Each Halloween, Jan Cronkhite welcomes trick-or-treaters with a performance from her skeleton marionette, Aloysius. Cronkhite has been performing with Aloysius since she was a teen.

A Happy Haunter

By Dena Wood
THE TIMES

Jan Cronkhite's home is a favorite stop for Waitsburg trick-or-treaters who can always count on a performance by her skeleton marionette, Aloysius (pronounced al-u-wish-es). The 81-year-old former Waitsburg librarian has been entertaining with marionettes since she before she was a teen.

She began her role as puppet master when her mother gifted her with a pair of boy and girl mar-ionettes when she was twelve. Cronkhite would perform, joined on stage by her cat, before the 500 members of the commune, where her family lived at the time.

In her early teens, Cronkhite lived in the San Francisco Bay Area and began volunteering, performing marionette shows, in hospital polio wards during the polio epidemic.

"I felt so bad for those poor kids in iron lungs that had to just lie there and could only turn their heads. So I asked if I could come and do puppet shows for them and they loved it!" Cronkhite said.

A high school classmate, Scotty Hickman, later made himself a skeleton marionette that Cronkhite fell in love with at first sight. She convinced him to make one for her as well, though she can't recall what she paid for it. Cronkhite and Aloysius have been performing and making smiles together ever since.

City Begins Drafting 2016 Budget

EMPLOYEE COMPENSATION IS REVIEWED AT OCTOBER CITY COUNCIL MEETING

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Employee compensation was a hot topic as it related to city budget planning at the Oct. 29 city council meeting. City Administrator Randy Hinchliffe sought council input on employee salaries, longevity compensation and insurance as he prepares to draft the city's 2016 budget.

Hinchliffe provided the council with summary information and job descriptions on the city's current employment positions consisting of two staff positions and four public works positions. Council members also received a report listing the average salaries for those positions, from information compiled from cities with populations of 500 to 1,500, who submitted information to the Association of Washington Cities (AWC).

Hinchliffe said the finance committee had previously reviewed what the City of Waitsburg offers against the state average for those positions, but failed to reach a decision on how close they wanted to keep Waitsburg employees to a competitive wage.

"Do you want to keep them within, 85%, 90%, 100%? We didn't really have a good answer to that and decided to leave it to the council to give some direction before we put together the budget that goes to the hearing next month," Hinchliffe said.

Hinchliffe said current provisions state that the city is to keep competitive with AWC but that there are no formal processes to make that happen. He said that setting a specific percentage will allow him to easily adjust the budget, making small salary adjustments annually, which will have minimal impact on the budget.

"One-percent is a lot easier to adjust for year to year as opposed to five percent all at once," he said. "It's just a matter of where you want it to fall," he said.

The council agreed to set employee compensation at 85% of the AWC average rates. At that rate, Hinchliffe would be the only employee to receive a raise.

Hinchliffe said the finance committee had also discussed whether the city should provide employees with a longevity benefit in hopes that employees can be retained long-term.

"We have a pretty cohesive group right now and we'd like to keep them," he said.

The council was split evenly between the four members in attendance. Gobel and Callahan were strongly supportive of a longevity increase. Councilor Kevin House said he was "not a fan" of longevity in-

NEALEY GETS AWARD

DAYTON – Representative Terry Nealey, of Dayton has been awarded the "City Champion" award by the Association of Washington Cities.

Nealey is one of six legislators recognized this year for their work to support city interests during the 2015 legislative session. In a press release, AWC commended Nealey for his work to try to craft solutions to problems and costs associated with costly public records requests, while maintaining public access to information.

Nealey

"For many years, Rep. Nealey has done a tremendous job supporting cities' needs in the Legislature, especially in the areas of the abuse of public disclosures for private gain," said Dayton Mayor Craig George.

George, who also serves as Past President of the AWC Board of Directors, will present the award to Nealey on November 9. The presentation will be held in conjunction with the Dayton City Council's regularly scheduled meeting at City Hall.

Cable system last year.

Ed Huffman of Huntsville has a set of 4 ponies that don't often have a chance to work together. A week ago, Ed was helping Edwina Painter of Waitsburg by disking the field just west of her house. He decided to use his ponies to pull his rig. Ed said that he usually does this type of work with a small tractor, but thought that this would give his ponies a chance to get in shape – they were a little bit soft, he admitted.

NEWS BRIEFS

ASPIRING WRITERS GROUP

DAYTON/WAITSBURG - Anyone with a love of writing is invited to join in a newly formed writing group for writers of all ages. The group's next meetings will take place at the Waitsburg Weller Library on Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. followed by a meeting at the Dayton Memorial Library on Wed., Nov. 11 at 7 p.m.

Group organizer Ann McCambridge said she formed the group for writers of all ages to teach, encourage and learn from one another. The group is for anyone who shares an interest in writing, whether it they write memoirs, fiction, poetry, songs or non-fiction. The group is informal and all are welcome.

McCambridge was both pleased and surprised to have local students participating in the group. "Mixing ages and genders gives the group more depth, flavor and diversity, so to speak. We can learn so much from others, and who doesn't have a story to tell?" McCambridge said.

