Coach Bartlow Resigns

LONGTIME WHS FOOTBALL AND TRACK COACH MOVES ON TO WALLA WALLA'S PIONEER M.S.

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Waitsburg coach and physical education teacher Jeff Bartlow described his recent resignation as “the end of an era,” after investing 17 years of his career in Waitsburg. Bartlow recently accepted a position as a counselor at Pioneer Middle School – the same position he held before coming to Waitsburg in 1999, where he was WHS head football coach for 16 years.

Bartlow said he had been considering a career change for some time, but that the job opening at Pi Hi came at the last minute, opening on July 28.

“I knew I was going to be doing something different, but there are only a couple of places I would be willing to move,” he said. He said he also hoped to retire in Walla Walla.

While the new position will be a challenge (Bartlow said wearing pants instead of shorts is a definite drawback), it is not new territory. In fact, Bartlow began work on Monday, in the very same office in which he worked in the early 1990s.

Bartlow graduated from Idaho State University, where he played football, earning an education degree in 1985. He taught sixth grade and coached in Rardan, Wash. before returning to school at Oregon State University where he earned his master's in school counseling.

He spent from 1990 to 1999 counseling and coaching football at Pi-Hi before accepting a coaching/teaching position in Waitsburg.

Bartlow said working Waitsburg has been “an absolute gem of a job,” but the job that he left was an awesome job as well. He said he left Pi-Hi only because he wanted to explore his options as a coach and took advantage of the opportunity to be a head football coach.

“We've had a great time here and it is an absolutely beautiful place to raise a family. We live right across the street from the gym. It's really been a perfect job and we've had a great time here,” Bartlow said.

Bartlow said the decision to leave was “gut-wrenching” and hard to accept, but he is pleased with what has been done and accomplished during his time here. He also appreciates the unique opportunities his position has afforded his own family.

INNOVATIO PULP PROCESSING AND FRONTIER RAIL ALSO TOPICS FOR PORT OF COLUMBIA COMMISSIONERS

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Allen Litzenberger, owner of 4-Point Construction in Walla Walla, is building a second building at the Blue Mountain Station, according to Port of Columbia manager Jennie Dickinson, at the port commissioner meeting, last week.

“It looks like it will be done quickly,” she told the board. Dickinson said a traffic study and SEPA study are not required, and that the building permit has already been approved.

Design meetings with the port planner, engineers from Anderson Perry, and an architect, are currently underway to determine the layout of the building, in order to take advantage of the railroad siding, Dickinson told the commissioners.

“We need to make sure there is enough room in back for semis,” she added.

Four 1500 sq. ft. spaces in the building will be available for lease, and there are already three interested parties, according to Brad McMasters, economic development coordinator for the Port. Three alcohol distilleries, two new ones, and one interested in expanding,

COLUMBIA COUNTY FAIR COMING SEPT. 9 – 11

DAYTON – The Columbia County Fair is less than a month away, and this year's Fair Board has been hard at work all year planning the many activities for this year's fair: Some traditional and some brand new.

The Columbia County Fair runs from Sept. 9 – 11 this year, will feature a new headliner Friday night – a performance by the Wenatchee Youth Circus. The circus starts at 7 p.m. and is sponsored by Columbia REA.

The Rascal Rodeo, always a crowd favorite, takes place Saturday morning from 9:30 – 11:30. Saturday night will again feature Mutton Bustin' at 5:30 p.m., and then the Jackpot Rodeo, beginning at 6.

The annual demolition derby at the fair starts at noon Sunday.

Many fair favorites return this year, including livestock showing and judging, KidZone, live entertainment on the midway, Horse Show, Church in the Chicken Chapel, and the Ice Cream Social.

Swimmers and paddlers hit the water at the Lyons Ferry State Park on Saturday morning to participate in the Fourth Annual Swim the Snake fundraiser. The annual event is a fundraiser for the Blue Mountain Resource Conservation and Development Council and the Dayton and Pomeroy swim teams. This is the first year that paddlers were included in the event. Participants leave shore from the park and swim or paddle to the Lyons Ferry Marina.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago August 24, 2006

The Waitsburg Cardinal Football Program began workouts last week in preparation for the Sept. 1 opener against Enterprise (Ore.) in Waitsburg. These returning lettermen will lead the team in the 2006 campaign. Jeff Hofer, John Gertsch, Tyson Cole, Aaron Leal, Dakota Hopkins, Austin Dabulskis, Adam Fitzhugh, Morgan Baker, Fred Cunz, Josh Wilson, Cole Janovich, Nick Cloin, Jeremy Nichols, Kellen Gerke.

At least one home has been lost and Dayton and Columbia County has been enveloped in a smoky curtain as dry lightning Monday night ignited tiner-dry fuels in three separate locations. The residence of Lester and Jana Eaton in Crall Hollow was lost Tuesday, according to Jennie Dickinson of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce.

