GOT PIE?

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Alicia Walker has accomplished everything she is required to do, and more, in order to open the doors to a new restaurant in Dayton by the end of October or the beginning of November.

Walker is calling the restaurant The Noble Hunt, which is aptly named for all she hopes to accomplish in it.

As if running a restaurant isn't enough,

Walker said that she also plans to work as a job coach for developmentally disabled adults, with the goal of placement into gainful employment in Columbia County.

"I saw a need in the community. Kids who are graduating from Dayton High School have no providers in our county. I will be the only one," Walker said.

Two months ago, Walker contacted the case managers at the DSHS ADA office in Walla Walla about her idea. They sent her to see Cindi Wolski and Debbie Dumont at the Walla Walla Department of Community Health, who helped her to develop a business plan and meet all the other requirements, Walker said.

Meanwhile, Walker shopped around for a location for the restaurant.

"This space was calling to me, and was available," said Walker about the Main Street property, which is the location of the former Grainhouse Grill.

Walker said she obtained a lease and began making repairs, painting, and cleaning. She also worked on the graphics for her website, applied for a liquor license, which she now has, and developed a curriculum for her work as a job coach.

With a full commercial kitchen available in the restaurant, Walker said her potential clients can be trained on-site for jobs in the restaurant industry or for other kinds of employment.

"There are lots of possibilities," Walker said. "For instance, clients can job shadow in retail sales, or work at the local veterinary."

"I'm hoping to do group-supported employment, with up to eight clients," Walker said about her plans.

Walker explained that there are about

Halloween dinner will raise funds for new windows in downtown community building

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The Waitsburg Town Hall Association Board will host a Halloween spaghetti dinner to make the cost of replacing windows in the building a little less scary. The fundraising dinner will take place at Town Hall from 4:30 to 7:30 on Mon., Oct. 31, for a suggested minimum donation of $5 per person or $20 per family.

"In addition to raising money for renovations, we hope that having an early dinner will help families get the kids out to trick-or-treat by saving parents from having to prepare dinner that evening," said board secretary Jim Davison.

The funds are needed to replace the seven large front-facing upper windows, which are currently boarded over from the inside, to prevent weather damage and to improve efficiency. Several window panes are missing, and water leaks have already started to cause damage.

"It won't get any better. It's something we've got to do, and the sooner the better," Davison said.

While they're at it, the board plans to replace four windows in the North and South Fireside rooms to improve efficiency.

Davison said the board solicited local bids, and Tim's Carpentry responded with a bid of $7,000 to install similarly styled replacement windows. Owner Tim Abel was given the go-ahead to order the upstairs windows, which will take two months to arrive. The board is hopeful that the fundraiser and donations will replenish the bank account enough to cover the downstairs windows as well.

and operated on a 100% volunteer basis. It is a community asset, owned and operated by the community. The building was given to the City of Waitsburg by the American Legion in 1976. Eventually, the nonprofit Waitsburg Town Hall Association was formed and took over responsibility.

A seven-member board manages the property, and all Waitsburg residents are welcome to vote for or run as a board member during the annual election each November. Current board members are: President, Ron Standing; Vice President, Jim Romine; Secretary, Jim Davison; Treasurer, Larry Johnson, and members Karl Newell, Jim Walsh and Ron Griffen.

The association oversees rentals, maintenance and improvements, and is responsible for covering monthly operating costs including utilities, taxes, and insurance. A Valentine's Day Prime Rib dinner serves as the group's main fundraiser each year.

Homecoming King Jeremy Nichols and Queen Jessica Elliott were announced at the Homecoming 2006 Dance last Saturday night. Members of the Court included: Felicia Brown, Tyson Cole, Shawny Ingle, John Gertsch, Danielle Coila, Conner Talbott, Nichols, Elliott, Jessica Mason, Cole Janovich, Savanna Marick, and Aaron Leal.

Competition was stiff for the Waitsburg Cross Country team, competing in a 3.1 mile race in Pomeroy on Oct. 12. The highest finisher for the Cards was Maya Garcia, who finished fourth in 23:55. Teammate Heidi Potolicchio was 16th in 28:14. There were 25 girls competing.

Twenty-Five Years Ago October 17, 1991

The discussion turned lively Tuesday as the Waitsburg Commercial Club hosted a forum on the $2.6 million school bond election Nov. 5. Waitsburg schools superintendent Ed Larsen took the podium for about a half hour to say why he intends to vote yes to revamp the World War 2-vintage grade school.

The school's food program, known as Laura's Lunches, may be too successful. "Laura has always done an outstanding job," said grade school principal Glynn Davis. "We are known as one of the best hot-lunch programs in the area."

