Not exactly walking on water, but the writer did walk through the Columbia River's source before it flowed from Canada through Washington and Oregon to the Pacific Ocean.

A walk across the Columbia River

By Paul Ocker | THE TIMES

CRANBROOK, BC — To most of us Waitsburgers, when we call to mind the Columbia River, we think of the two-mile-wide body of water at Wallula Junction, also known as the McNary Reservoir, or the same one-mile-wide river that bisects the Tri-cities that we cross on our way to Costco.

The fact that only 12 vehicle bridges cross the river between Richland, Wash. and Astoria, Ore., where it meets the mighty Pacific, demonstrates the enormity of the challenge of crossing such a river. However, walking across this river without assistance has been a bucket list item for me, and I met the challenge this past week.

About a six-hour drive from Waitsburg to Spokane, Spokane to the Canadian Border, and on to the town of Cranbrook, British Columbia, led us to our first stop of the night. My first glimpse of the Canadian Rockies whetted my appetite for our continuing trip to Canmore, Alberta. I knew we would see more of the range's towering mountains, turquoise glacial rivers, and mirror-like mountain lakes in the Kootenay and Banff National Parks.

Walking through a park in Cranbrook, I used my bird app to identify an Eastern Blue Jay. The area has the closest population to us here on the West Coast. After staying the night in this touristy railroad town, we set our sights on the bucket list location.

After an hour of driving, we made it to Canal Flats, where we visited the "Source of the Columbia" local park. After a short hike on a somewhat buggy trail, we came to a wetland where water was bubbling from the ground. These springs are fed by the nearby milky Kootenay (Canadian spelling) River, which is in a different basin but higher in elevation, feeding the headwaters of the Columbia through clear springs that percolate through the soil.

Seizing my moment and ensuring that I would not be causing any environmental damage, I strode off the trail, across 50 feet of wetland, and finally over the three-foot-wide stream that is the Columbia River.

The river was never deeper than 18 inches. After I crossed, I turned around and walked back. My not-so-awestruck family members merely shrugged my accomplishment off, saying, "I'm not walking through that swamp." But I did it.

I was awed to touch water that goes into the Columbia Lake, flows about 150 miles north, then turns south towards the United States. After seeing the Columbia River as it bubbles out of the ground, I was struck by the vast irrigated fields along its shores, where grasses and Alfalfa for livestock feed are grown; resorts and golf courses that line the river, as it flows towards Mica Reservoir; then turns south through two dams in Canada; and 12 more dams and reservoirs on the US side of the border.

Within a few months, it will run under the Astoria-Megler Bridge and become part of the Pacific Ocean. No part of the river is untouched by human hands, and what a life-giver it is.

Roll on, Columbia, roll on.

Pool, road work updates at Dayton City Council meeting

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON - Mayor Roger Trump called the Dayton City Council to order at 6:00 p.m., July 9, 2024. Dayton Mayor Roger Trump and Council Members Teeny McMunn, Michael Smith, Laura Aukerman, Joann Patras, Kyle Anderson, and Shannon McMullen were present at City Hall. James Su'euga was not present.

Sheriff Joe Helm updated the council on last month's calls to his office and reminded them that the National Night Out will be held at City Park from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, August 6, 2024. Helm promised plenty of free food and drinks.

Anderson Perry & Associates, an engineering contractor used by the City of Dayton, awarded a scholarship to Wyntr McCauley, who intends to attend Montana State University.

Next, Dianne McKinley gave a presentation on the Parks and Recreation Pool project, which has completed a proposed budget. The district is working to secure sufficient funding. She said the Friends of the Pool has raised "a little bit" of money; however, the budget's more costly items, including hiring an engineer to design the pool, are still unfunded.

McKinley said Parks and Recreation plans to put a levy for twenty cents per one-thousand-dollar valuation on the November ballot to provide funding for the pool. McKinley emphasized that if the levy does not pass in November, there is "absolutely no reason to have a pool district. We can't function on air," said McKinley.

She asked the city council to consider being a funding partner, especially within the next ten months. McKinley said citizens who wish to donate to the pool project may do so through the non-profit Friends of the Pool organization.

The council had no objection to a liquor application submitted by the Buckwheat Brewing Company, 148 E. Main St. to the state liquor board.

The city has received complaints about unsafe crosswalks, asking the city to install crossing signals. Funding was not immediately available for signals; however, Public Works Director Ryan Paulson said he might be able to install unlighted crosswalk signs in the interim.

The Otta seal project to resurface most of Dayton's streets is scheduled to begin in the third week of July, with patching and mass laying of product around the beginning of August, said Paulson. He said the city will distribute fliers to inform residents before work starts on each street to ensure vehicles and other obstructions are removed before work. Gravel parking strips will not be resurfaced.

Paulson said public works crews must water cemetery grounds manually while bids are being submitted to repair or replace the automated sprinkler system.

