turned down.”

4. The library must “break away” from its relationships with Washington Library Association (WLA) and the American Library Association (ALA).

5. The resignation of Jay Ball “on the grounds of him attending and creating a presentation that showed the community of Dayton and its citizens in a bad light to the WLA without the knowledge or approval from the rest of the board.”

6. The last issue was the budget which she said was out of control. “There are way more tax dollars being used than what is needed to run a successful library,” Ruffcorn said. “However, because the library was set up as a permanent taxing district, I understand that “We the People” cannot hold the board to any promise of compromise to reduce the budget, each year they can take the same amount or raise it more.” She was not sure how to solve the issue but would be open to hearing ideas or plans the board may have.

She continued, “Had we been able to have discussions about these issues at the get go, this all could have been settled by just moving the books, but now by coming to the meetings other isues have come to light. You (the board) refuse to answer questions at the meetings and won't respond to emails or our requests to meet.”

Ruffcorn told the board that a “no” answer is an answer. If it wanted those involved with the petition to help campaign to save the library, the board might want to reconsider its position and come to the table for discussion.

The last speaker, Vicki Zoller, challenged the attendees to remember the social contracts taken out by communities to care for those who are the least of us. She pointed out that those at the meeting are not the people who will be affected by the closing of the library.

“Not one of you would be affected because you have assets. You have the money to buy the books you want, to go online and access the internet, have computers, stream games and your programs. You have everything you need. It won't affect you,” she said.

To those proposing the dissolution of the district, she said “You think you can shut it down, wipe it all clean, and everybody is going to be happy and fine. You are ripping this community apart.”

Public comment was concluded and the meeting adjourned.

So Much Happening, So Little Time

By Vicki Sternfeld-Rossi | THE TIMES

Insanity always rules at the California DMV, and this time was no different. I wisely scheduled an appointment, only to find it didn't show on the DMV system. After a tortuous three-and-a-half hours, I finally passed my test and got my license. All names are spelled correctly and typically the worst picture.

While Daniel has been in Europe, I have been diligently weeding, gardening, and just beginning to reap what should be a fantastic bounty. Timing not being on my side, I expect the full vegetable explosion to happen while I visit Daniel in Europe. I told my neighbors to please avail themselves rather than let my efforts go to waste.

My trip to meet Daniel started with a two-hour delay and five gate changes, but I finally arrived in London: the good news, it was an empty flight with plenty of room.

The original plan for after I arrived was to meet at the hotel and go for a quick local pub dinner. As usual, Daniel decided he didn't want bad food, so we texted back and forth from two different airports and taxis, to agree on a place. I made the reservations on the road.

I will never again complain about the traffic in Los Angeles because London has the most miserable traffic I have ever seen. The streets are crowded, narrow, and curvy, and they drive on the wrong side of the road. On the way to our first dinner, we took an Uber and jumped out a half mile from the restaurant because walking was quicker.

The following day we dropped off the tea I brought from the U.S. for Daniels' boss (yes, I get the irony of bringing tea to England.) Finding ourselves near Oxford Street, we went shopping. Selfridges is an upscale department store with a lunch counter serving, among other things, caviar, oysters, and champagne; the perfect mid-afternoon snacks. Dinner that night was an experience. We ate at Sexy Fish, an Asian restaurant though highly recommended by many people; it had horrible food and the worst DJ ever.

The next day was close to perfect for me. We braved the lines and made it into Wimbledon. We snagged front-row seats (no tickets required) to a great doubles match. We walked the grounds, ate Cornish pasties, Scotch eggs with beer and wine.

Vicki Sternfeld-Rossi

A perfect seat for a doubles match at Wimbledon.

The following day, we were up at dawn to catch the 8:00 a.m. train to Amsterdam, the only way to travel. Comfortable seats, spacious cars, big windows, breakfast and snacks included. Our hotel is in the Hague district, with over one-hundred embassies and the International Court for war crimes and crimes against humanity.

We were not called for jury duty, but we did spend the afternoon at the Mauritshuis Museum, which houses a huge collection of Rembrandts and other Dutch Artists. Unfortunately, we were not able to get into the Vermeer Exhibit; advanced tickets are required.

The next day, our first stop was the Van Gogh Museum, and then on to the Anne Frank House, one of my bucket list items. A heartbreaking and sobering experience that serves as a reminder that the atrocities are still with us and need to be at the forefront of our consciousness. Humanity needs the reminder.

We needed a relaxing quiet change, so into full tourist mode, we took a canal tour, which included a Heineken tour. Fun, informative, and a good way to learn about Amsterdam neighborhoods and enjoy a beer.

The day ended with Daniel coming down with the flu. He's in bed, and I'm off to see the rest of The Hague museums.