For the first time in years, the school district has the makings of a stringed orchestra – a quartet of students. Rebecca Menino, Waitsburg's new music teacher, has four students playing stringed instruments. She hopes that by next year they can play at the Fall Festival at the Bruce House.

Orin Walker and Loren Dumas will present a program to Commercial Club on Tuesday, October 18, on the possible rerouting of Highway 410. A suggestion has been made to the State Highway Commission to combine the proposed Waitsburg bypass with a new Walla Walla-Waitsburg route along the middle road.

The Progressive Club entertained newcomers to Waitsburg, other club members and the Teachers, Tuesday, October 11th, in the Dorcas room of the Christian Church. Guests were greeted by officers of the Club and given name tags. A musical program was presented by the Exits, Randy Pearson on his electric organ, and Mrs. Roy Leid and Mrs. Roger Hevel.

Russia becomes a global grain superpower as exports explode

By Anatoly Medetsky, Bloomberg

Almost 25 years after watching the Dawn of Communism collective farm where he grew up land in the dustbin of history, Andrey Burdin is helping turn Russia into something the communists never could: a grain-export powerhouse.

Over the last few years, Burdin has tripled the size of his farm on the steppe near the Black Sea, winning prizes from the local government for how much wheat he's produced from the rich soil here and pumping profits back into new tractors and sprayers.

His harvest this season will be a third bigger than what it was just five years ago, helping fuel an explosion in grain exports that has allowed Russia to displace longtime global leaders like the U.S. and European Union.

Long known for its oil and gas, Russia is now moving to retake leadership in the world wheat trade it last held when the Czars ruled. In the process, it's reshaping the market for one of the world's most important traded food products.

"People have started to think about the future," said Burdin, 42 years old, new tractors lined up outside the window of his office. "Before, everyone just lived day to day."

He plans to buy a Deere sprayer for 20 million rubles ($311,000) to add to his fleet in time for planting next spring, he said.

From the Black Sea coast and the Volga River heartland to the sun-scorched steppes of Siberia, Russia's farm belt is enjoying a renaissance, with grain at the leading edge. Turbocharged by the 45 percent drop in the ruble against the dollar over the last few years and bumper crops, local producers are crowding into export markets long dominated by big western players.

Last season, Russian topped the U.S. in wheat exports for the first time in decades and is expected to extend those gains to displace the EU from the top spot this year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Investors from local farmers to billionaire tycoons are pumping money into the business.

Russian wheat has crowded out U.S. supplies in Egypt, the world's biggest buyer, and is gaining footholds in some other countries, such as Nigeria, Bangladesh and Indonesia. That's four decades after the Soviet Union turned to U.S. shipments of wheat and corn to offset shortfalls in its own harvests. Over the last decade, Russia has been the biggest single source of growth in wheat exports, vital to meeting surging global demand.

"Russia will be among the top exporters for a long time, especially given the potential advances in productivity there," said Tom Basnett, general manager at Market Check, a Sydney-based commodity consultant. "Other producers need to fight harder to maintain their traditional markets."

The boom in Russia is attracting some of the world's biggest trading houses, with Olam International, Cargill and Glencore investing into everything from silos to export terminals.

Rich soil, government support and proximity to Black Sea ports for shipping means Russian costs can be as little as half those of major competitors supplying key import markets in the Middle East, according to researchers at Kansas State University.

Many growers in the U.S. and Europe have turned to higher-quality wheat to compete with the Russian supplies, which are mostly softer varieties that fetch lower prices. Some have also cut wheat plantings, which in the U.S. are expected to be the lowest next year since 1919, according to The Scoular Co., a Kansas grain supplier.

Limited storage capacity means most of the Russian crop is sold shortly after it's harvested, further depressing prices. Moscow has also imposed export tariffs and even a ban in the last several years in an effort to keep domestic prices down, scaring foreign buyers. The 2010 ban sent prices skyrocketing in key markets like Egypt, fueling unrest that contributed to a revolution.

The price of Russian wheat for export from Black Sea ports dropped to the lowest in at least six years in July and was at $169 a metric ton as of Sept. 30, according to the Institute for Agricultural Market Studies.

But exports have been growing since Russia first returned in volume to the global wheat market in 2002. Over the first seven months of this year, farm and food exports were 5.5 percent of Russia's total, still far behind top-ranked oil and gas but the highest share in at least 15 years and more than big earners like weapons, according to official data.

"With our nature and climate, it's our destiny to be an exporter," said Arkady Zlochevsky, president of the Russian Grain Union, an industry group.

Farmers trace the roots of the rebound to the Kremlin's move a decade ago to allow land to be bought and sold freely. That set off a wave of investment in new equipment, fertilizers and expansion of farms into lands long left fallow. Government subsidies and the ruble devaluation, along with good weather, have added to harvests in recent years.