Rep. Cathy McMorris will present a $20,000 check to the City of Waitsburg Friday at 9 a.m. at City Hall. Mayor Martin Dunn will be on hand to accept the check from Rep. McMorris. The funds, granted by USDA Rural Development, will allow the City to purchase a new street sweeper.

Twenty-Five Years Ago August 22, 1991

A feature article in the Sunday, August 11 Union-Bulletin by writer Jeremy Meyer has created some interest in Waitsburg's favorite storyteller, Berger Chase. His one-liners, appearing weekly in The Times, have brought enquiries from KIRO News in Seattle. They Meyer story went out on the wire, and as of this writing has been reprinted in Yakima, Salem, Oregon and Twin Falls, Idaho, to name just a few. Fame just couldn't happen to a nicer guy.

Superintendent Ed Larsen invited board members to take a walk through the gym. The floor have been re-finished, and 78 like-new lockers, purchased from Walla Walla Country Club, have been installed. The place is in excellent condition, thanks to lots of work this summer by Jim Young and crew and Jeff White and his crew.

Photo caption: The six combines that make up Jim Hansen's working unit are here aligned on a steep sidehill for a picture during last week's harvesting. By the end of the season, Jim and his men will have cut 6000 acres in less than 30 days.

If Waitsburg has a title of "Good Samaritan," then it surely must go to Ralph Rankin. Ralph is not only a good citizen in the area of keeping his own house, lawn, and flower garden in tip condition - he has an eye for city beautification. Ralph has undertaken the project of planting grass, trees, and shrubs on the parking leading into Waitsburg. This has been a summer-long effort, and the grass is now coming along nicely. The "beauty strip" is a fine addition to the town, and will serve to give visitors a welcome first impression of our city.

Mr. George Lowery who has been with the Pillsbury Mills on the Coast has accepted the position of head miller at the Preston-Shaffer Milling Co. here and will work under E.J. Call, superintendent.

A fishing party composed of Roy Allen, Bob Butler, Bill Keve and Dorrell Jones expect to leave Friday for a few days fishing on Butte Creek, in the Umatilla Forest Reserve. Our mouth is all set in anticipation of a couple of good sized trout when the boys get back.

There is to be a Grand Harvest Ball at the Main Street dancing platform Saturday night under the management of Rock St. Jacque. Music will be furnished by the Kinder 6-piece orchestra.

W. H. Ingalls, Dahl Jones, and C. R. Testerman returned home Friday from a fishing trip on the Little Salmon. They report fair success but said it was so cold part of the time that they nearly froze. In fact the morning they came out they went through a little snow on the divide.

Mrs. J. W. Bruce and son Ivan have broken camp at Thayer's and moved home the first of the week and we understand that the Bailey and Cox camps will move in probably the first of next week.

The wheat market is still very stiff, and with no indication of going lower in price, but with every prospect of going higher. We glory in the prosperity of the farmers of this favored land.

COURT NEWS

Columbia County Superior Court August 3, 2016

Trials Set:

-Steven Ray Long, 29, Dayton; charged with 17 counts including theft, drug charges, malicious mischief and burglary stemming from incidents that took place in Feb. and May, 2013. Trial set for Oct. 20-21.

-Curtis A. Jones, 32, Hermiston; charged with illegal possession of a firearm and criminal trespass. Charges stem from an incident with WDFW that occurred in Oct. 2014. Jones is being held in custody on a bench warrant. Trial is set for Aug. 17.

-Joseph John Richter, 31, homeless; charged with violation of uniform controlled substance act - possession of amphetamine, violation of uniform controlled substance act - use of drug paraphernalia, two counts of criminal trespass in the second degree, contempt of court, criminal trespass in the first degree, and reckless burning in the second degree. Global resolution requested. Trial reset to Sept. 14.

Sentencing:

-Justin Brady, 38, Dayton; charged with one count of violation of the uniform controlled substances act - possession of methamphetamine. He accepted a plea agreement to serve 12 months in Columbia County Jail, 12 months of community service, and $830 in fines and fees in exchange for a guilty plea.

-Eric Ryan Vanzandt, 33, Dayton; Charged with Count 2) violation of a protection order - domestic violence, Count 3) assault in the fourth degree - domestic violence, Count 5) obstructing a law enforcement officer. Sentenced to 30 months drug offender sentencing alternative on Count 2, to be converted to 60 months upon violation of DOSA. Sentenced to 364 days on Count 3. Sentenced to zero days on Count 5.

Warrants issued:

-Jazzmen Latay Slack, 25, Richland; charged with five counts of possession of stolen property in the second degree, five counts of possession of another person's identity, and one count of use of drug paraphernalia. Did not appear for resolution hearing. Bench warrant issued.

