Waitsburg 2023 Homecoming Week

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Wearing pajamas to school and decorating the high school started Homecoming Week 2023. The week was filled with fun activities, dress-up days, a football game, and finally, the dance.

On Tuesday, classes were assigned specific age groups for “dress your age” day. The first-year students dressed as babies, and each class “aged,” with the senior class dressed as senior citizens. At the pep rally, the senior class lost a very competitive game of dodgeball; at their “old age,” they could not move fast enough to dodge the ball.

Teacher-student swap day was on Wednesday. Quite a few students impersonated Matt Elder, and paraeducator substitute Heather Baker dressed the part of a student to a tee. The sophomore class won the lip sync by performing the catchy Baby Shark song.

The students had fun at Field Night on Wednesday. They had pizza and participated in games. The last challenge of the obstacle course ended with the winner having to find an object in an ooey-goey mess. The senior girls won the powder puff football game against the junior girls. The seniors lost at tug-a-war to the sophomores.

On Thursday, the students dressed in “country or country club” attire, and the senior boys won the buff puff volleyball game.

The high school students and staff walked in the Spirit Parade on Friday. The elementary and middle school students lined the fence by Preston Hall to cheer and sing the school’s fight song accompanied by the band. Mascot

Reggie walked the fence and high-fived students.

Friday night was the Homecoming game, and the week ended with a dance in the high school Cage on Saturday night.

The entire student body, including P-8 students, participated in Spirit Week this year. The P-8 students had different “dress-up” days during the week and participated in spirit day on Friday wearing Cardinal colors, red and black. Some of the younger students were able to attend the high school activities such as buff puff and the lip sync contest. It was nice seeing the whole school show their spirit. Go Cardinals!

Port commissioners discuss 2023 budget, Lyon’s Ferry

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Columbia Port Commissioners held their regular meeting at 5 p.m., October 11, 2023, in the Port Office. Commissioners present were Genie Crowe, Seth Bryan, Johnny Watts, and the Executive Director, Jennie Dickinson.

After dealing with some routine administrative items, the Commissioners began discussing the 2024 Budget, starting with the Executive Director’s salary. Crowe said Dickinson deserved a fifteen percent salary increase due to her role in committee meetings, numerous projects, and the management of the Blue Mountain Station (BMS) and the industrial park.

Watts said, “I agree. She does a lot of work, wears a lot of hats, does a good job for us getting prepared for what we need to take a look at. She does a lot of the dirty work that we just sit here and look pretty for.”

Bryan responded, “Yes, I certainly agree that she definitely does a lot.” He continued, “That said, we are the second smallest county in the State, and we don’t have a very large budget; it’s kinda inflated right now because of a massive broadband project. You know, I get that that still takes work, but I don’t know that we can really afford a fifteen percent increase at this time. I would be amenable to the five to seven percent cost of living increase, but beyond that, I think we should pretty much stay where we’re at, in my opinion.”

Crowe moved for a fifteen percent salary increase. The motion was not seconded, and it did not pass.

Bryan asked Watts if he had an alternative he would like to propose.

Watts said he struggled with the fifteen percent and confirmed that the rest of the staff got a seven percent COLA. He said not approving the fifteen percent increase had no bearing on whether Dickinson was worth it.

Crowe pointed out that the fifteen percent increase would be about $11,000 out of an excess of $200,000 the Port holds.

Bryan asked for another motion. Crowe moved for a ten percent increase, which Watts seconded.

Bryan and Watts said that since a new Economic Development Coordinator had been hired, Dickinson should have less to do. Apparently, by their logic, the more staff an administrator has working for them, the less that administrator should be paid. When the motion came to a vote, the ten percent salary increase passed by two to one, with Bryan casting the dissenting vote.

The discussion topic moved on to funding Lyon’s Ferry Marina. KOA, the marketing company for Lyon’s Ferry, requires a specific number of pull-through sites at the campground to maintain their national standards. Dickinson estimated the project might cost about $100,000 and penciled that amount into the proposed budget. After an engineering firm studied the matter, they returned with an estimated 1.2 million dollars to complete the project.