The group is currently participating in NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month), which began Nov. 1. The challenge is to write 50,000 words in 30 days but McCambridge said there is no pressure to meet that goal, just to participate.

Local author Dani Harper will be on hand at the Waitsburg meeting to discuss the NaNoWriMo challenge and to answer questions that participants may have. At the Nov. 11 meeting in Dayton, the group will discuss future topics to explore.

There is no charge to participate and McCambridge is happy to answer questions at annmccambridge@hotmail.com.

Only 22 Shopping Days 'Til Black Friday

It's Tuesday, Nov. 3 as I write this; the day this paper goes to press.

Yesterday I got an email from Amazon announcing new "countdown to Black Friday" deals. "It's never too early for a good deal," the email says. I completely agree. And it's never too late either.

So the message is, if you simply can't wait until the day after Thanksgiving to do your Christmas shopping a month before Christmas, why not get on Amazon.com now and do your Christmas shopping two months (almost) before Christmas.

But by sending me that email, Amazon clearly missed something important about my shopping habits: The chances of me Christmas shopping the week after Halloween are about the same as the chances of me doing my taxes in January, or writing this column a couple of days early. These things wouldn't occur to me.

What's odd about this though is that Amazon, in so many ways, knows my shopping habits better than I do.

One day recently, I was vacuuming up dead flies around the house (because it was early fall and still warm – not even remotely like Christmas). And I was having to continually unplug the shop vac I was using and plug it back in.

So in my ongoing quest to reduce annoyance in my life, I got on Amazon to see how much a cordless shop vac would cost. Too much, it turned out, when you add the cost of the battery, which doesn't come with it for some reason. The battery costs nearly twice what the batteryless shop vac costs and about five times what my little plug-in mini-vac cost. I haven't looked since – I'll deal with the cord. But I digress.

The point is that for the next two weeks nearly every web site I visited had an ad at the side of it for cordless shop vacs (sans battery, of course). I often get emails from Amazon offering me special deals on things I might want. And they are sometimes useful, such as books or movies similar to ones I already purchased. Amazon knows what I want.

Improving the VA Medical Center

By Brian W. Westfield, MSN
Director, Walla Walla VA Medical Center

Every year on Veterans Day, the nation pauses to recognize and honor all the men and women, living and dead, who took up arms in defense of America. Our nation owes Veterans a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid. It's our duty – not just on Veterans Day, but every day – to remember the sacrifices they've made and to make certain that our commitments to them and to their families are honored. And that duty is most especially important to those of us privileged to serve Veterans at VA, as well as here at the Walla Walla VA Medical Center.

There have been many changes at the local Veterans Affairs Medical Center in the last ten years. In the 2002-2004 timeframe, there was a serious threat that the Walla Walla VA Medical Center would discontinue providing care to the area Veterans. Then, in 2006-2008, those fears seemed to be confirmed with the closing of the inpatient service, urgent/emergent care unit, and finally the closing of the long term care beds. In reality, it positioned the facility to be more in line with the transformative delivery model in the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA).

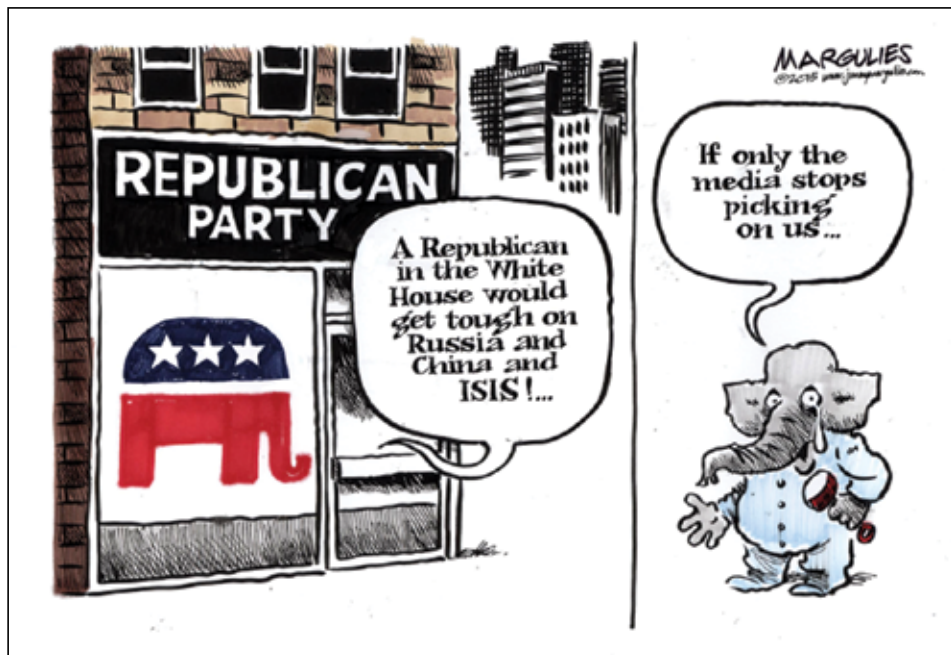

In 1995, the delivery model began a transition from a hospital-based system to a primary care/ambulatory care driven system. The mission change to provide access to VA services through multiple community based clinics and programs provided new opportunities for service to Veterans. Locally here in Walla Walla, these opportunities are evident on the site of the old Fort Walla Walla with construction of new buildings used by the VA to care for Veterans, the renovation of the historic Officers' Quarters by Catholic Charities to create housing for homeless Veterans, and the massive undertaking by the Washington Department of Veterans Affairs to build an 80-bed State Veterans Nursing Home. These partnerships with the community to serve Veterans are now being further perpetuated by recent legislation creating the opportunities for Veterans to receive more care in the local community.