-Christopher James Martin, 32, Kennewick; charged with one count of violation of controlled substances act - possession of methamphetamine and one count of violation of controlled substances act - possession of Quetiapine (Seroquel). He was arrested on July 1 with an outstanding Walla Walla warrant and pills were found when he was checked into Columbia County jail. He failed to appear for his Aug. 3 arraignment and a bench warrant was issued.

Other:

-Julia L Richardson, 32, Lewiston; charges with one count of violation of controlled substances act - possession with intent to deliver methamphetamine and one count of attempting to elude a pursuing police vehicle. Info was amended with count one dismissed due to insufficient evidence

-Christopher Scott Swan, 47, Dayton; originally charged with indecent liberties attempt - domestic violence in Apr. 2013. He was originally sentenced to 83 days with a suspended sentence of 6 1/2 months and community custody of three years. The state motioned to amend the original incorrect sentence to change the suspended sentence from 6 1/2 months to 11 1/4 months.

-Michael Anthony West, 38, Dayton; charged with one count of violation of a protection order, with two priors. Accepted plea agreement with state recommending 27.5 months in prison followed by 27.25 months of community custody in exchange for guilty plea. Attorney requested more time to review plea agreement.

Call Him 'Coach'

When I was in high school in the outskirts of Vancouver, Wash., our football team sucked. Actually, most of our sports teams did. And I always thought it would be a lot more fun to be at a school that won the state championship.

Waitsburg got to experience a state championship five years ago, when coach Jeff Bartlow led the Waitsburg-Prescott Cardinals to victory in the Tacoma Dome in 2011. In the 2B state championship game that year, the Cardinals crushed Morton/White Pass 33-7, to cap an undefeated season. Coach Bartlow led his team to many league championships as well.

After the 2014 season, Bartlow handed the reins to the Cardinal football team to long-time assistant, Troy Larsen. He had coached the team for 16 years.

Bartlow also coached Waitsburg's track and field team for many years. In the spring of 2013, the WP boys' track team finished third in the 2B state championship meet.

Last week, as we report on Page 1, Bartlow resigned his teaching and coaching positions in Waitsburg, after accepting a counseling job at Pioneer Middle School in Walla Walla.

It's true, I think, that we sometimes make too big a deal out of sports, especially at the expense of many of the other great and important things kids do. But high school sports are one of the few things that draw small communities like ours together. And being the home of a state championship football team was something that Waitsburg and Prescott could be very proud of.

Coach Bartlow is a very competitive person, and whenever I talked to him about his teams, he was always thinking about what his football team could do to win more games, or what his track athletes could do to win more events.

Oregon Produces Olympic Runners Like No One Else

By Rick Maese, The Washington Post

RIO DE JANEIRO - During the Opening Ceremonies, they would have waved a green flag that featured a cartoon duck and marched between the small Olympic teams from Oman and Pakistan. They would have had more athletes than either country.

In fact, had the University of Oregon seceded from the union or somehow been granted sovereignty and entered these Rio de Janeiro Olympics as an independent nation, it'd likely fare quite well. With 18 current and former Ducks competing in track and field events here, the school can lay claim to more Olympic athletes than 113 countries. Its team - which comes from a student body that includes barely 20,000 undergraduates - would be more plentiful than countries with much larger populations: Mozambique, for example, is a nation of more than 25 million and only six are competing at these Games. And Afghanistan has 30 million people and just three Olympians.

How did this happen? "It's like how Kentucky or Duke is for the NBA," said Devon Allen, a junior at Oregon and a gifted hurdler for the U.S. track and field team. "You go to Kentucky to go to the NBA; you go to Oregon to go to the Olympics."

Track and field gets underway Friday, which means Ducks past and present will take center stage at these Olympics for much of the next nine days, including Allen, who competes in the men's 110-meter hurdles; javelin throwers Cyrus Hostetler and Sam Crouser; sprinters English Gardner and Jenna Prandini; decathlete Ashton Eaton; and distance runners Galen Rupp and Matthew Centrowitz.

The track and field mecca is actually much larger than the placid Eugene, Oregon, campus. Some of the country's top clubs are based in Oregon - the Nike Oregon Project, Oregon Track Club Elite and the Nike Bowerman Track Club - and there are at least 41 track and field Olympians who train and live somewhere in Oregon and will compete at these Games for a handful of nations.

"Oregonians are proud people with strong and long-standing connections to athletic excellence," Oregon Gov. Kate Brown said in an email, "and there's nothing better than watching Oregon's members of the U.S. Olympic team compete at a worldwide level. Also, I hope the commentators at Rio 2016 will take the opportunity to set the record straight: The correct pronunciation of our state is ORY-GUN, not ORY-GONE."