Burdin was granted five hectares of land for his own use in the early 1990s, when his collective farm collapsed in the wake of the demise of the Soviet Union. After working as a hired hand, he struck out on his own in 2005. He traded his old Lada for a used Russian tractor. He said he barely earned enough for food. "It was hard when we started out."

Now he drives a late-model Ford pickup. His fleet includes a half-dozen imported tractors and four combines, along with a German machine to spread the fertilizer that's helped him to victory in local wheat-yields contests. He owns 200 hectares (500 acres) of land and rents another 1,500.

A few miles away, Viktor Borodaev, 64, said he and other farmers don't deserve all the credit for the recent boom. "We got a lot of help from God and nature," he said, referring to the favorable weather that's yielded bumper crops in recent years.

On the 40,000 hectares of fields at the Tselina farm company he runs, technology has also played a role. New tractors with GPS work 24 hours a day, with three shifts of drivers switching off. Profit margins were as high as 90 percent last year and earnings should be higher this year, he said.

Last week, Agriculture Minister Alexander Tkachev reported to President Vladimir Putin in the Kremlin, predicting the best harvest in 25 years and forecasting it could grow another 20 percent over the next decade or so.

"Exports give us a flow of cash, hard currency, from which our farm producers get rich," said Tkachev, whose family is a major owner of farms and agricultural land in southern Russia.

Combine harvesters load trucks with wheat grain during the summer wheat harvest on a farm in Ust-Labinsk, Russia, on June 26, 2016.

SUPPORT FOR RANDAL SON URGED

Dear Editor,

Have you been looking for good reasons to support Randal Son for commissioner? Consider these. What better argument than the fact that all three of the sitting commissioners are supporting his opponent? Apparently they would feel more comfortable if a new commissioner was as much like them as possible. How would that be good for the rest of us?

What about the UB's endorsement of his opponent? Son has a clear idea of what the Commissioner's job can be for the community, rather than just what it has been. What effrontery that a man who has only been here for 45 years could successfully challenge someone whose family has been here for six generations. A better question might be not how long have you been here but what have you done for us lately?

One of the arguments put forth by the editors of the UB endorsing his opponent was his support for targeted budget increases for deputy pay at the Sheriff's Office to reduce turnover. Has anybody else considered that maybe some of the turnover could be due to the work environment and not pay related?

To be fair to the editors, they did say that Son's hard work is impressive, as is his effort to reach out to leaders and residents. They give themselves away when they further say that this is something "established candidates," whoever that might be, could learn from. Established? Establishment? Get the picture?

I understand from similar letters to the editor that his opponent is an accountant. Isn't there an accountant on the commission already? The idea that we need redundant accountants reminded me of an accountant story. A rancher, of which I am one, was walking across a field with his accountant and he turned to the accountant and asked: What color is that horse? It's brown on this side, replied the accountant.

The UB, his supporters, and the opponent himself would apparently like to keep things the way they are. Let's see if we can make the future indistinguishable from the past. Now that is comforting. For some people.

The future is arriving daily whether we like it or not and cries out for creative solutions. Randal Son understands who we are and where we have been. He also understands how much better we can be. Vote for Randal Son for commissioner.

Walla Walla

Dear Editor,

I have had the honor to know Walla Walla County Commissioner candidate Randal Son and call him "friend" since he first moved to the Walla Walla area well over 40 years ago. As the years have gone by, I've seen him integrate himself into the community in a variety of roles, all of which have allowed him the opportunity to know people across the economic, social and political spectrums. When I heard he was running for the position of County Commissioner, I took the time to seek him out and sit down with him to hear his thoughts about what he wants to do for all citizens of the County.

Those who know me know that I tend to identify with a more traditionally pro-business and fiscally conservative philosophy. Despite partisan labeling, Randal Son's platform policies of sound financial openness, strict budgetary responsibility and above all promoting wide and diversified economic growth reflect his personal beliefs, based on his many years of service to the greater County community, reflecting values shared by so many in the County. If you look to the state's political past, his platform reflects the so-called "old school" ideas and values celebrated by such state leaders as Scoop Jackson and Dan Evans. I encourage all voters, regardless of political party identification, to look closely at his platform and ideals before making a choice on who to vote for on election day.

I sincerely believe that the overall economic and civic well-being of all

SUPPORT URGED FOR TODD KIMBALL

Dear Editor,

As a former Walla Walla County Commissioner, I believe that I understand the job duties and the skill sets needed to perform these duties. One of the most important responsibilities is being a good steward of the tax payer's money in developing and overseeing of the County budget. While every County department has certain mandated responsibilities, budget needs, and desires, the Commissioners have to balance these with available funds. This task is not done without the input from all of the departments and assistance of the County Treasurer and County Auditor, but the final budget approval is the Commissioners responsibility. Thus, it is very beneficial to have a business and or an accounting background. As a professional accountant and a business manager Todd Kimball is the candidate that has the background and skills to best perform these duties.