Legislation passed in Congress and signed by President Obama into law on August 7, 2014, which has already included three updates, are commonly referred to as "Veteran's Choice" legislation. These laws created the opportunity for many Veterans to receive more services closer to their homes and provided by the local medical community. Avoiding the need to travel hundreds of miles for specialty and more complex care is very important to the area Veterans. For the Veterans that live in this relatively rural part of the country, each subsequent change to the law is making this more of an appealing reality. Because of this clear benefit to the Veteran, the staff at the Walla Walla VA Medical Center has embraced this legislation and is working diligently to implement legislated improvements to make this a more efficient process and satisfying experience for the Veterans. It is our hope on this Veterans Day that the community partnerships we have witnessed in the last few years will flourish and continue to grow as we join forces to meet the needs of those who served our country.

In 1865, President Lincoln directed us to care for those "who shall have creases and Councilor Karl Newell said he'd never heard of them before.

"We need to keep the people we have. It's too easy for them to work for us for awhile, get trained, and then leave to somewhere that will pay a lot more because of their training and background. To me, longevity is an important issue," Gobel said.

Gobel instructed Hinchliffe to draft the preliminary budget to include a longevity increase of two percent for every five years of employment, to be reviewed when the budget returns to council next month.

Of the current city employees, Hinchliffe and Deputy Clerk Kelly Steinhoff have been with the city for almost twelve years and Public Works Director Jim Lynch has 21 years in with the city. Of the city crew workers, John Langford has been full time with the city for approximately two years, Jake Adams for six months, and Brian Callahan for two months.

The final item Hinchliffe mentioned was insurance. He said employees are looking at medical coverage increases of $100 to $150 in the coming year and asked if the council would consider raising the cap on the amount the city will pay toward insurance to help offset that.

Councilor Deb Callahan objected to the fact that employees currently have to wait six months to be eligible for insurance coverage. Hinchliffe said the six-month waiting period for benefits was unique to this year, due to budgeting issues and difficulty finding labor.

Following a lengthy discussion on insurance, it was decided that the council would provide an increase in the amount the city will pay toward insurance so that the employees don't essentially "step backwards" with the insurance increase. No decision was made on changing the coverage waiting period.

Hinchliffe agreed to prepare a preliminary budget, which would include the proposed changes, for the council to review next month when councilors Marty Dunn and K.C. Kuykendall are present. Citizens are welcome to attend the Nov. 18 city council meeting and offer input for consideration in the 2016 budget development process.

Council Reviews Water Model

City has plenty of water, but some problems with distribution

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The City of Waitsburg has a new tool to help with future planning related to the city's water system. Anderson-Perry Technical Manager Howard Boggs introduced the city's newly developed water model at the Oct. 29 city council meeting.

The city requested the water model earlier this year, initiated partly by the proposed Whoopemup Meadows housing development and also to help the city identify weaknesses in the current water system.

"We always had a good idea of what the city's water system could generate and accommodate, but the model allows us to pinpoint different potential impacts based on various deficiencies in the distribution system," said City Administrator Randy Hinchliffe.

Boggs explained that Waitsburg has a small water system management plan, typically used for smaller cities that are not expanding, versus a regular water system plan. The small water system plan exempts Waitsburg from many of the requirements and upgrades that cities with regular plans must meet.

"One of the downfalls of that is that you don't necessarily have to keep current on a model of the system that tells you where your problems may lie. A water model takes into consideration all of the existing piping, measures fire flows, and calibrates and calculates where you have deficiencies and what kind of fire flows you can get, and those types of things," Boggs said.

Included in the water model is an upgraded map of the system that includes all the work done in the last 10 years. The model includes figures representing existing fire hydrant coverage, a map of hydrants unable to deliver 1,000 gallons per minute, existing system deficiencies, the proposed Whoopemup Meadows subdivision, among others.

Boggs said Waitsburg is unique in that the city's water source, Coppei Springs, gravity flows into the system at approximately 500 gpm and provides sufficient water to meet all the city's water demands for about 60% of the year. When more water is needed, it is supplied by one or more of the city's wells.

"Waitsburg has more water than most communities. Maybe a little bit of trouble distributing it, but you've got really good quantities of water available," Boggs said.

The section of the report detailing existing water system deficiencies lists several hydrants with fire flow of under 1,000 gpm and several sections of the city served by long service lines that are not looped. The area from Taggart Road east to the city limits is served by undersized water mains, the only hydrant that serves the high school is on the opposite side of the highway and the fairgrounds area does not have fire protection.

Information provided in the water model makes it a valuable tool in city planning and for prioritizing water system improvements.