Bryan said, “That’s a 1,200 percent increase in what we had previously anticipated, and that is an incredible amount of money just to put a KOA sign out in front. I struggle accepting that.”

Funding sources for the project have not been determined but will probably include grants, port funding, and funds coming from the campground owners.

Bryan continued, “I definitely have some reservations about spending 1.2 million dollars for some pull-through sites specifically when there’s so many things on the property that need structural attention: the boat ramp, the breakwater, the docks, and this kind of feels like doing the pull-throughs is almost putting lipstick on before we even build the thing and take care of what needs to be taken care of. You know, things that are rotting from the inside out. So, we’ll get into that as we go further in the discussion of that project, but for now, I think the capital facilities plan is finance written.”

Dickinson interjected, “What do you think is rotting from the inside out?”

Bryan, “Well, it’s just the structure, you know, the structure...”

Dickinson, “What structure?”

Bryan, “All of it. The boat ramp is falling apart, the breakwater is falling apart, the bulkhead is falling apart, you know. There’s a lot of things on here and in the actual, you know.”

Dickinson responded, “We have a conditions list of all those items, and I would say they’re in fair condition, not rotting. I mean, they are not bottom of the list. But the pull-through sites will generate a lot of revenue, which could generate enough revenue to make improvements.”

Dickinson suggested bringing the business owner in to have a discussion. She asked why Bryan and Watt’s opinions of the condition at Lyon’s Ferry had crumbled since the meeting there a few months ago. Watts said he had researched it and mulled it over since then. Dickinson asked Watts, “What did you find out in your research that has caused you to...”

Watts said, “Still researching.”

Bryan, “What I found out is there’s a lot of other projects that really need attention, and this is putting bells and whistles and lipstick on it when we have certain parts of that facility that are rotting, you know, the bulkhead, especially, the boat ramp, the breakwater, these are all things that are going to need attention, if we keep pushing them down the road, one of these times it’s gonna be yeah, the breakwater just sank or crumbled.”

Dickinson, “It’s not ready to sink; we have it maintained.”

The commissioners decided to postpone further discussion on the pull-through sites.

A time for a public hearing on the proposed Capital Facilities Plan was set for November 8, 2023, at 5:10 p.m. during the next regular commissioner meeting.

Next, the Commissioners discussed

DAYTON — When a magical meteor crash lands in Adventure City, it gives the PAW Patrol pups superpowers, transforming them into The MIGHTY PUPS. For Skye, the smallest member of the team, her new powers are a dream come true. But things take a turn for the worse when the pups' archrival Humdinger breaks out of jail and teams up with Victoria Vance, a meteor-obsessed mad scientist, to steal the superpowers and turn themselves into supervillains. With the fate of Adventure City hanging in the balance, the Mighty Pups have to stop the supervillains before it's too late, and Skye will need to learn that even the smallest pup can make the biggest difference.

The series of workshops begins with a high-level conversation on the region's future, on Wednesday, November 15th.

Visit Walla Walla wrote in a press release, "The subsequent full-day workshops will target leveraging the arts and culture in our community, improving the outdoor recreation experience, and identifying new ways to experience local foods. Come to one or all of them."

SUPPORT FOR HOUSE AND RUPPENTHAL

There are two incumbent candidates that I think deserve to be re-elected: Court Ruppenthal for Waitsburg City Council and Christie House for Waitsburg School Board. Both have shown their ability to serve with open minds, common sense, and a deep commitment to their community.

Court and Katie Ruppenthal have run a successful and popular business, Laht Neppur, one of two businesses in town that has stayed open under the same ownership since I moved here in 2012. Court is the only business owner on the City Council; our business community needs his representation.

Christie House is a healthcare professional who has made time to participate on the School Board fully. After her two sons graduated from WHS, she continued her involvement for the benefit of all the kids in our community. With changes in the school administration, it is vital to have Christie's experience and steady leadership on the School Board.