Paulson said security cameras are being installed to combat vandalism. He said the railroad and Main Street bridges were recently damaged with spray paint, and the work by a volunteer church group to repaint the bridges has been destroyed.

There was no update on the wastewater treatment plant, and Paulson said it was a bit of a nightmare now. He said the city and other agencies are driving the path to a solution to find a way forward.

The council meeting adjourned at about 6:52 p.m. A workshop will be held on July 30 at 3 p.m., and the next regular meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, August 13, 2024, at 6 p.m.

AT THE LIBERTY: "Thelma"

THE TIMES

DAYTON — "Thelma" is based on a real-life experience of writer/director Josh Margolin's grandmother. When 93-year-old Thelma Post (Oscar nominee June Squibb) gets duped by a phone scammer pretending to be her grandson, she sets out on a treacherous quest across the city to reclaim what was taken from her. This is a story exploring aging, family and autonomy (and uniquely inspired by action movies like "Mission: Impossible"). This marks June Squibb's first leading film role of her 70+ year career.

"Thelma" is highly rated by critics and audiences, with 99% and 84%, respectively on the Rotten Tomatoes website. Critics at that website summed up their review as "A stellar showcase for the talented June Squibb, 'Thelma' avoids cheap laughs as it finds the lighter side of some serious issues." It is rated PG-13 for strong language, and it has a runtime of 97 minutes.

The Liberty Theater free summer movie series for children continues with "Lego Batman," on July 16 and 19, at 1 pm. A small popcorn and small beverage are available for only $2. The movie summary is as follows: There are big changes brewing in Gotham, but if Batman (Will Arnett) wants to save the city from the Joker's (Zach Galifianakis) hostile takeover, he may have to drop the lone vigilante thing, try to work with others and maybe, just maybe, learn to lighten up. Maybe superhero sidekick Robin and loyal butler Alfred can show him a thing or two. Rated PG for rude humor and some action. Runtime is 1 hour 46 minutes. This movie is highly rated on the Rotten Tomatoes website (90% and 80% for critics and audiences). Then, showing on Tuesday, July 23, and Friday the 26th, the children's movie will be, "Paddington 2." It is rated PG.

Also, on July 30 and August 2, at 2-5 pm, there will be free cast sign-ups for the Missoula Children's Theater presentation of "Treasure Island." Rehearsals will be every day August 5-9 and performances will be Friday, August 9 (7 pm), and again on Saturday at 3 pm.

Port hosts Foodstock and Swim the Snake

By Justin Jaesch | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Port of Columbia Commissioners held their regular meeting at 5 p.m. on July 12, 2024, at the port office. Commissioners Seth Bryan, Johnny Watts, Mike Spring, and the Executive Director, Jennie Dickinson were present.

The Commissioners first dealt with several administrative items, including a detailed examination of the monthly budget report and the 2023 annual report.

There were no new leases to announce.

Next, the meeting shifted to the public hearing on the Comprehensive Parks Master Plan. There was no public input, so the commissioners passed a resolution adopting the plan without any debate.

Dickinson said she was still working on the RCO grant application for the improvements to the Lyons Ferry Marina, and it is moving forward without any significant hurdles. She said Swim the Snake is scheduled at the marina and Lyons Ferry State Park on August 10, 2024. This year is the 11th anniversary of the fundraiser.

The grain cluster and Mainstem Malt grant application is also moving forward. The commissioners passed a resolution that authorized the repayment of the CERB (Community Economic Revitalization Board) funding.

Blue Mountain Station is hosting its Foodstock 2024 festival on Saturday, July 20.

The port selected R.L. Banks & Associates to appraise the railroad property. The original appraiser was unable to complete the process due to illness. The new firm has extensive experience in railroad economics, engineering, and service planning. RLBA offers tiered pricing, with the project costing up to $70,000. The rail operator will pay for half the costs.

The commissioners listened to a presentation by Common Roots Housing Trust. The organization works to provide housing opportunities to citizens in Columbia and Walla Walla Counties and the Milton-Freewater area. More information about the trust is at www.commonrootshousing.org.

The next regular meeting of the Port Commissioners is scheduled for 5 p.m., August 14, 2024, at the Port conference room and on Zoom.

CCHS offers successful diabetes education program

THE TIMES

DAYTON — An innovative diabetes education program at Columbia County Health System shows promising results in managing diabetes for residents. Spearheaded by Ruth Yutzy, RN, a Diabetes Education Specialist, the program is part of the health system's broader effort to address chronic health conditions in the community.

The diabetes education program offers comprehensive support and education for individuals diagnosed with diabetes. It aims to improve their quality of life through better blood sugar management. Participants receive personalized care plans, dietary guidance, and regular monitoring of their A1c levels—a crucial measure of blood sugar control over time.