History of Hooked Rugs Sought

Patti Eaton would like to learn more about the Halpine Society and their creation and sale of rugs

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Longtime Dayton resident and former Hawthorne Gallery owner Patti Eaton is on a historical quest to glean information about the Halpine Society, a fundraising group organized by the Dayton First Congregational Church in 1892. Eaton is especially interested to learn more about the hooked rugs made and sold by local women who belonged to the society.

Eaton recalls, in her early years, hearing people talk about the church ladies making rugs. As a child, she had no interest in the group and didn't pay much attention. Now she wishes she had.

"This is a valuable piece of local history that we are just letting slip by," Eaton said. "I'm hoping that we can find a few rugs to photograph and document. I'd like to learn where they've gone and find out as much as we can about them."

Eaton said she has asked several women about the group and that some "kind of" remember hearing about it. She has been unable to nail down many specifics but she does have a few clues.

Dayton resident Dallas Dickinson researched the history of the First Congregational Church and mentioned the Halpine Society in a historical summary in the church's archives and posted on the Washington Secretary of State website.

Patti Eaton designed and hooked the 14" round chair pillow shown above using the Halpine Society ladies' technique.

Dickinson said that in 1889 four young male Yale graduates, after much discussion and prayer, traveled together to work in Washington, which just gained statehood. Dr. Penrose was assigned as pastor to Dayton.

According to Dickinson's historical summary:

"Dr. Penrose believed that a true Congregational church was an educated one - that those in the pews as well as in the pulpit should be intelligent. So he formed two chautauqua circles, and he took an active interest in building up the public library.

"The Halpine society was organized in 1892 and held its first sale that year, at which a fine collection of Chinese pottery purchased in Portland by Dr. Penrose sold rapidly and raised a substantial sum of money for the organization. In 1894, Dr. Penrose resigned his duties here, and after a brief period as a supply pastor in Honolulu he became associated with Whitman College, and to this now great institution he gave the best years of his life."

Eaton said she knows several people who own rugs made by Halpine Society members. But aside from those rugs and the one historical reference, she has hit a dead-end in her research.

"I believe it was a moneymaking, charity-type project, but I'd love to know more. Did they take orders for rugs?" Eaton asked.

"We have a great historical society here, but this area (rug hooking), has not been touched on. And it is one of interest," she said.

Eaton, a rug-hooker herself, says the style and technique of the Dayton rugs is a little different from what was traditional at the time.

"Different sections of the country may have taught different ways of hooking," she said. "Traditionally, rugs were hooked on burlap and gunny sacks. The women who made these rugs clipped their loops, which is unusual. I'm hoping to find out if that was unique to the area and would like to build a file of the rugs we find."

Eaton was already an avid quilter when she became interested in hooking rugs. She said that both Joyce Davis and Pat Owen were instrumental in nurturing her in the hobby. Today, Eaton meets weekly with a group of ladies who get together to create their own works of practical art.

"In the past women hooked rugs using wool from old clothing," she said. "In fact, they would use whatever they had to try and cut down the drafts from old floors. They were making something out of nothing, to keep their families warm, but also to make something attractive."

Eaton said that the last of the ladies who would really know about Dayton's Halpine Society would be in their mid-eighties, today. "If we're going to record that knowledge, we need to grab it now," she said.

Anyone with information on the Halpine Society or rugs produced by society members can email Patti at hawthornegallery@my180.net or call her at 382-2835.

DAYTON AND WAITSBURG STUDENTS WILL COMPETE IN GINGERBREAD HOUSE-BUILDING CONTEST

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Dayton Chamber of Commerce is adding a new dessert course to its Christmas Kickoff Celebration this year: gingerbread.

Kids in the Dayton and Waitsburg schools will compete this month in a gingerbread house-building contest to be sponsored by the Chamber. Each class, from preschool to high school is invited to enter a gingerbread house that the students will create together.

Gingerbread house entries must be at least partial-edible, but can be made out of just about anything.

The only other restriction will be that they must fit on a two foot by two foot base. They must be delivered to the Chamber by November 23.

The finished gingerbread houses will be on display in one of the downtown buildings during Dayton's Christmas Kickoff celebration, Nov. 27 and 28. Visitors will be able to vote for their favorite entry.

The winning classes from each school will be honored with an ice cream float party in December, put on by the Chamber and by event sponsor Snapdragon Floral and Gifts (formerly Croft's).

For more information on the Christmas Kickoff gingerbread house contest, contact the Chamber at (509)382-4825 or Snapdragon at (509) 382-2565.

Resource Center Welcomes Donations

NOVEMBER WILL BE 'SLIM PICKINS' FOR FEDERAL AID, ACCORDING TO BLUE MOUNTAIN ACTION COUNCIL

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – As cooler temperatures settle in and the holidays draw near, the Waitsburg Resource Center (WRC) board is sending out a reminder that donations are always welcome. Recent emergencies have dramatically impacted national food assistance resources, which affects us locally and makes community support increasingly important.

In a TEFAP (The Emergency Food Assistance Program) email update titled “pretty slim pickins,” Blue Mountain Action Council (BMAC) Food Bank Director Jeff Mathias explains that food distribution is looking grim for November.