Wine of the Week

Pike Road 2022 Pinot Gris

By Paul Gregutt | THE TIMES

There's Pinot Grigio and Pinot Gris. The same grape from two quite different places. If Pinot Grigio conjures up notions of overpriced, underfruited, ubiquitous Italian plonk for you, as it does for me, don't give up on the grape. Oregon Pinot Gris is a different creature entirely. If you have never had a truly brilliant example, here's the one to try. Pike Road is the sister winery to Elk Cove. The fresh, ripe, lively fruit flavors in this new release showcase fresh pears in particular, with further highlights of orange and grapefruit. The natural acidity adds a sleek 'cut' to the palate, accented with a hint of wet stone. This wine has an extra 'it' factor that ramps up its intensity and sheer deliciousness. It's a fruit-packed white wine that is perfect for sipping through summer and fall, right on up to that Thanksgiving dinner.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago

July 18, 2013

A childhood's worth of memories floods back for Kay Baker as she peruses the photos and memorabilia that she and friend Mary Phillips set up two weeks ago as part of the Huntsville history exhibit now showing at the Wilson-Philips house on the grounds of the Bruce Mansion. "When most people drive from (Waitsburg) to Dayton they don't even know Huntsville is there," said Baker. "They don't know it exists. And I want them to know there was actually a town there. It was a nice little community." It was a community that Kay (Huwe) Baker and Mary (Liebermann) Phillips shared as young girls. Baker, the youngest of nine children born to Robert and Hazel Huwe, grew up on old State Highway 410 (now U.S. Highway 12) across the road from the current Wilbur-Ellis plant. Her family's home sat next to the old Perfection Flour mill. Both structures are gone except for the mill's storage warehouse – the medium-sized white painted barn with two cupolas astride the roof which still stands just south of the highway and east of the Poverty Lane and Sorghum Hollow turn-offs. Photographs in the exhibit show both the house and the mill in their hey-days.

MY RECIPES Luke Chavez

Tuna Salad Sandwiches

Despite the summer heat, we have been busy working on some overdue home and garden projects. Sometimes after working all afternoon, the idea of standing over a hot stove to make dinner feels like a particularly cruel form of punishment. Thankfully, with all the fresh vegetables this time of year, it is easy to make a whole meal out of various fabulous salads. This week, I researched some recipes for tuna salad to satisfy a sudden craving. While some versions of this deli staple can be disappointingly bland in flavor, this bright tuna salad is enlivened with a burst of lemon zest and a bounty of fresh herbs.

Ingredients:

- 10 to 12 ounces canned tuna, drained
- 2 to 3 celery stalks, diced
- ¼ cup white or red onion, diced
- ¼ cup green olives, chopped
- 2 to 3 garlic cloves, minced
- 2 tablespoons fresh chives, minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh tarragon, minced
- 1 tablespoon fresh dill, minced
- 1 fresh jalapeno, seeded and chopped (optional)
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- Zest and juice of one lemon
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- ¼ to ½ cup mayonnaise
- Salt and fresh ground black pepper

Options for serving:

- Fresh salad greens
- Pickled sweet peppers
- Slices of bread
- Sliced cheddar for melts

Directions:

In a mixing bowl, combine the tuna, celery, onion, olives, garlic, fresh herbs, jalapeno (if using), paprika and the lemon zest. Use a fork to flake the tuna and evenly combine the ingredients, being careful not to overly mix.

Next add the lemon juice and olive oil, stirring gently to combine. Then, add the mayonnaise and mix until just combined. Season to taste with salt and black pepper. Cover and let chill in the refrigerator for at least 30 minutes to allow the flavors to meld.

Toast bread and assemble sandwiches with greens, sweet peppers, and a generous portion of the tuna salad.

Notes:

As it is the main ingredient, look for the best canned tuna you can find, such as wild and line-caught varieties. Either packed in water or oil will work for this recipe; however, I tend to think the oil packed has a superior flavor. For this recipe you will need two standard cans of tuna, which usually come in 5 or 6-ounce sizes. I have sometimes found large 12-ounce cans in some stores.

As with many recipes for tuna salad, there is a lot of room for substitutions or additions. Instead of the green olives you could try using capers, or even chopped pickles. If using dried herbs instead of fresh use the ratio of 1 teaspoon dried for 1 tablespoon fresh.

I served this on a toasted pumpkernickel bread from a bakery in Walla Walla, but it would be lovely with any favorite sandwich bread such as French, sourdough, or whole wheat. I also served it with fresh salad greens from our garden and some Mama Lil's peppers. With an ice-cold glass of rosé, it was a perfect summer meal on the deck.

For an alternative way of serving, try making tuna melts. Spoon the tuna salad on slices of toasted bread to make open face sandwiches. Cover the tops with slices of mild or sharp cheddar, and place on a baking sheet. I like to top my cheese with a pinch of paprika. Then place in an oven under the broiler, and toast until cheese is melted, about 3 to 5 minutes.

Enjoy!