One of the program's success stories includes a participant who began with an A1c level of 15.2, indicating an average blood sugar of approximately 390 mg/dL. After participating in the program, this individual's average blood sugar level dropped to 163 mg/dL, which corresponds to an A1c of 7.2.

"Seeing such significant improvements in our participants' health is incredibly rewarding," said Yutzy. "Our goal is to provide the tools and support necessary for individuals to take control of their diabetes and lead healthier lives."

Participants in the program also have shared their positive experiences. One individual remarked, "Before joining the program, my blood sugar levels were out of control. Thanks to the education and support I received, I now feel more confident in managing my condition and maintaining healthier habits."

Columbia County Health System's diabetes education program is an existing initiative that continues to evolve and adapt to meet the community's needs. The program includes individual counseling sessions and ongoing follow-up to ensure participants stay on track with their health goals.

Artist Guild to exhibit at CAVU Cellars in August

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Current and former teachers, nurses, writers, counselors and civil servants who make up the Blue Mountain Artist Guild of Dayton all agree they are moved by a creative spark to make art. They are taking their creativity to a new level with a group art show, “Inspirations and Challenges”, planned for CAVU Cellars winery, in August.

Helen Boland is a retired science teacher, homestead farmer and lifelong naturalist. Working mainly in watercolor, her art reflects her love of animals, nature and landscapes. She also leans into ink, acrylic, pastel and assemblage as she moves between detail, realism and impressionism.

“Perhaps my favorite work is created on site in nature. En plein air painting brings me to the mountains, farms, gardens and even in town.”

Ellen Heath loves the outdoors, watching Dry Creek from the window of her home on Biscuit Ridge, or climbing into the hills just steps from her front door in the Blue Mountains. Her usual subjects are local landscapes, plants, people, and animals. She teaches watercolor painting in person through the continuing education program at WWCC, and on Zoom.

Lorna Barth says she can’t not do art. “It is part of who I am and has always been part of any job in my life. Art should make you stop and really look at something,” she said.

She will paint on anything with anything, at any time, but always for the purpose of changing whatever it is into something expressive and meaningful. Look for Barth’s colorful scenes on blue jeans and on canvas prepared with sourdough.

A scavenger at heart, Bev Startin is always looking for found objects for inspiration to add to her mixed media art. She enjoys fabric and hand-stitching, so fabric art has been added to her repertoire. She will utilize some wine dyed fabrics and wearables for her presentation at the winery.

Members of the Blue Mountain Artists Guild of Dayton are preparing for a reception and show during the month of August at CAVU Cellars. Art will be shown in the gallery throughout the month of August, and into September. The reception will take place on Friday, August 2, from 5-7 p.m. at the gallery, which is located at 175 E. Aeronca Avenue in Walla Walla.

Cathy Loftus-Shochet was a sporadic artist before joining the Guild in 2021.

“Landscapes are my favorite subject. I’m always finding ideas in the amazing contours and gorgeous skies of our area!”

Working in gouache, watercolor, and acrylic, she sometimes plays with abstraction.

Brenda North was initially drawn to the medium of acrylic, with a focus on flowers. She currently paints with watercolor medium, which she finds more challenging. Her favorite subjects are portraits and animals, and, yes, flowers.

“I find art relaxing and good for my mental well-being. I can lose myself for hours in a painting,” North said.

Michele Smith has been dabbling in watercolor and studying with others since joining the Guild in 2012. She is mainly attracted to atmospheric landscapes, but has recently turned her attention to portraiture, studying with Walla Walla artist Mareth Warren.

“My art is the essence of who I am. It is my story about the scene or the person I am painting.”

During childhood, Kris Takemura enjoyed sketching, particularly people. When she retired from teaching, she switched to acrylic which she finds easier to control, and, from there, to watercolor, painting a variety of subjects.

“Although I find this medium very challenging at times, it has been fun trying different techniques.”

Sylvia Beuhler has made art for as long as she can remember, teaching art in Utah, Texas and New Mexico public schools. She especially enjoys drawing, watercolor and printmaking media.

“The natural world around me is my inspiration and translating that onto paper is my continual challenge. The Artists Guild has been good for me in that it opens up more subject matter that I usually would not consider.”

All the Guild members agree that sharing their artistic endeavors with each other, and with the public, is life-affirming. They look forward to sharing “Inspirations and Challenges” at CAVU Cellars in August.

WAITSBURG PARKS & REC TO HOST CHEER CAMP

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg Parks and Recreation District is hosting a cheer camp at Preston Park on August 19, 20, and 21 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The camp is open to kids ages four to 17 years old. The cost is $40 per camper. Parks and Rec also offers sibling discounts. Contact Wendy Carter at wendymcarter71@gmail.com for more information about discounts.

Each participant will receive a camp t-shirt and cheer bow.