Each month the WRC receives a large food donation through TEFAP, a federal food assistance program. In Mathias’ update he explained that BMAC typically receives an average of 48,000 pounds of food to distribute to area food banks each month, including Waitsburg.

This month, BMAC received 6,000 pounds of food, to be distributed to the same number of households. Mathias said that a combination of factors all occurring at the same time, including providing assistance to victims of the devastating fires in the Okanogan, have caused a shortage in the WSDA warehouse.

“We will be picking up some bonus chicken and frozen cherries later this week, but I wanted to give you all a heads up that November will not be your typical TEFAP distribution,” Mathias said.

“I have plenty of pounds of food in the warehouse, but the unfortunate thing is that about 60% is cranberry sauce, apple juice or grapefruit juice. I wish I knew a dance to turn cranberry sauce into beef stew, but I don’t,” he added.

“This is just another example of how we are all affected by others’ situations in life,” said WRC Board Chairman Pam Conover, of Waitsburg. It is in situations like this that local support becomes even more critical.

The Waitsburg Resource Center provides food to families in need in the Waitsburg and Prescott school districts. Households may visit the center once monthly for food items that include non-perishables as well as meat, frozen potatoes, eggs, and seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables.

The resource center also supports the community in more ways that helping families with food needs. The center provides backpacks with hygiene supplies to the high school, supplies backpacks and school supplies to the elementary school, sponsors mobile dental van visits, and donates items for local holiday care basket projects.

The resource center has also organized and sponsored a summer activity program, provided snacks for the library’s summer reading program, and provided free bike helmets. Community members are encouraged to share ideas for other ways the resource center could have a positive local impact.

How to Give or Get Help

The resource center is currently in need of peanut butter, green beans, sugar, eggs noodles, macaroni and cheese, cereal, maxi pads, and laundry powder. Food, cleaning, and hygiene items are always welcome, as are tax deductible cash donations. Donations may be dropped off at the center during open hours or at either the Waitsburg Presbyterian, Christian or Catholic Churches.

Contact Heather Duncan (337-8102) or Marge Benson (629-2988) with questions or to have donations picked up.

The volunteer-operated center is located on the side of the Banner Bank building (106 Preston Avenue) and is open 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. on Thursdays and 9-11 a.m. on Saturdays.

BONE MARROW DONATION, PART 2

GABE KIEFEL DESCRIBES HIS TRIP TO CALIFORNIA TO HAVE BONE MARROW EXTRACTED FOR DONATION

THE TIMES

In early September, The Times shared the story of Waitsburg Middle School teacher and high school football coach Gabe Kiefel and his experience as a potential bone marrow donor.

After a fairly grueling screening process, Gabe was scheduled to donate, but the donation was postponed when the recipient, a 14-year-old boy with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia (ALL), failed to meet the criteria for starting the procedure.

As our Sept. 3 story ended, Gabe was unsure if he would actually donate, after all. However, on Oct. 8, Gabe traveled with his wife Jessica (a registered nurse), to California for the final procedure. Here is “the rest of the story” in Gabe’s own words:

We ended up flying to Calif. and had the bone marrow collection procedure on Oct. 8. We flew down on Oct. 7 and spent the day going from appointment to appointment at the Stanford Hospital Cancer Center.

That night we crashed at the hotel before 7 p.m. due to lack of sleep from the early flight and all the hustling. We were to be at the cancer center by 5 a.m. for the 7:30 a.m. procedure. I remember waking up at 7:33 and freaking out because I thought I missed the whole thing. Jessie jolted me out of my disoriented state by noting that it was 7:33 p.m., not a.m.

A taxi picked us up at the hotel the next morning to take us to the cancer center but the cab driver didn’t listen and dropped us off at the main hospital. Stanford Hospital is going through a major facelift so pathways between buildings are not open.

Jessie and I took off on foot and jogged to the cancer center a few blocks away to try and make it on time. It was surreal to be jogging through sand and gravel in the dark in a strange, unfamiliar place.

After being checked in, they called me back to meet the nurse, anesthesiologist, and two surgeons. For bone marrow collection, there is a surgeon on either side of the pelvis. At one point, I warned the surgeons that my dentist once told me I have really hard bones. (I also told them that others have told me that I have big bones, but they weren’t being nice.)

I asked the surgeon if he could take a picture of the bone marrow for me to see since I would likely never have the chance to see it since I would be sedated. He told me he could take a photo with his cell phone, but that he would have to destroy it after showing me because of confidentiality.

They wheeled me back and made small talk until the anesthesia took effect. At least I think the small talk ended after that. Next thing I recall is waking up in the recovery area. My nurse was very nice and told me that the surgeons had already come to check on me.

I asked if they had already shown me the marrow photo, which they had. However, I was still under the effects of the anesthesia and cannot remember seeing it.

They took two full liters of bone marrow and re-administered an autologous unit of blood. They usually try to give two units, but the timing didn’t work out properly with the donation. (Autologous blood is blood previously donated by the patient who will receive it.)

When they spoke to my wife, they told her that I was telling the truth when I said I had hard bones. Usually, they make five or six punctures to the iliac crest on the left and right sides each. They only managed to make two punctures on either side. The post-op bruising also helps explain why the procedure went over by about 45 minutes.