One of the other duties of a Commissioner can involve land use decisions. It is very important in making these decisions that there is someone on the Board of County Commissioners that has a background in agriculture and understands the impact that these decisions may have on the farm community and the farm landowners. As a farmer, Todd would bring this invaluable knowledge and insight to this decision making process.

Therefore, it is without any reservations that I am voting for Todd Kimball for County Commissioner, and would encourage you to do the same.

Gregg Loney
Walla Walla

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in support of Todd Kimball for Walla Walla County Commissioner. As family man, private land owner, and CPA, Todd has the life experience that is necessary to relate to the citizens and the County that he desires to represent.

Todd knows the rigors that the citizens of Walla Walla County go through to raise a family. Todd and Sandy Kimball have two sons, Shea 16, and Scott 18, both fine young men as a result of loving and devoted parents. Todd has coached the kid's teams and contributed greatly to the scholastic efforts of both his boys. Together, Mr. and Mrs. Kimball have a desire for the next generation to see the Walla Walla Valley prosper.

As a generational farmer and commercial land owner, Todd knows firsthand, how much it takes to own, lease, and operate a viable farm and business. With such a volatile economic climate, that affects all our citizens County wide, Todd Kimball can and will relate to the policies that impact our local economy. A huge advocate for private property rights, along with a clear understanding of land use issues, shall give Todd the ability to make responsible choices between the push for growth and the need for preservation. This understanding is of paramount importance for the leaders of this County.

Todd has made a name for himself as a well-respected Certified Public Accountant. He has scene first hand, the incomes, expenses, and investment portfolios that give him a snapshot of the economic condition of our citizens. He gets what it takes to make ends meet. Inasmuch, he will understand the figures and data that need scrutinized to help make choices towards solutions to fiscal challenges or decisions that this County may face.

I support Todd Kimball as the next generation of leadership that will lead Walla Walla into a prosperous future.

Please vote for Todd Kimball in the upcoming election.

Dear Editor,

Todd Kimball would make a great County Commissioner.

At a dinner amongst friends this past summer, I had the pleasure of listening to Todd explain the various aspects of the job of County Commissioner. As I listened to the explanation, I couldn't help but note how Todd was truly made for the job.

I have known Todd for many years and have had the pleasure of coaching basketball with him at a few state tournaments. Todd is a family man, farmer, business man and accountant. He has a rich family history in the Walla Walla Valley that includes several civic leaders. This background gives him a unique perspective on our beautiful valley – one that would truly benefit a County commissioner.

Todd has the rare commodity known as common sense. He is remarkably articulate on issues but knows when it is time to listen and ponder. He is thoughtful in making decisions and always keeps an open mind when dealing with difficult issues.

I hope you get the chance to meet Todd. You will find he is approachable and loves to laugh. He understands the necessity of hard work and the importance of dedication to achieve success.

Todd Kimball would make a great County Commissioner.

Please join me in voting for Todd Kimball for County Commissioner.

VOTE FOR CAPITAL PROJECT BOND FOR SCHOOLS

Dear Editor,

This November we face a very important decision concerning a vital aspect of our community. Our local school is in need of some crucial modernization to keep it healthy, functioning and safe. The school modernization advisory committee has recommended a very conservative plan to achieve these results without extravagance. In point, based on the amount the project is seeking, an individual's total tax obligation would actually decrease compared to their current responsibility.

Today's families have a choice concerning the education of their children. Whether it's a theater, shopping center, or school, expectations have changed over the years and items such as indoor climate control and modern kitchen/bathroom facilities are considered the basics. Our school system has earned a very deserving reputation of quality. Our community has benefited from this reputation through the people, students and families its attracts. However, our classrooms lack air conditioning, our students and fans must use portable toilets for physical education classes or events at the athletic field, and food is being wasted because of a school kitchen that has not been modernized for 54 years. We cannot rest on our laurels. We must continue to provide the facilities and environment that promotes the quality we expect.

More and more our school has become the common thread that binds Waitsburg together. I can't think of a better way to keep our town vital and enduring than to support the school and provide the support requested through the Capital Project Bond. Unlike some of the other entities, which have departed Waitsburg, we actually have the ability to determine the direction and destiny of our schools. This does however, take our involvement and support.

As we have all experienced, many crucial decisions that affect us are fashioned by distant legislators or metropolitan populations. But not this decision... it is ours! I urge you to join me in supporting this project by voting "YES" in November ...and let's get this project done!