Waitsburg City Councilperson Jillian Henze will coach the camp. Henze cheered at Sammamish High School and Linfield University. She placed eighth at the 2004 UCA Nationals on the all-star co-ed team, Galaxy Cheer. After graduation from college, Henze coached cheer at Montesano, Dallas, and Dayton High Schools.

Cheerleaders from Waitsburg High School have volunteered to assist campers learn cheers, dance, movement, and basic stunting.

Cheer is a great activity for energetic kids who love to move, dance, and work in a team. Waitsburg Parks & Rec recognizes the need for more activities for kids, including additional youth sports camps.

"We hope this will become an annual event and look forward to providing other sports camp opportunities in the future to all ages," said Carter.

Registration and more information are available on Eventbrite at tinyurl.com/3knn5ya2.

At 8:55 last Tuesday morning, the mercury was already pushing 80. Twenty local students clustered in the cool shade of Waitsburg's First Christian Church, happily chattering as they waited to be signed in to the Waitsburg Resource Center's "Knock Out Boredom" program. According to Pam Conover, the program's director, that's a small crowd. "We've been having 40 kids come in," she said. Emily Wilson, a recent Prescott High School graduate, comes in on the Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays the program runs to help supervise the youngsters, who range from pre-Kindergarten age to teenagers.

Grilled Chicken Caesar Salad

Too often, uninspired versions of this dish are slapped on restaurant menus, overdressed with bland mass-produced dressing. Originally created in 1924, by an Italian immigrant at his namesake restaurant in Tijuana, Mexico, Caesar salads quickly became a hit with Hollywood trendsetters. Here, I have a lively and fresh homemade Caesar dressing that will change how you look at those that come in a bottle. Adding seasoned grilled chicken turns this into a satisfying warm weather entrée.

Ingredients:

For the dressing:

- 6 to 8 anchovy fillets packed in oil, drained
- 1 garlic clove
- 2 large egg yolks
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, plus more
- Zest of 1 lemon, finely grated
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons Parmesan, finely grated
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper

For the salad:

- 1 to 2 pounds boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1 teaspoon dried sage
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 3 cups crusty bread, torn into 1" pieces
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 to 3 hearts of romaine lettuce
- Parmesan shavings *see notes
- Fresh chives, chopped

Directions:

Chicken and croutons: In a small bowl mix 1 teaspoon of salt with thyme, sage and paprika. Dry rub the chicken, set aside at room temperature for at least an hour. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a bowl toss the torn bread with olive oil and season to taste with salt. Spread evenly on sheet and bake for 10 to 20 minutes, tossing occasionally, until toast-golden. Let cool completely.

Dressing: Chop anchovy and garlic together with a pinch of salt. Using the side of your knife blade, mash into a paste and scrape into a medium bowl. Whisk in egg yolks, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, and mustard. Gradually whisk in olive oil, adding drop by drop. Then add vegetable oil, in a steady stream, whisking constantly as the dressing emulsifies and lightens in color. Keep whisking until dressing is thick and glossy. Whisk in grated Parmesan, lemon zest and a generous crack of black pepper. Taste, and season with more salt and pepper to taste. Add more lemon juice if needed. Cover and chill until ready to use.

Salad: Heat grill to high, and oil grill grates. Grill chicken for 7 to 8 minutes with grill covered. Then flip chicken and grill another 7 to 8 minutes. Start checking temperature with meat thermometer after 15 minutes and keep moving chicken around grill to evenly cook. Chicken is done at 165 degrees. Let chicken rest for ten minutes.

While chicken is cooking wash and dry romaine, keeping leaves whole. Then while the chicken is resting assemble salad. Place romaine leaves and croutons in large mixing bowl. Add enough dressing to evenly coat all the leaves, tossing with tongs or with clean hands. Arrange salad on plates. Top each salad with shavings of Parmesan and plenty of cracked pepper.

Slice chicken into ½ inch slices across the grain and season with a pinch of salt. Arrange chicken on top of each salad. Drizzle a little dressing on top, with a squeeze of fresh lemon juice. Garnish with chives and more black pepper.

Notes:

This recipe is best when you use a hunk of real Parmesan cheese. For the dressing finely grate the cheese to meld into the emulsion. To finish the salad, use a vegetable peeler to make the large shavings.

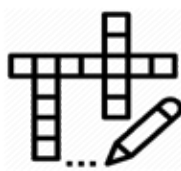

The anchovies add an essential burst of umami, and their flavor is perfectly balanced with the other ingredients of the dressing. Give them a try, don't be scared. Seriously. But, if you really must omit them, try using a couple dashes of Worcestershire sauce, or chopped capers instead.

This dressing technically contains raw egg yolks, so you should use the freshest, best quality eggs you can get. *People with compromised immune systems, pregnant women or infants might not want to risk eating raw egg.

Enjoy.