Since I was low on fluids, it took me a long time to be able to sit up without my blood pressure bottoming out and getting nauseous. After a couple units of fluid and a snack, I was able to get up and go to the bathroom, which were the requirements for discharge.

We stayed at the hotel that night and flew out in the morning. Although I could walk decently, it was awkward navigating the airport and airplane spaces.

We made it back to Waitsburg that afternoon in time to go to the home football game. My wife would have preferred me staying home and resting, but there was no way I could have just stayed home. The players were very welcoming. I tried to help in the booth, but spent most of the second half trying not to pass out.

Since the procedure, I have had a little sciatic nerve pain, which only happens in rare cases. Nevertheless, it has been a memorable life experience. The patient for whom I have donated the marrow could not receive it immediately.

They cryo-froze my marrow until the 14-year-old

WAITSBURG CITY COUNCIL UPDATE OCT. 29, 2015

Mayor Walt Gobel and council members Kevin House, Karl Newell, and Debra Callahan were present with Marty Dunn and K. C. Kuykendall absent.

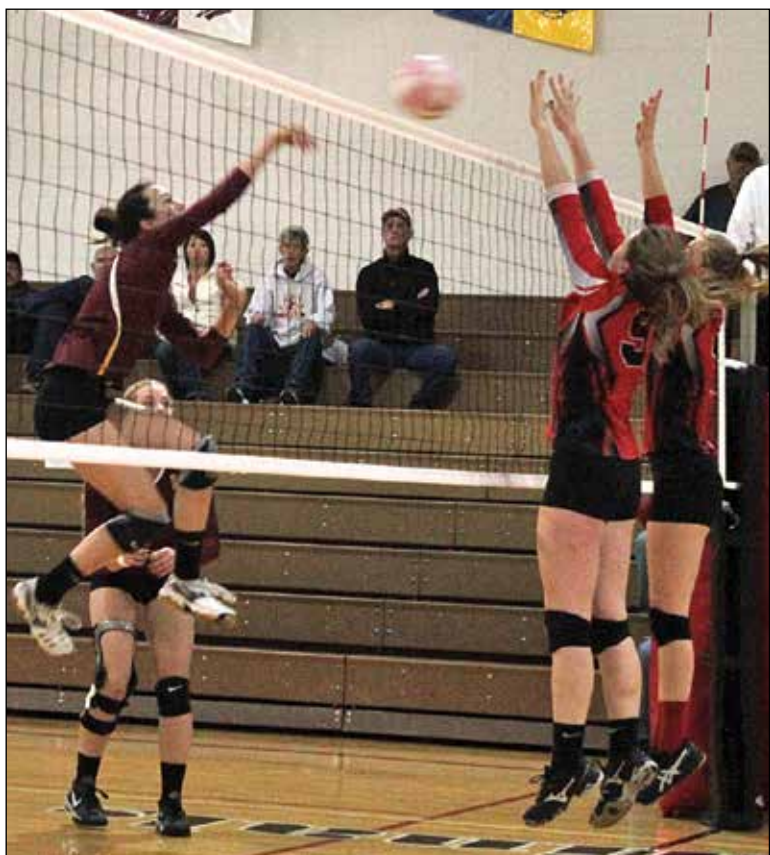

- Howard Boggs from Anderson-Perry gave a review of the city’s recently completed water model. See story on page 5.
- Approved Main Street Bridge agreement with Anderson-Perry.
- Approved motion to give notice to terminate agreement with Waitsburg Ambulance Service. This will allow EMS funds that currently pass through the city, to go directly to Fire District #2.
- Approved WVMPO amendment to include administrative wording changes requested by the MPO.

2016 Budget Workshop: Conversation centered largely on employee compensation issues. Read story on Page 1. City Administrator Randy Hinchliffe expects the budget to look similar to last year, with the exception that five water and sewer related funds will be consolidated into one fund. He said that not a lot of public works projects, which have been fairly extensive for the last five to six years, are planned for 2016. Smaller projects include: repairing a water line under the Preston Avenue Bridge, working on the fairgrounds renovation, and adding water lines and hydrants under Hwy 124 and West St., and re-coating the swimming pool. The city sidewalk program will be continued and citizens have already signed up for next year. Hinchliffe said typical budget expenditures are $2 million and the upcoming budget is $1.7 million, depending on what adjustments are made for employee compensation.

City Clerks Report: Pacific Power donated $2,000 toward the construction of the little league complex. The city paid $9348 to have a slab poured for the building that will house the cardboard baler. The building kit received was much larger than what was ordered and will house the city tractor as well as all the bales and baler. The city crew will frame the building and the inmate crew will sheet the building. The city received a levee inspection report back from the Corp of Engineers who would like to see more work done to remove vegetation from the levee. Hinchliffe asked how the council felt about hunting in the city’s watershed. Discussion leaned toward requiring the purchase of permits, perhaps through a lottery that would be operated by the Fish and Wildlife Department. Brandon Kelly has expressed interest in using the fairgrounds track to run small gas-powered car races. He will be invited to present his proposal at December’s council meeting.