TODD KIMBALL IS BEST CHOICE

Dear Editor,

Todd Kimball is our best choice to replace Perry Dozier on the Walla Walla County Board of Commissioners. Todd was born and raised in a farming family with deep roots in our valley. He graduated from Whitworth University, attended graduate school at Gonzaga, earned his CPA credentials and has worked in public accounting and wheat farming for most of his adult life. Todd knows how to manage organizations and to make financial decisions. He has served on multiple local boards and has learned through his employment and his service in the community about fiscal responsibility, working with and living within budgets, managing personnel matters, negotiating contracts and dealing with legislators. Todd is very approachable, gets along well with people, exercises good judgment after appropriate open-minded analysis of situations and will be a quick learner when dealing with matters that come before the Commission.

Todd and his wife, Sandy, are the parents of two fine teenage sons. Please join Jacquie and me in voting for Todd Kimball for Walla Walla County Commissioner.

DAYTON AUXILIARY NEEDS MEMBERS

Dear Editor,

Dayton General Hospital Auxiliary members are excited about the changes happening in our community hospital facility! The plan shows the Gift Shop being relocated to the north side near the new main entrance.

In preparation for the relocation of the Auxiliary's Gift Shop they are actively seeking new members. Especially needed, as the membership ages, are able-bodied members to help with the Fall Luncheon on October 28, and to staff the Gift Shop as they would like to increase the hours they can be open.

The Luncheon and Gift Shop are the major sources of income for this non-profit group to support the scholarships they award and to provide for unbudgeted items the Hospital and Booker Rest Home need such as replacing tables and chairs for the Rest Home dining room, nurse call system or other needs.

This past year the auxiliary awarded 3 scholarships to students pursuing careers in medicine; Kellie Moore, Sarah Phillips, and Kaitlyn Thompson. Meetings are at 9:30 the first Wednesday of the month in the hospital conference room and are open to all, men and women. If you cannot attend meetings but would like to volunteer contact Aleta Shockley at 382-2137 or Laura Thorn, 382-2322 for more information.

Sunny Day for Oktoberfest Celebration

PORT DEEMS SECOND ANNUAL EVENT A SUCCESS

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Brad McMasters, Economic Development Coordinator for the Port of Columbia, said the rain ended just as he was putting the finishing touches on the children's bounce house at last Saturday's Oktoberfest celebration at the Blue Mountain Station in Dayton.

The Dayton Kiwanis and the Dayton Lions increased their sales of Tucannon Meats' bratwurst and Chief Springs Fire and Irons' beer over last year, McMasters said.

The Blue Mountain Station Co-op Market's German potato salad and German red cabbage were also big hits, selling out early on, McMasters said.

"The event allowed for a great, end-of-the-season venue for food and craft vendors, as well as other small home-based businesses. . . The co-op market was filled with fresh local produce, natural foods, crafts and other products," said McMasters.

Mary's Candies, a tenant at the Blue Mountain Station, was busy with sales of ice cream, caramel apples and other treats. And Rusty Figgins, owner of Blue Mountain Affinage, was on hand to share samples of his cave-aged blue cheese, Coppei Copper Honey and information about his distillery, XO Alambic.

"I'm excited to build on this event," McMasters said. "The locals who attended seemed to really enjoy it, and the generous sponsorship from Pacific Power allowed us to increase marketing this year. It showed by the amount of newcomers to the Food Park."

Oktoberfest was organized by the Blue Mountain Station Co-op, and sponsored by Pacific Power and the Port of Columbia.

Dayton School Board Considers More Sports Combines with Waitsburg

ALSO, DAYTON MIDDLE SCHOOL RECEIVED AN AWARD FOR ACADEMIC IMPROVEMENT

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Dayton School Board discussed a possible sports combine with Waitsburg schools for high school baseball and for wrestling during their regular meeting last week.

"Students, coaches and parents have been working well together to support both districts and communities," Superintendent Doug Johnson said about the football combination program with Waitsburg.

Johnson told the directors that there are ten or eleven high school students in Waitsburg who would like the opportunity to play baseball, and nine students in Dayton, who have shown interest.

Further discussion and possible action will take place at the next school board meeting on Oct. 19, Johnson said.

Middle School Award

Johnson also told the directors that the Dayton middle school has been recognized by the Center for Educational Effectiveness with a School of Distinction award.

The middle school is among the top 5% of the state-wide middle schools showing improvement in English Language Arts and Math on state assessments over the last five years, he said.

"Congratulations to students, teachers, parents and to the Dayton community," Johnson said.

Middle School Engagement

Committees made up of teachers, parents, and students are being formed over the next few months to focus on middle school engagement. The goal is to increase school activity participation, and to decrease the number of students failing courses and falling short on state assessments, Johnson told the directors.