We're fortunate here in Waitsburg to have people as dedicated to our town as Christie and Court and the other members of the City Council and the School Board.

Thank you for your consideration,
Joe Patrick

BISHOP FOR WAITSBURG CITY COUNCIL

Dear Waitsburg Community:

My friend Jennifer Bishop is running for City Council. I'd like to tell you a little bit about her, and encourage you to join me in giving Jennifer the vote. She has my full support, and I think she will be a great advocate for citizens of Waitsburg.

Jennifer is a Waitsburg homeowner and taxpayer. She keeps her property beautifully, and it adds to the charm of our city. She participates in local events like the Main Street Christmas Tree contest, Waitsburg Celebration Days, and similar. Folks know they can count on Jennifer for support and donations to local causes. Additionally, Jennifer sent her son to our local school, and was an active parent during his school time. She is well rounded in being one of our citizens.

Jennifer runs a successful small business in Milton Freewater. While it isn't in Waitsburg, she demonstrates her dedication to small communities there as well as in Waitsburg. Her customers all call her a friend, because she makes them feel at home. Her restaurant is a hub for locals, and she has worked hard to keep her prices similar to pre Covid costs to keep her community healthy. She is committed to small towns.

Jennifer is known for her bright and open personality. She has a great interest in what is going on around town and is more than happy to listen to individual perspectives. She is ready to take on the challenge of keeping the strong qualities of our little town and contributing to its improvement. Please support her bid for City Council with your vote!

DAYTON CITY COUNCIL HEARD FROM COUNTY ASSESSOR

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON — Mayor Zac Weatherford called the Dayton City Council to order at 6:00 p.m., October 10, 2023. Weatherford and council members Teeny McMunn, James Su'euga, Michael Smith, Kyle Anderson, Dain Nysoe, and Shannon McMillen were present; Laura Aukerman was absent.

Tammy Ketterman, from the Columbia County Assessor's Office, briefed the Council on property tax options for the City, explaining terms such as "banked capacity." Ketterman's presentation was strictly informational as a prelude to preparing next year's budget, so no action was necessary at this meeting.

This discussion lasted about half an hour, and the Mayor said the discussion would likely be discussed in an upcoming workshop.

Sheriff Joe Helm reported his office responded to 716 calls in September, including 187 traffic stops, 13 traffic accidents, and three DUI investigations. Tina Bobbitt, County Emergency Management Director, added six fire calls for the City of Dayton and four in the County. She also reported 33 EMS calls for Dayton and 17 for Columbia County.

The Council approved the consent agenda and voted to approve Resolution 1523, which authorizes a Municipal Services Agreement with the Chamber of Commerce for Fiscal Year 2024.

The next item on the agenda was to consider authorizing Resolution 1524 concerning a utility rate increase. It was tabled at the request of the Finance Committee while they were still working on the numbers.

Mayor Weatherford gave an update on the wastewater treatment project and mentioned no significant obstacles to the project so far.

The meeting adjourned at 7:14 p.m. The next City Council meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. on November 14, 2023. During November and December, the Mayor announced he plans to have two council meetings each month to get through the budget process and other work that the city needs to be completed by the end of the year.

PORT - FROM PAGE 1

housing development by the Port. The consensus was that the Port might provide the land and utilities for commercial developers to build housing. The Port property most suitable would be the undeveloped land near Blue Mountain Station. Dickinson said the best way to make that possible would be to seek annexation by the City of Dayton.

Commissioner Bryan and Watts expressed support for selling the railroad and associated right-of-way.

There was concern by the Commissioners that the Table Rock Meat processing facility had not shown enough progress, although they still supported the project.

Dickinson said one hundred percent of addresses in Dayton have been released for hookup by the ISP for broadband.

During the final public comment period, Dave Harvey, owner of Red Band Cellars and Port tenant, said, "I would heartily encourage you to reconsider Jenny's salary. She is woefully underpaid. My assistant makes more money than she does. She's 29 and, has a community college degree, watches the place for me when I'm not there. You need to make an investment in your people. Jenny is a huge asset. The kind of raise you are talking about fits in the budget. I would heartily advise you to reconsider that."