None of this is by accident. The school's track and field teams were led for years by legendary coach Bill Bowerman and have a rich history of distance runners - most notably Steve Prefontaine - who became stars running at historic Hayward Field. It certainly didn't hurt that Bowerman is credited with making the first pair of Nike shoes and the footwear giant set up shop in the Portland suburb of Beaverton, pouring millions of dollars into the sport over the years.

"It's all been part of a strategy to be able to give U.S. track and field a home," said Vin Lananna, the Ducks' former track coach who is now an associate athletic director at the school and coach of the men's Olympic team, "somewhere where it's really respected, valued and revered."

Tracktown USA was established as a nonprofit entity that has helped build the sport, luring big events to Eugene, including the past three U.S. Olympic trials. In the process, running culture began to seep into every corner of the state, from the fans who volunteer at events - 4,000 signed up for 2,000 slots at the most recent trials - to the state government, which raised Oregon's lodging tax to help pay to host the 2021 world championships at Hayward Field.

"I'm very excited about what I've seen," Lananna said. "We have the whole state engaged."

An obvious benefactor is the state's flagship university. Robert Johnson, the head track and field coach, is able to recruit the nation's most promising high school athletes and show them that competing for Oregon opens doors.

"We gravitate to the kids who want to be in our program, who know our history and understand what we're doing as coaches," he said. "It's definitely one of the things that's attractive when you're out there recruiting: the ability to continue after college, to pursue professional opportunities."

Once young athletes arrive on campus, they quickly learn that Oregon is unlike any high school program. The athletes are recognized on campus and deal with big expectations. Gardner, a five-time NCAA champ for the Ducks, says she trained like a professional every day. "I wasn't there to have fun. I was there to do my job," she said.

"We hold ourselves to a different standard. If you're not trying to be great, you kind of get lost in the sauce," Gardner said.

When she was being recruited, Gardner obviously knew of the school's legacy of distance runners and struck an agreement with Johnson: They wanted to turn the Ducks into a sprint powerhouse as well.

The result: Five of the Ducks at these Games are female sprinters, including current students Ariana Washington and Deajah Stevens.

"It takes only small match to light a fire, and we wanted to create a bonfire," Gardner said.

GUEST COMMENT

DISCLOSURE OF NESTLE INFORMATION IS TROUBLESOME

By Jim Davison

Overlooked so far is how some folks gained information of Nestle's interest in Waitsburg's water. "Rumor has it" was the reference given in a letter to the editor which appeared in the June 30, 2016 edition of The Times. If Nestle's interest in Waitsburg was discussed during Executive Session at the June 15 Waitsburg City Council Meeting and the "rumor" mentioned in the June 30 letter-to-the-editor came from an attendee within that executive session, that is troublesome, since the purpose of an executive session is to allow confidential discussion of sensitive matters. Such a breach of ethics--if by a council member--is also concerning since council members are expected to remain neutral until ALL relevant facts are gathered upon which to base an informed decision. Posting related information/opinions on Facebook by a council member, even if later deleted, before hearing all information could indicate a lack of impartiality and be considered unethical.

RCW 42.23.070(4) states "No municipal officer may disclose confidential information gained by reason of the officer's position, nor may the officer otherwise use such information for his or her personal gain or benefit." Could passing on such information in order to promote personal beliefs/positions be considered personal benefit? According to information from The Municipal Research and Services Center (MRSC), such a violation of ethical behavior ". . . can result in a penalty of five hundred dollars, in addition to such other civil or criminal liability that might be imposed upon the officer by law, and may be grounds for forfeiture of office." (RCW 42.23.050)

In addition, according to information from MRSC, "It is also possible that disclosure of confidential information may constitute "misfeasance" or "malfeasance" in office or a "violation of the oath of office," which could provide grounds for a recall under RCW 29A.56.110." (<http://mrsc.org/Home/Stay-Informed/MRSC-Insight/April-2013/What-Can-Be-Done-if-an-Elected-Official-Divulges-I.aspx>).

Also, it is my understanding that had action been taken on Council Member Hockersmith's motion at the end of the August 2 Town Hall community input meeting it would have been illegal since it was advertised—and stated at the start of the meeting—that no action would be taken at that meeting.

Claims were made by a council member's spouse in a letter-to-the-editor in the Walla Walla Union Bulletin that officials of Waitsburg overstepped their authority and owed an apology. If the original leaked information regarding Nestle came from a council member due to information gained during executive session perhaps there is another apology—or resignation—due citizens of Waitsburg. Also true if the "leak" was from a city employee.

LETTER

IT'S TOO EARLY TO REJECT NESTLE

Dear Editor,

A reasonable and mature individual, purporting to have the community at heart, upon hearing that a major corporation is interested in establishing a widget factory in their city would and should be gaga, as in Lady Gaga. Heck, color me William Gaga.