Dayton Beats Lady Cards in Three

'Dogs advance to regionals as seed #2

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – After a three set fall to Tri-Cities Prep earlier in the week, the Lady Bulldogs turned the tables and swept the Lady Cardinals during an Oct. 29 game on the Waitsburg court. Bulldogs took the win: 25-16, 25-9, 25-12.

"We played Dayton much better this time compared to our first meeting. I'm proud of the girls for their improvement in this match and being able to put together a strong match. We've still got work to do offensively on providing an aggressive attack and find opening," Cardinal Coach Angie Potts said.

Stat leaders for Waitsburg were Anissa Holmberg with two kills; Ariel Sandau with five assists, two kills, three digs; Bailey Adams with three kills, eight digs; Caitlyn Jones with nine digs; Jade Alleman with six digs; and Tayler Jones with two kills.

On the Dayton side Hannah Becker served a perfect 13/13 followed by Josilyn Fullerton with 8/8 Megan Robins with 6/6. Mia Becker served an impressive 20/22 and Kaleigh White served 12/13. Phillips had the highest number of kills with 10, followed by Fullerton with seven. Hannah Becker gave up 16 assists, and Fullerton added eight assists and 13 digs.

The Oct. 29 game left Waitsburg looking toward a match against DeSales on Nov. 2, to determine who will take seed #3 at the District 7/9 regionals. That match was ultimately won by DeSales in five sets, wrapping up Waitsburg's season.

The Lady Bulldogs will compete at the Regional Tournament in second place. They play Wilbur-Creston on Nov. 4 at 6 p.m. in Colfax. Then they head to the regional playoffs in Asotin on Sat., Nov. 7 to determine which teams advance to State.

"We've had an awesome season with much growth and improvement in these young ladies that have been led by juniors Josilyn Fullerton, Jenna Phillips, and Mia Becker. Come support us and watch us play!" said Bulldog Coach Shannon Turner.

Cardinals Miss Districts After DeSales Tiebreaker Loss

COACH POTTS PRAISES TEAM-FIRST MENTALITY AND LOOKS FORWARD TO NEXT YEAR

THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Lady Cardinals volleyball team lost their chance to compete as the #3 seed in the District 7/9 tournament when they dropped a tiebreaker match against DeSales on Mon., Nov. 2, in Dayton. Waitsburg made the Irish work for their win, taking the match to a full five sets, but ultimately lost 24-26, 18-25, 26-24, 25-22, and 13-15.

"Overall, we played really well and the girls fought hard to come back after being down two sets, to push it to five. During the fifth set we were down 9-14 and they continued to play hard to come back and make it really close," Cardinal Coach Angie Potts said.

"Kelsey Alleman did a great job of filling in to serve during the last three sets for Tayler Jones who struggled with her serving but played great on defense and was consistent on offense. Bailey Adams and Caitlin Mohny both did a good job of digging the outside hitters and staying at the angle we worked on. They were also solid in the front row.

"Caitlyn Jones ran down a lot of balls on the back line and Devon Harshman and Anissa Holmberg worked hard in the middle. Devon led with 11 kills and Anissa had a key block in the fifth set to get our momentum going. Ariel had a huge third set by serving out the game when we were down 20-24 to lead us to a 26-24 win in that set. Jade Alleman subbed in during the last few points of the fifth set when we needed to make a change and played like she had been on the court all night," Potts said.

"It's hard to see the season end for this team because they were ready to play this weekend and really playing well at the end of the season which is when a coach wants to see everything coming together for a team. They have some of the best attitudes and a team-first mentality that is rare among a full team of kids.

"I expect that our returning girls will carry this standard on to next year and push themselves to reach that District 7/9 tournament and beyond," Potts added.

TIGERS PUT UP A FIGHT BUT CARDINALS TAKE WIN

THE TIMES

The Prescott Tigers volleyball team gave the Waitsburg Cardinals a run for their money during an Oct. 20 game on the Tiger court. The Cardinals ultimately took the win in five sets: 25-19, 18-25, 22-25, and 15-10.

"Overall, we didn't have our best night but the girls were able to play tough in the fourth and fifth sets to get the win. Prescott played extremely scrappy and kept us off balance for a majority of the night," said Cardinal Coach Angie Potts.

"Awesome! That's what I've got to say about our girls. They left it all on the court tonight!" Tiger Coach Bob Young said. "That was easily our best match of the year. Hats off to the Cardinals, though. They cut down on their errors in the last two sets. I'm so proud of each Lady Tiger. Each gave tremendous effort tonight," he added.

Ariel Sandau scored 12 assists, five kills, eight digs and three aces for the Cardinals while Bailey Adams pitched in 14 digs and five aces. Caitlyn Jones made 16 digs and four aces, Taylor Hays had five kills and seven digs and Devon Harshman dished out 14 kills.

The Lady Tigers were paced by the serving of Jocelyn Granados, Perla Xolio and Yoali Ortega with five aces each. It was senior night for Prescott and the seniors didn't disappoint. Athziry Amezcua, Ruby Rosales, and Perla Xolio left their mark on the game with leadership and energy, Young said.