Mike Spring, candidate for Port Commissioner, said he was concerned over the loss of grant opportunities should the line be privatized. Members of the public discussed the possible sale of the rail line and what that might mean for procuring funds to maintain and improve the rail line.

The meeting adjourned at 6:30 p.m. The next meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m., November 8, 2023.

CARDINALS LOSE HOMECOMING GAME TO LIBERTY CHRISTIAN

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg High School football team started strong against undefeated Liberty Christian (LC) in the homecoming game on Friday, October 13.

The Cardinals held their own in the first quarter. Senior Cyson Morris changed the game's energy with a 55-yard reception and scored a touchdown. At the end of one quarter, LC led 16-14.

Liberty Christian led 30-14 at halftime and ended the game with a 50-14 win.

"Our guys fought the whole time," said Coach Gabe Kiefel. "I do not think the score reflects this game's competition. We have had a couple of weeks of adversity. We could have crumbled under the pressure we have been facing. However, our leaders stepped up and kept the energy high throughout the game. Our line did especially well in creating holes and putting pressure on defense. We just could not find the right combination of things to get more points on the board," he said.

Seniors Morris, Blake French, Jayce Gleason, and Reuben Yutzky played in their last homecoming game. They played well, tackled hard, and were leaders on the field. Morris, Brenton Segraves, Koyen Fortune, and Isa Reyes ran the ball well, while the passing game struggled against LC's defense pass rush.

The Cardinals will get back at it and prepare for their game at Garfield-Palouse on Friday, October 20.

At halftime, the 2023 Homecoming Court was announced, and seniors Blake French and Makenna Barron were named King and Queen.

About 20 alumni wore letterman jackets to the homecoming game, a tradition started last year by the Home and School Association (HASA) to be an annual event.

Names were drawn for prizes and were announced at halftime. Savannah Castillo, Class of 2007, won a Waitsburg Cardinal tumbler. Karen Huwe, Class of 1979, won a Waitsburg Cardinal stadium seat, and Kaitlyn Paul, wearing her Aunt Tisha White's, Class of 1991, letterman jacket, won a season sports pass.

CARDINAL VOLLEYBALL LOSE TO WWVA AND DESALES

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — On Monday, October 10, the high school Cardinal volleyball team lost three sets to the visiting Walla Walla Valley Academy Knights (WWVA).

The Cardinals struggled with passing serve and digging, losing the first set 18-25.

The WWVA girls adjusted in the second and third sets, and Waitsburg committed too many unforced errors and lost 9-25 and 11-25.

Kylee Henry had eight assists, Makenna finished with three kills, and Alyssa Hollingsworth had ten digs for the Cardinals.

"The team came out really strong tonight but then lost momentum," said Coach Barron.

At Desales on October 10, the Cardinals lost 9-25, 17-25, and 20-25 to the Irish.

"The girls worked hard tonight, but nothing seemed to easily fall into place. Alyssa Segraves really came through for us tonight with six aces," stated Barron.

Barron had six kills, and Madison Kaehler added three kills.

MIDDLE SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM WINS

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg's middle school football team beat St. John-Endicott (SJE) on the Cardinal field on October 12. The boys led 32-16 at halftime, never let up, and won the game 64-44. The team has four wins and one loss in the season.

"The boys did great," said Coach JJ Calzadillas. "They had to adjust to six-man football on the fly."

Uriah York made an outstanding catch over the head of the SJE defender and turned up field to score a touchdown in the first quarter. York finished the game with two reception touchdowns and two rushing touchdowns and returned a kickoff for a touchdown for 310 yards. The young man also had nine tackles on defense.

Quarterback Liam Kiefel passed for 235 yards, Sawyer Harshman had 105 rushing yards, and Jake Lynch rushed for 65 yards.

"The offense was clicking on all cylinders," commented Calzadillas.