Project Lead the Way

Plans call for two teachers, the high school principal, and Supt. Johnson to attend a one-day conference later this month in Spokane to investigate a science, technology, engineering and math hands-on curriculum called Project Lead the Way.

While in the Spokane School District, they will visit two schools to see how the program is applied.

Dual Sports Participation

Following a brief discussion, no action was taken by the board of directors regarding dual sports participation for high school.

The WIAA will allow students in B or 2B schools to participate in two sports in the same season, with school board approval, said Johnson.

"There are many things to consider before taking action on this item," Johnson told the directors, citing several problems for coaches and students.

TWO SHEO/CFY PRESENTATIONS AT THE LIBERTY THEATER IN OCT.

DAYTON - On Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. the Dayton high school SHEO club, and the Coalition for Youth and Families, will present the documentary film "Resilience: The Biology of Stress and the Science of Hope", at the Liberty Theater.

"Resilience" is a followup to the 2015 documentary film "Paper Tigers", which followed six "at risk" students at Lincoln High School in Walla Walla.

This film, also directed by James Redford, follows some pioneering individuals who looked into research about adverse childhood experiences (ACES), and illustrates how they applied that information.

On Oct. 26 at 7 p.m., SHEO and CYF will sponsor a presentation by James Sporleder, who was the principal of Lincoln High School, when the documentary "Paper Tigers" was filmed. Sporleder will speak about his current work as a trauma-informed coach/consultant and trainer, with the Children's Resilience Initiative in Walla Walla.

Under Sporleder's leadership, Lincoln High School gained a national reputation as a "Trauma-Informed" school, due to a dramatic decrease in out-of-school suspensions, increased graduation rates, and the number of students going on to post-secondary education.

WENAHA GALLERY FEATURES JOSEPH RASTOVICH

DAYTON – Kennewick artist, Joseph Rastovich began working with metal at age 14, after inheriting classic cars that he wanted to fix. These days he transforms steel into sculptures, wall art, lamps, and large public art pieces.

Rastovich has amassed a plethora of specialty metal working tools over the years and sources his materials and supplies from industrial stores such as steel yards, welding supply stores, and industrial paint stores.

Rastovich says his is a "very physical profession" and calls himself a metal wrangler, and even wears a signature cowboy hat. He sells his smaller work through galleries, furniture, gift and jewelry stores throughout the Pacific Northwest. His larger, public works are installed in parks, schools, business districts and hospitals in the Tri-Cities, Spokane, and Tualatin, Ore.

Rastovich is the featured Pacific Northwest Art Event artist from Mon., Oct. 10 through Sat., Nov. 5 at the Wenaha Gallery located at 219 E. Main Street in Dayton.

five to ten potential clients in the community, and another five to ten potential clients living in Dayton, but who are working in Walla Walla.

"They might want to be in Dayton more," Walker explained.

Funding for the employment services will be through the Developmental Disabilities Administration, the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, and through private pay, according to Walker.

Walker said she will not only need to hire support staff for the employment service, but she will also need to hire support staff for the restaurant.

"I'm a super locavore," Walker said about her vision for the restaurant menu.

Customers can expect to find locally-sourced fresh, seasonal fare, and local wines, she said.

Walker said that she also plans to serve soup and bread from Grass Root Gourmet, and cheese from Little Dipper Dairy.

Walker said her background as President of the Food Co-op at the Blue Mountain Station, her service on a subcommittee for a local DSHS Human Services Advisory Board, her connections with farmers, and her prior work for DSHS in Walla Walla, and for the Dayton School District, have all been helpful in developing her vision for The Noble Hunt.

"I'm super excited. It's the culmination of my life's work so far," she said. "It's all coming together."

Walker said that she would also like to open the venue to others in the community, as she did, recently, to artists participating in Historic Dayton on Tour's Art Walk.

Walker said the venue will also be available to rent for special occasions.

The Noble Hunt is located at 232 East Main Street in Dayton, and will be open on Thursdays through Saturdays, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 8 p.m.

DISCUSSION CENTERS AROUND LONG-TERM PLANS FOR IMPROVEMENTS TO FAIRGROUNDS

By Dena Wood
THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The Friends of the Waitsburg Fairgrounds met Oct. 6 with discussions centering around how to best solicit input from everyone using the fairgrounds, and the possibility of using the Don Thomas building as a riding arena.

Citizen Survey
The board opened by discussing an online survey they developed to help pinpoint all of the groups and individuals who use, or would like to use, the fairgrounds facilities. The information will be used to gain an understanding of all the ways the fairgrounds is currently being utilized and how citizens would like to see it used in the future.