Crockett Shines in Cardinal Win over TCP

TRAVIS CROCKETT HAD 365 ALL-PURPOSE YARDS, FIVE TDS IN 41-15 WIN

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The Waitsburg Cardinals football team moves on to the playoffs this week after a dominating performance against Tri-Cities Prep Thursday night, beating the Jaguars 41-15.

Waitsburg's Travis Crockett had a career game, scoring five touchdowns and accounting for 365 total yards in the game.

Crockett scored the game's first points with a 59-yard punt return for a touchdown in the first quarter. Late in the second quarter, playing defensive back, picked off a TCP pass and returned it 72 yards for another TD.

From the running back position on offense, Crockett added three rushing touchdowns, including a 10-yard run in the first quarter and runs of three and 15 yards in the third.

"It was a lot of fun watching Travis read blocks, put his foot in the turf and make some gorgeous cuts," said Cardinals Coach Troy Larsen. "Whenever you have a RB going for yards like that your offensive line and receivers are really doing a good job blocking down field," he added.

Crockett ended up with 176 yards rushing, 58 yards passing, plus the punt and interception returns for a total of 365 all-purpose yards and five touchdowns.

Cardinal quarterback Jacob Dunn also had an outstanding game, completing 14 of 22 passes for 200 yards and no interceptions.

"I also want to congratulate the linebackers for having the best game of the year as a unit," Larsen said. "They were stepping up into the gaps and shut down the run game in the second half."

With the win, the Cardinals move into the postseason. On Friday they will host Davenport at 7 p.m.

"Davenport is 95% run," said Larsen, "and we have had our issues stopping teams that are smaller, athletic, and aggressive with the run game."

Larsen put out a challenge to the community: "The team would like to ask the community of Waitsburg to come out to Cardinal Field Friday night and cheer loud and proud for your Cardinals. They are working hard this week and are very excited for the opportunity that they have in front of them."

Zach Bartlow Player of the Week

LAGRANDE, Ore. – For the third time this season, Eastern Oregon University quarterback, and former Waitsburg High star, Zach Bartlow was awarded Frontier Conference Offensive Player of the Week honors for his performance against Montana Tech on Saturday in Whitefish, Mont.

In a losing effort (42-24), Bartlow completed 27 of 55 passes for a career high 395 yards. According to an Eastern Oregon press release, Bartlow leads the Frontier conference and is 10th nationally in Division 3, with an average of 279 yards passing per game.

Despite their strong offensive performances, the Mountaineers are struggling through a 3-6 season so far this year. Their final two games are Saturday at home against College of Idaho, and November 14 at home against Southern Oregon University, which is ranked number two in the nation in Division 3.

LADY TIGERS END SEASON WITH BEST PLAY OF THE YEAR

THE TIMES

PRESCOTT – The Lady Tigers ended their season with a well-played, five set match against Asotin on Oct. 28. The Tigers fell on the Asotin court, 25-10, 13-25, 25-22, 18-25, and 8-15.

"Prescott ended their season playing their best ball of the year. It sounds like a broken record but once again we left it all out on the court. I'm proud of these girls. They continue to fight to the end. They could have mailed it in weeks ago," said Coach Bob Young about the loss.

"We started the match flat. We spent so much energy last night against Waitsburg. It's tough for girls to come back less than 24 hours later and on the road, but they extended that match to five seats again," Young said.

The Tigers were led by senior Captain Athziry Amezcua's eight kills, Ruby Rosales's two blocks and Jocelyn Granados's 10 for 12 serving and three aces.

"I want to thank the girls in our first year for setting the example of what it is to be a Prescott Tiger, playing with heart and conviction," he added.

Two Cardinal Harriers Make State

ADAMS AND CALLAS WILL COMPETE IN PASCO ON SATURDAY

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

CHENEY - Neither wind nor rain (nor goblins and ghouls) could prevent Waitsburg Cardinals Emily Adams and Landon Callas from earning spots at this week's upcoming State Cross-Country meet in Pasco. Adams placed fourth and Callas placed 13th at the District 7/9 Regional Championship Meet at the Fairways Golf Course in Cheney, Wash. on Oct. 31.

"The weather made for a tough run and not many PRs but Waitsburg ran well in spite of the wind, rain, and super soggy terrain," said Cardinal Coach Ann Adams.

Emily Adams, a junior, moved to the front of the pack early on and remained there to claim her fourth place position, out of 58 runners, with a time of 20:18.36. This will be Adams' third trip to state competition, where she placed 18th last year.

Callas finished 18th among 95 competitors with a time of 17:47.56 and a ticket to the state meet. Callas, a junior, ran cross-country for the first time last

THE FUN IS IN THE GIVING

Photos by Dena Wood

Waitsburg "givers" had just as much fun as trick-or-treaters this year as demonstrated by Jan Cronkhite on the front page and the folks shown here. Clockwise from top left: The Hubbard home on fourth street dared trick-or-treaters to face a larger-than-life Grim Reaper. Mary Hiatt and Lauralee Jones donned witches hats and sat on their front porch to greet treaters. Brayden Wood and Drew Farley had the same idea. Stella and Elise Pearson visited Grandpa, Assistant Fire Chief Neil Henze, at the Waitsburg Fire Station where they received candy and safety flashers. Debra Callahan was dressed as the Fire Station Minion.