I see Waitsburg as the lonely school girl sitting against the wall at the 'sock hop,' just a wishing and a hoping someone will ask her to the dance. Hoping someone will think her worthy of at least one dance. In her mind she says, "Won't someone see me and care?"

In my mind I see her light up as Todd Nestles approaches to ask her to dance.

my son as quarterback was amazing. It blows my mind that that happened. I wouldn't have experienced that if I hadn't moved from Pioneer," he said.

But now that his children have all graduated high school, Bartlow said he was ready for something new. "I heard about the opening at Pi-Hi while I was at a coach's training in Yakima and I knew I had to throw my hat into the ring," he said.

"This is a great opportunity to get back into what I was trained to do more than anything. I have a real compassion and heart for troubled and needy kids. Even in my coaching style I try to help people with what I think is important. It's who I am," Bartlow said.

At 53, Bartlow said a more administrative position is a good challenge and he is excited about jumping back into the counseling world. He said there are seven or eight staff members who are still there from when he first worked at Pi-Hi.

"I can see myself doing this for the next nine years. It's great to return to where I started and finish what I didn't finish here," he said.

Bartlow said he is giving up coaching – at least for a year. He said he has been either coaching or playing for 39 years straight, and is taking this year off. His son Zach is in his senior year playing quarterback for Eastern Oregon University, and the break will afford the Bartlows the opportunity to follow

Zach's games.

Bartlow said he may return to coaching, but it would likely be at Pioneer rather than in Waitsburg, due to time constraints. "If I do anything here, it would have to be helping with Little Giants or a Little League team," he said.

"I just really want to thank the community of Waitsburg for embracing the Bartlow family. We have been embraced here. I want to thank the school district, staff, parents, and especially the athletes," he said.

Bartlow said he and his wife, Lori, who works as the Waitsburg Middle School secretary and athletic director, plan to remain in town for at least a year, if not longer. He said they will continue their involvement with the YoungLife ministry, but are hoping to find new leadership.

Bartlow's resignation was accepted at the Aug. 10 school board meeting. Superintendent Carol Clarke told the board she has a policy of not standing in the way of career advancement or change, so long as a suitable replacement can be found. She recommended that the board accept Bartlow's resignation without stipulations.

Bartlow's departure leaves the district scrambling to fill positions for a physical education teacher, head coach for middle school football, head coach for middle school boy's basketball, head coach for high school track and field, and coaching supervisor. Clarke said applications have already started to trickle in.

I believe I see her heart actually skipped a beat as he approaches. Mind you, she is not thinking about getting into bed with Todd; it's that someone cares enough to ask for a dance. Back to reality: Bette Waitsburg spits on Todd before he could ask for a dance. Spits on him!

I question the motivation of all players, from the hen that started shouting, "The sky is falling," to the offended council person and all those in between. Why, even the editor of The Times didn't need a council decision to declare that Nestle had gotten the boot.

A reasonable adult listens, two ears one mouth theory. Relative to Todd's – er – Nestle's interest in Waitsburg. From Nestle's posture they have not even determined if we meet the requirements as an appropriate location.

To access appropriateness, like any corporation, their policy dictates a detailed evaluation to determine fit and likelihood of success. Their evaluation needs to be done by them at their cost, as it should be. For goodness sakes, let us not spit on them before they ask us to dance.

END OF SUMMER READING PROGRAM CELEBRATION

DAYTON—The summer reading program at Dayton Memorial Library came to an end on Aug. 10 with a celebration featuring ice cream sundaes, games, and announcements of winners of the Summer Reading Challenge. Jamie Finch and Sandy Dare each received $75 in Dayton Dollars from the Chamber of Commerce in the Adult category of the Summer Reading Challenge. Quintin Rapoza won in the Young Adult category, Jack Zanger won in the Elementary category, and Mia Paquette was the winner in the Preschool category. They all received $15 in Dayton Dollars from the Chamber of Commerce. Other prizes were contributed by Dingles, the Weinhard Café, Azure Mountain Botanicals, and Mary's Candies, said Vicki Zoller at the library.

have expressed interest in leasing space in there, said McMasters.

The materials for the new building are expected to arrive on Aug. 16, Dickinson said.

Litzenberger is also in talks with Murray Eggers of Pristine Produce in Walla Walla who wants to build two 28,000 sq. ft. buildings on Port-owned property for a food processing/co-packing facility, according to McMasters.

In the past Eggers has said he will initially employ roughly one hundred employees, all of whom will receive livable wages, and that one half of those will be full-time employees receiving livable wages and benefits.