Board Chair Lane Hill said she would like to send the survey out by bulk mail to all Waitsburg residents to make sure no one is left out. She said she felt the cost of a mailing was worthwhile in order to connect with people who may not access the survey online. Hill requested that all attendees review the survey and bring suggestions for changes to the Oct. 20 meeting.

Grandstands
Kate Hockersmith said that funds collected for previous fairgrounds stall rentals by city council member KC Kuykendall have been turned over to the city in the amount of $4577.96. The funds, which were earmarked for fairgrounds use, will pay for design drawings of the grandstands which will be used to perform load calculations. The plans will also be included in the release for construction drawings when the renovation project is sent out for bid.

The city currently has no drawings for the grandstands.

Make a Difference Day
The board discussed holding their own Make a Difference Work Day at the fairgrounds, since plans for a coordinated work day with a Walla Walla LDS church fell through. After learning that a cross-country meet was scheduled at the fairgrounds on that day, the board opted to hold a separate volunteer work day at a later time.

Fairgrounds Master Plan
Hill said she would like to see a master plan that is a "living document," and does not lock in specific details. Hill referenced a 25-page fairgrounds plan submitted to the council in 2008 that included items like a skate park and motorized races.

"I really don't think we're doing a good job if we think we're going to build it and they will come. It's really about trying to get one or two long-term renters, adding some more events to the events we already have, supporting the sports and activities we have going on, and investigating and leaving it to the community to turn it into what they want as opposed to us having a specific agenda," Hill said. "I don't want to try and push something through and then have people five years from now saying, 'Why did they build that out there?'"

Board member Suze Wood said she presented the group's Equestrian Center Plan at the September city council meeting with the expectation that it would get tabled. However she said she was surprised at the specificity the council was requesting.

"They want a legal document. A draft of a lease that they can sign," she said.

Wood also addressed two main concerns with the master plan. First, she was uncomfortable investing money into a small start that might never evolve into what it was intended to be. Second, she said she wanted combined use of the facilities, but that it is important to determine what activities cannot be together. For instance, an archery range near the horse stalls.

Don Thomas Building
During the public comment portion of the meeting, discussion turned to the possibility of using the Don Thomas building as an arena, at least temporarily, as has been done in years past.

Equestrian and high school cross-country coach Ann Adams said that the roof leaks, there is a leaky faucet by the door, and the sawdust on the ground is unsafe for the horses.

"All you'd have to do is fix the roof, fix the leak, scrape all the sawdust out, put in some topsoil and work it once in awhile," she said.

Adams said the building is fairly small but is suitable for providing horses with exercise in the winter and holding smaller events.

Wood suggested that since the Lions Rib Feed, Junior Livestock Show, and Lions Salmon Bake take place between May and September, the sawdust could be removed after the Salmon Bake and the building could be used for winter riding until May, when the sawdust would be replaced.

The board agreed to check into the cost of making the needed repairs and removing the sawdust in the fall and replacing it in the spring.

Long Barn
The board discussed the removal, salvage or rehabilitation of the long barn at the fairgrounds. They decided they needed to get more community input in the decision-making process.

Community members are encouraged to utilize Facebook messaging and posting to communicate questions or information regarding the fairgrounds through these Facebook pages: Friends of the Waitsburg Fairgrounds, RV Tent Camping Waitsburg Washington, or Waitsburg Commercial Club. Or email waitsburgcc@icloud.com, or phone Joy Smith, Waitsburg Commercial Club President at (509) 539-8773.

The next Waitsburg Friends of the Fairgrounds meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. on Oct. 20 at the Ten Ton Press building. The public is invited to attend.

perform custodial and maintenance duties, calling in experts as necessary. Davison said recent repairs and upgrades include installing a row of electrical outlets under the kitchen serving window, testing and mounting fire extinguishers, repairing water damage, improving the microphone and projector systems, and upgrading to heavy duty switches in the electrical panel.

"Everyone helps out and everyone brings a talent. For example, Karl knows electricity, Jim helps with construction, and Ron knows about AV equipment," Davison said.

In 2015, two permanent office spaces, called fire-side rooms, off the hall's foyer, were renovated and are currently rented out to Resource Conservation and Development and New River Fellowship, which also rents the main hall for Sunday worship.

The building is used regularly by the American Legion and Auxiliary and the Christian Women's Connection, and is used for the annual Celebration Days Brewfest, Hometown Christmas, Sweet Onion Live Model Horse Show, and Society for Creative Anachronism (a medieval living history group) events.

The association also rents out the hall for events like wedding receptions, reunions, dances, and community meetings. A fully stocked, full service kitchen is available. Rental fees range from $55 to $250 based on the number of people attending the event.