Juca Beckman and Harshman each forced two fumbles. Harshman picked up one fumble and ran in for a touchdown. Lynch had an interception. York, Harshman, Beckman, Lynch, Alex Zuniga, Camdyn Vories, Gavin Harrison, Carter Barron, and Gavin Mikesell accumulated over 50 tackles for the night.

"Our defense gave up some touchdowns, but we never did break as a team," said Calzadillas.

The middle school football team will finish their season at Tekoa-Rosalia on Thursday, October 19.

Successful music program returns to The Club

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

DAYTON — The Club, Dayton's afterschool program, offers an innovative middle and high school music program beginning Monday, October 25. The organization will again partner with Walla Walla Music Organization (WWMO) to introduce students to skills needed in the music and live sound industry.

Instructors from WWMO will be on hand to work with high school students on Mondays and with middle school students on Wednesdays. They will learn basics in music production, audio engineering, recording, and live event sound, focusing on professionalism and possible career paths.

The Club and WWMO offer the program free of charge to students, ensuring it is available without financial restrictions. For Executive Director Jim Pearson, it is an opportunity for The Club to interact with middle and high school students, some of whom have aged out of the afterschool program. To give the older students dedicated space for the project, The Club's board rented space from Port of Columbia at the Cameron Street Coworking building.

Pearson sees the program as a positive collaboration with WWMO and its founder, Rodney Outlaw. He described Outlaw's teaching approach as getting results through relationship building.

"He is interested in his students' success and creating pathways to potential careers in music," said Pearson.

Beginning with a MacBook, instructors work with the kids in music production and electronic music, with engineering as the focus. Over the school year, students will move on to live performances, setting up a local band for sound, including using a mixing board and mics.

"This year, we would like to have two performances at The Club, run by the students," said Pearson.

Last year, Outlaw offered the project to The Club virtually for free. Pearson and the Board wanted to pay WWMO a fair price for the program going forward. In a case of bad timing, a significant grant which included funds for the music project fell through. Fortunately, The Club could continue the program this year through community-supported funding, including donations through the Blue Mountain Foundation's Giving Guide. Pearson is confident that the program will be able to get grants next year after it demonstrates success.

Students interested in enrolling must be in grades 6 through 12. Due to limited space, the program will be limited to 12 students per session. Attendance is not mandatory, as all Club's programs are voluntary. In addition, Pearson expects some students will rotate through the program due to school athletic and other afterschool activities.

To Every Season...

By Vicki Sternfeld-Rossi | THE TIMES

Living in Waitsburg, I've adjusted to the fact that, for every season, there is a bug or two or more. It's early fall, and the blue gnats are invading every bit of air space. I'm sure I've ingested a swarm on the tennis court this morning. While the tree bugs, aka box bugs, aka alder bugs, are invading every crevice and space possible. I find them in doorways, windowsills, under wood pilings, climbing up the vinyl siding, and anywhere they decide to land.

Halloween is approaching, and at least most of the spiders and webs around town are decorative, but I know the real ones are imminent. If I remember correctly, just before the end of fall and before the cold weather of winter, the rain starts and brings out earthworms. At least they stay outside and can be entertaining. Before our front garden filled in, I would sit on the front porch with Daniel and Mugsy, wine in hand, watching earthworms move through the ground, stretching from two-inch blobs to what seemed to be six-foot snakes, working their way in and out of the dirt. As previously mentioned, I am easily entertained.

This winter, I know there will be an array of spiders in the house. Often, they land in the bathtub, where I can shoo them down the drain. Somehow, frozen pipes don't seem to bother them at all.

Then Spring returns, which quickly rolls into Summer, and a whole new batch of varmints. We start with Aphids (bad), Ladybugs (good), Earwigs (annoying and ugly), Squash Bugs (destructive), Hoverflies (good pollinators, but annoying), Bees (see Hoverflies), Wasps (bad.) Flies and mosquitos buzz around, but the worst are the slugs. They infiltrate and eat tomatoes, flowering plants, and vegetables.