Frontier Rail / Columbia / Walla Walla short line

Dickinson told the commissioners that the new rail operator, Frontier Rail, LLC, has been getting quotes for the labor on the railroad bridges, and for the rail siding at Blue Mountain Station.

Paul Didelius, the commercial director for Frontier Rail, LLC will present the commissioners with information about rehabilitating the Columbia/Walla Walla short line when they meet on Aug. 19.

There is to be a strategizing meeting, which will include lobbyist Chris Herman from the Washington Public Port Association, later in the fall, Dickinson said.

Innovatio at Cut Stock

On Aug. 9, members of the Community Economic Development Association toured the old Columbia Cut Stock Facility in Dayton, which is now the home of Innovatio, a wheat pulp research and development lab, said Dickinson.

Dickinson showed the commissioners a plate made out of wheat pulp fiber that she said was a prototype for the kinds of products that will be manufactured at the Dayton facility, as soon as the necessary equipment arrives from South Africa, in October.

"It was nice to see activity in Cut Stock," Dickinson told the commissioners.

Council Authorizes Historic District Repeal

INDIVIDUAL PROPERTIES CAN STILL BE LISTED ON DAYTON REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Dayton City Council authorized ordinance No. 1899, following a Public Hearing at a special meeting held in council chambers on Monday night. The Ordinance will allow for the repeal of the south side local register historic district, and the Washington Street local register historic district, and their zoning overlay restrictions, according to city officials.

Between March, 2016 and July, 2016 property owners in the local register historic districts cast two sets of votes in regards to retaining or dissolving the districts, and two thirds of the ballots were in favor of dissolving the districts, according to City Planning Director Karen Scharer.

At the meeting Councilwoman Christine Broughton said she felt the historic districts should have been retained but in an advisory capacity in order to help property owners living in the historic districts.

Councilman Dain Nysoe said he felt the democratic thing to do would be to dissolve the districts based on the majority votes of the property owners. "They resoundingly turned it down," he said.

"The districts were formed by majority vote of the property owners, so the same should be applied now," Nysoe added.

Scharer briefly discussed written testimony received from Greg Griffith with the Wash. Department of Archaeology and Historic Preservation, who cautioned that delisting the local register historic districts will not remove them from the National Register of Historic Places, and that measures should be taken to mitigate the negative impacts of repealing the designations, if the ordinance is adopted.

Scharer pointed out language that has been added to the ordinance stating that individual properties and districts on the National Register of Historic Places would not be affected by adopting the ordinance.

Scharer said written comments were also received from Chris Moore of the Washington Trust for Historic Preservation, who expressed some of the same concerns as Griffith, and from local historic property owner Matt Johnson who expressed his desire to see the districts delisted due to the high cost of homeowner's insurance in the historic district.

Scharer said that property owners have been advised that insurance carriers differ in their policies for historic homes, and that one insurance carrier in Dayton offers reasonable rates.

Oral testimony came from SSSH property owner Marchand Hovrud who spoke to the council about her desire to proceed with dissolving the local register historic districts.

Several steps need to be accomplished in order to implement Ordinance No. 1899, Scharer said. A State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA) review needs to be performed. The Dayton Historic Preservation Commission needs to help craft a policy on which to base the code revisions, and the revisions must be sent to the City Planning Commission for review and recommendations. There will be more public hearings before the City Council makes its final approval of code revisions, she said.

"We are going to hurry up and wait," said Scharer about the process which should take until December to complete.

Scharer also said, "The city does not have a work plan established for implementation of Ordinance No. 1899 and a process needs to be established for removal of recorded notice on title for the dissolved district properties."

Scharer said that five days after publication of the ordinance, property owners may choose to submit nominations for individual listing of their historic property on the Dayton Register of Local Historic Places. Scharer said interested property owners can obtain forms from her at the Dayton City Hall at 111 South First Street.

GERMAN CYCLISTS RALPH AND IMKE LANG VISIT WAITSBURG 25 YEARS AFTER RALPH'S LAST VISIT

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – German bicyclist Ralph Lang said he was surprised to find himself becoming “a bit emotional” as he arrived in Waitsburg last week. Ralph, 46, said he has incredibly warm memories of traveling through Waitsburg with a college pal on a cross country bike trip 25 years ago. That experience was so positive that he wanted to share it with his wife, Imke. On August 1, the couple began a two-year, around-the-world journey together.

The self-described “passionate cyclists” have completed many bicycle tours together, throughout South America and Europe. Ralph said they decided to do something “real big” this time by cycling around the world.

Ralph said he biked from Seattle to Denver with a high school buddy in 1991 and he considers this trip his “revival tour.” He recalls being especially welcomed in Waitsburg where he and his friend set up a tent in someone’s backyard and were interviewed by The Times.

“I’ve always wanted to see the places he discovered and has told me about and I’ve never been to the U.S.,” Imke said. The couple has been married nine years and started their tour “almost” on their anniversary, which was July 28.

Ralph and Imke both teach philosophy and religion at the Gebhard Müller School, an apprenticeship-type school for 16 to 24-year-olds in Germany. Ralph said students at the school are raising money to fund and operate a school for 50 students who essentially work as slaves in quarries in India.

The Langs have taken two years off from their teaching duties, but have incorporated their students and their charity project into the tour. Ralph said they are essentially traveling from their school in Germany to the school their students have funded in India.

They publish details of the trip on their website and hope to garner publicity to raise funds for the India school. They also Skype with their students and include them in interviews to increase cultural understanding and provide English lessons.

The Langs started their journey just this month, but said they have already been amazed at the kindnesses of strangers. Ralph said they were riding down the hot Columbia River Gorge when they realized they wouldn’t be able to refill their water for 60 miles. They had passed a store, but with the strong tailwind, Ralph thought it would take an hour and a half to make it up the hill and back to the store to buy water. As they were debating what to do, “Jack” pulled up on a motorcycle and asked if they needed water. It turns out he is an Iron Man instructor and recognized their plight. He made a quick u-turn and was back in 15 minutes with a gallon of water.

The couple recently began a two year, around-the-world bike tour. Ralph has fond memories of passing through Waitsburg with a buddy on a bike trip 25 years ago.

Left: The Langs commented on the many kindnesses they have experienced from strangers so far. Here, motorcyclist “Jack” drove to a store to bring them a gallon of water as they biked along the Columbia River Gorge in high temperatures.

A bit further down the gorge, a car had stopped and was waiting for the couple to arrive. When they did, the occupant of the car said he had seen the German flag on their bike and wanted to meet them. It turns out that he had fled the German Democratic Republic in 1960 and settled in Rhode Island. He has also bicycled coast-to-coast and just wanted to wish them well.

Ralph said the trip is harder now than when he was 21, but “we suffered then and we’re suffering now, too.” The couple said they hoped to reach Lolo pass and cooler weather by the weekend.

Ralph and Imke said cars and trucks here are much more respectful than elsewhere. “I have cycled in 30 nations and motorists in Washington State are the most respectful I’ve experienced. We want to give them a big “Thank you!”” Ralph said.

Readers can follow Ralph and Imke’s journey and learn more about their project on their website at von-hier-nach-da-de. The site is written in German but can be translated by clicking the “translate” icon.

FFA OFFICERS ATTEND PLANNING RETREAT

TEAM BUILDING ACTIVITIES HELP MEMBERS WORK TOGETHER BETTER

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Waitsburg Chapter FFA officers spent last weekend at an officer’s retreat where they set chapter goals, planned the upcoming year, and practiced working together as a team.

On Sat., Aug. 13, officers Emily Adams (president), Devin Newman (vice president), Laramie Mathews (sentinel), Tom House (treasurer), Devon Harshman (reporter), and Sydney Fowble (secretary) traveled to Spokane with FFA advisor Nicole Abel. Abel organized the trip, but didn’t let the kids in on the plans until they arrived.

The group first visited ESCAPE as part of a team-building exercise. At ESCAPE teams are placed in a themed escape room which is a real life puzzle where the participants must use different elements in the room to unlock clues, solve puzzles, and eventually escape, within a set amount of time.

“It was hard but a lot of fun. We learned a lot about each other and how we work under pressure. It really worked the mind and was a good team bonding activity,” Adams said.

The officers then had fun at Get Air Trampoline Park and spent time setting goals and planning for the coming year before returning to Dayton, where they camped overnight on Wolf Fork Creek. They finished up their planning on Sunday before heading home.

The theme for the coming FFA year is NEAT, an acronym that stands for:

- N – nurturing potential through agriculture education
- E – exploring our future to the best of our ability
- A – allowing personal and chapter growth and development
- T – together through encouraging teamwork and responsibility, we can accomplish our purpose

“I am excited for a busy and productive year.” Abel said. “Last year, the members set the stage; now we are going to keep the ball rolling. The officers are motivated and have many ideas. My job will be to hold the reins and keep them focused on what they can realistically handle. They are busy kids involved in many activities. It is going to be a great year at the high school as a whole.”

PAINT OUT CALL FOR ARTISTS

WALLA WALLA – Carnegie Picture Lab invites twenty-five artists to paint “en plein aire” for four days at picturesque locations in the Walla Walla Valley during the Fourth Annual Margaret Walters Paint Out, Sept 19-23. An artist’s reception and public sale of work created during the week will close the event on Friday evening, Sept. 23.

With support from ArtWalla, Carnegie Picture Lab sponsors the free week of painting. A portion of the proceeds from the sale benefit the Lab, a nonprofit organization that provides art education for elementary school children in the Walla Walla Valley.