Once, I picked a tomato with a slug in it and immediately dropped it to the ground. Mugsy dove for it and swallowed that infested tomato in one gulp. Either he is a gourmet, dining on escargot a la' tomato, or just desperate for a juicy tomato. Either way, I was grossed out.

Of course, add to that a few ants, praying mantises, a dragonfly or two, grasshoppers, and some moths, and then it's back to autumn and the blue gnats and tree bugs.

Most of these bugs are nonexistent in Southern California. Los Angeles does have cockroaches. Plentiful and disgusting, they, not the meek, will inherit the earth and outlive everyone. There are also fire ants, bees, and somewhat new to the Los Angeles area - mosquitoes. Playing tennis in L.A. this last summer, I was covered in mosquito bites that itched like crazy. I went through at least ten tubes of Benadryl and Hydrocortisone creams to relieve the itchiness. Thankfully, L.A. and Waitsburg mosquitoes don't carry malaria.

As kids in New York, we chased, caught, and kept fireflies in jars filled with grass and holes in the lid. Even with food and air, they usually didn't last until morning. After the jars were empty, we would put caterpillars in, waiting for them to turn into beautiful butterflies—also a failed experiment but an excellent introduction to bugs.

Bogle Vineyards 2021 Old Vine Zinfandel

By Paul Gregutt | THE TIMES

Bogle Vineyards 2021 Old Vine Zinfandel

I've been a Zin lover for decades, especially fond of those made from old vines. For Zinfandel, old vines, though unregulated, can mean the plants went into the ground anywhere from several decades to over a century ago. It's especially long-lived and productive and was one of the varieties favored by the Italian winemakers who built up the California wine industry before and after Prohibition. Family-owned (since 1968) Bogle Vineyards makes what is hands-down the best cheap old vine Zin in the country. The current vintage was sourced from Lodi and Amador vineyards. It's bursting with brambly berries and peppery accents of cedar and tobacco. It's worth wading through the aisles of cheap plonk at your local grocery to find anything from Bogle, especially this Zin (if an older vintage is available, grab it!) Priced around $10 - $12.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago

October 17, 2013

Waitsburg-Prescott running back Chance Leroue averaged more than 10 yards per carry and scored two touchdowns Friday, as he led the hometown Cardinals to a lopsided 41-7 win over Dayton. Besides gaining 135 yards on 13 rushes, Leroue also caught one pass for 11 yards. WP quarterback Owen Lanning added 62 yards on five keepers and scored two TDs of his own. Taking advantage of multiple Bulldog turnovers, the Cardinals racked up five touchdowns in the first half, going to the locker room with a 34-0 lead. Lanning led off the scoring with touchdown runs of 44 and four yards, both in the first quarter. Leroue scored on runs of 24 and seven yards in the second quarter, and Devin Acevedo chipped in with an 18-yard touchdown reception.

Waitsburg's Cardinals battled to a scoreless first quarter tie with a fired-up band of Bulldogs, then made three touchdowns per quarter for the rest of the game to subdue Dayton 61-0 in a game played there last Friday night. The Cards had possession twice in the first period, but were unable to sustain a drive. After a pair of first downs, one gained on a DeCoria to Rob John pass play, the Dayton line stormed through to throw Mike for a 9-yard loss. Dayton took the Pat Davis punt on their five, and got to the 22 on a face-mask penalty. The Cards held and forced the punt.

Commercial Club Tuesday voted to make a donation to the Waitsburg Ambulance Service of $500 and the check was presented to Ambulance Board President Don Hinchliffe by Commercial Club President David Roberts. Hinchliffe said that this will be a great help toward paying off the note on the new vehicle.

MY RECIPES Luke Chavez

Enmoladas de Queso

This time of year, I often find myself craving the warm smell of a bubbling pot of homemade mole. A quintessential part of Mexican cuisine with pre-Columbian roots, mole is made in a spectrum of different colors, from black to bright green, with the most famous varieties coming from the states of Oaxaca and Puebla. In this recipe dried chilies are blended with sweet pumpkin and roasted peanuts to create a velvety rich sauce which is then smothered over tortillas rolled with melty cheese.