Register for the event at <http://www.artwalla.com>. Further inquiries regarding the Paint Out may be referred to Diana Schmidt at 520-0804 or by email to zdianas43@gmail.com

SENSORY FRIENDLY MOVIES AT THE LIBERTY THEATER

DAYTON – A sensory friendly screening of The Secret Life of Pets will be held at 12:30 p.m. on Sat., Aug. 20 at the Liberty Theater. The movie will be shown with dimmed lights and reduced volume and the audience will be able to move around.

This allows children on the autism spectrum and others with sensory processing issues to be able to enjoy going to a movie. There will be a limited amount of free coupons at the door, on a first-come-first-serve basis, for people with disabilities or special needs.

For more information call 520-6237 for contact Alyssa Bailey on Facebook.

The Liberty Theater looks forward to future sensory friendly showings of family movies.

RICHLAND GLASS ARTIST AT WENAHA GALLERY

DAYTON – Alice Beckstrom, a Richland artist who creates new glass pieces from recycled and discarded windows and sliding doors, is the featured Pacific Northwest Art Event artist, Mon., Aug. 13 through Sat., Sept. 10. at Dayton’s Wenaaha Gallery located at 219 E. Main.

Beckstrom’s business motto is, “Recycled, Repurposed, Recaptured into Functional Art.” She collaborates with local glass replacement businesses by picking up their unwanted materials and turning them into art.

Beckstrom has one of her pieces on display in the owner’s box at the Oakland Raiders Coliseum and another in the home of U.S. Congressman Dan Newhouse.

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX

Blueberry Zucchini Cake with Lemon Buttercream

Ingredients

3 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup vegetable oil
3 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 1/4 cups white sugar
2 cups finely shredded and drained zucchini
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 pint fresh blueberries (you can reserve a few for garnish if so desired)

Lemon Buttercream

1 cup butter, room temperature
3 1/2 cups confectioners’ sugar
1 lemon, juice and zest of (about 2 tablespoons)
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/8 teaspoon salt

Instructions

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Prepare two 8-inch round cake pans.
2. Grate a large zucchini (or two small zucchini) and place in a clean dish-towel. Squeeze until most of the liquid comes out. You will want to have 2 total cups of shredded zucchini after it has been drained. Set aside.
3. In a large bowl and using a hand mixer, beat together the eggs, oil, vanilla, and sugar. Fold in the zucchini.
4. Slowly add in the flour, salt, baking powder, and baking soda. Gently fold in the blueberries. Divide batter evenly between prepared cake pans.
5. Bake 35-40 minutes in the preheated oven, or until a knife inserted in the center of a cake comes out clean. Cool 20 minutes in pans, then turn out onto wire racks to cool completely.

Lemon Buttercream

1. Combine butter, sugar and salt and beat till well combined.
2. Add lemon juice and vanilla and continue to beat for another 3 to 5 minutes or until creamy.
3. Fold in zest (If you are piping this buttercream, I recommend leaving out the zest).

My Notes: Ok, so this is not hand copied. I have made this several times and I put a smiley face on my copy. For the frosting, I only used 1 1/2 sticks of butter. Also, unless you buy lemon zest, I’m not sure how one gets two tablespoons. This time, since it is summer, I am going to put the same topping on it as I did with the Lemon Refrigerator Cake. One small package of instant lemon pudding mixed with 1 1/2 c. cold milk. When thickened, add small tub of whipped topping.

I just made this for my son’s birthday, but made it in a 9 x 13 pan. I also didn’t read the recipe well and put in 1 1/2 c. sugar and 1 teaspoon of soda instead of 1/4 teaspoon. I am going to freeze it so I guess I’ll find out in about two weeks if it hurt the recipe.

I made a pan of Peanut Butter Bars from All Recipes.com last week. I don’t have room to add the recipe, but they taste like Reese’s peanut butter cups and it’s a no-bake. I put parchment paper on the bottom so it would not stick to the bottom.

Enjoy

SEEING THE LIGHT

Former Waitsburg resident Cheryl Hansen was driving toward Coppei Elevators last month, on the way to her parents' home on South Fork Coppei Road when she came upon this scene. She said the lighting was so good that she had to stop and take a photo. She was then kind enough to share it with us at The Times.

JUST HORSING AROUND!

Photos by Dena Wood
Model horse enthusiasts from across the Pacific Northwest gathered at Waitsburg Town Hall last weekend for the Sweet Onion Live model horse show hosted by the North American Model Horse Shows Association. This is the second year the event has been held in Waitsburg. Clockwise from top left: Tables of model horses filled Town Hall during the two-day event. Janet Davis stands behind her first place Performance entry in the Natural Trail division. A judge pays close attention to detail as she judges a row of "plastic minis."