Ingredients:

- 6 dried ancho chiles, stems and seeds removed
- 1 white onion, quartered
- 4 garlic cloves, whole
- 5 whole allspice berries
- 3 whole cloves
- ¼ cup roasted peanuts
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 (15-ounce) can pumpkin puree, (see notes)
- 3 to 4 cups chicken or vegetable stock
- 2 tablespoons raw or demerara sugar
- 2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
- Salt
- Avocado oil or canola oil
- 12 corn tortillas
- 10 to 12 ounces queso Oaxaca, (see notes)
- ¼ cotija cheese, crumbled
- Pepitas
- Fresh cilantro

Directions:

Heat a cast-iron skillet or comal over medium heat. Place the chilies in the dry skillet and toast for about 1 minute per side, being careful not to burn. Transfer toasted chiles to a bowl and cover with boiling water, keeping submerged until soft, about 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, add the onion wedges and the whole garlic cloves to the skillet. Cook, turning occasionally, until lightly charred on all sides. Be extra careful not to burn the garlic cloves. Place charred onions and garlic in a blender and set aside. Next, place the whole allspice berries and cloves in the skillet. Toast spices until fragrant, about 1 minute, then add to the blender with the onions. Drain the chiles, reserving the liquid. Add the chiles to the blender along with the peanuts, cinnamon, pumpkin puree, 1 cup of the chicken stock, and a ½ cup of the chili soaking water. Blend on high, or in pulses, until mixture is a smooth puree.

Pour the mole base into a large pot and mix in 2 more cups of the chicken stock. Set pot over medium-high heat and bring to a boil then reduce the heat to maintain a steady simmer. Add the sugar, apple cider vinegar, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Cook for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally, to allow the flavors to meld together. Taste and adjust seasoning, adding more salt or sugar as needed. If your mole gets too thick add more chicken stock as needed. Take off heat and set aside while preparing to assemble the enmoladas.

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In a skillet, heat a couple tablespoons of oil over medium-high heat. When the oil is shimmering, quickly fry the tortillas, one at a time, until soft, about 10 to 15 seconds per side. Add more oil to the pan as needed. Use tongs to remove fried tortillas, stacking them on a paper towel lined plate. Be careful not to tear the tortillas. Set aside. Next, use your fingers to shred the queso Oaxaca into long strips.

Spread a generous ladle of the mole in the bottom of a 9- by 13-inch baking dish. Working one at a time, place several strips of the queso Oaxaca down the center of a tortilla. Carefully, roll from the side closest to you, tightly packing the filling to make a cigar shape. Place the enmolada seam side down in the pan and then repeat with the remaining tortillas to fill the pan. Ladle another cup of the mole, or more over the top, making sure the sauce gets in between and all around each enmolada. You will likely have leftover sauce. Sprinkle the cotija and a handful of the pepitas over the top of the sauce. Cover pan with foil and bake in heated oven for 20 minutes. Remove the foil and bake for another 5 to 10 minutes until bubbling. Sprinkle top with fresh cilantro and serve with favorite toppings such as sour cream, pickled red onions, or sliced radishes.

Notes:

Instead of canned pumpkin puree you could make your own. Toss about 6 cups of peeled and cubed pumpkin and roast at 375 degrees on a parchment lined sheet pan until tender. Cool slightly then pulse in a food processor until smooth, adding a splash of water if needed. Use 2 cups of the puree for the recipe.

Queso Oaxaca is a semi-hard cows-milk cheese that pulls into stingy strips and melts beautifully. You can often find it sold in round packages at larger groceries in the same section as other Mexican style cheeses. If you cannot find it you can substitute with another melty cheese such as part-skim mozzarella cheese, or even Monterey Jack. In place of the cotija you could substitute grated Parmesan.

Enjoy!