Davison said that renting the Fireside Rooms, and having a few regular hall renters, has helped offset regular maintenance cost. But funding large repairs like replacing the heat pumps a few years back and the upcoming window replacements are still a challenge.

Davison also said there are plenty of items on the wish list. The board would love to replace the current dishwasher with a faster commercial model, and to exchange the heavy wooden tables with something lighter and easier to move around.

To rent Town Hall, call Jim Davison at (509) 337-6110. Additional information may be found on the Waitsburg Town Hall Facebook page or by calling President Ron Standing at (509) 520-9350.

Anyone wishing to donate funds toward new windows may give them to any board member or send a check to Waitsburg Town Hall, PO Box 122, Waitsburg, WA 99361.

DW Jumps on Mabton Early, Wins 55-30

CAL MARTIN RUNS FOR FOUR TOUCHDOWNS, MAKES 17 TACKLES, AS DW PUSHES RECORD TO 5-1

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

DAYTON – It was homecoming night for both Dayton and Waitsburg high schools Friday, and the DW football team gave students from both schools something to cheer about. The home team easily overpowered Mabton and cruised to a 55-30 victory that wasn't as close as the score indicated.

DW remained tied at the top of the Eastern Washington Athletic Conference standings with Kittitas, who beat DeSales Friday, 38-20. Each team is 4-0 in league play. DW is 5-1 overall, while Kittitas is 5-0.

DW capitalized on Mabton mistakes to take an early lead. After DW kicked off to open the game, the defense held Mabton, and on fourth down, in punt formation, a bad snap allowed the defense to tackle the punter behind the line of scrimmage, and DW took over on downs at the Mabton 41.

DW struggled on their first drive as well. A recovered fumble for a loss of five yards, and two Travis Crockett runs that went nowhere, left DW facing fourth and 15 on the Mabton 46. DW elected not to kick, and after quarterback Jacob Dunn scrambled to his left, he found receiver Ben Kleck wide open on the left side. Kleck caught the ball at about the 15 and scored easily. A Joe Adams kick gave DW a 7-0 lead with less than four minutes gone.

"They were really keying on Travey (running back Travis Crockett)," said Dayton coach Troy Larsen. "We ran a play action and their linebackers went for the runner (Crockett). That left Ben wide open."

On Mabton's next drive, Dunn, playing free safety, picked off a Mabton pass and ran it down to the 26-yard line. On first down, with the offense in a spread formation, running back Cal Martin took the ball over the middle and scored easily for the first of his four touchdowns on the night. With 7:11 to go in the first quarter, it was 14-0.

DW recovered a fumble on Mabton's next drive and took over on the Mabton 22. A pass to Crockett and a Dunn keeper moved the ball to inside the one-yard line. Martin punched it in on the next play and DW led 20-0 with just under six minutes left in the first quarter.

Larsen said he was pleased to see his team take a quick lead, after struggling in the first quarter in games earlier in the season. "One of our goals was to get a fast start," he said. "We did it last week and this week."

DW scored three more times in the second quarter, on a 10-yard run by Martin, a 30-yard pass from Dunn to receiver Nick Kitselman, and, with no time left on the clock, a 39-yard bomb from Dunn to Tanner Bren, who was wide open in the end zone.

In the third quarter Larsen kept his starters in the game, to work on offensive play combinations, and try to run down the clock with some long drives.

"It got a little ugly, and we had a couple of four and outs," Larsen said. "But we got some good work in, and we learned some things that'll help us later on."

Later in the quarter, Martin scored his fourth TD of the night, on a five-yard run, to build the DW lead to 49-14.

Larsen let his second-string players take over in the fourth quarter. They gave up a couple of late TDs to Mabton, but were able to score again, on a 25-yard run by Chris Philbrook.

While he was held scoreless for the first time this year, Crockett once again led his team in rushing, with 133 yards on 20 carries. Martin carried the ball seven times for 58 yards and four touchdowns.

Dunn was 16 for 25 passing for 267 yards and three touchdowns. He was intercepted once.

Bren caught six catches for 103 yards and one TD. Kleck had four catches for 89 yards and one touchdown.

On Defense, Martin had 17 tackles and Tristan Willis had six.

Larsen praised Martin for his dominant game. "Besides his four touchdowns, Cal continued his great play on defense," Larsen said. "He had a heck of a game."

Dayton-Waitsburg hosts White Swan in Waitsburg Friday night for senior night.

White Swan won their first game of the year last week, but Larsen said he isn't taking them lightly. "They've been in almost every game," he said, pointing to two losses by less than five points. "We can't look past them."

Adams Takes 3rd at Richland Invite

WAITSBURG SENIOR IS 3RD OUT OF 108 RUNNERS ON TOUGH HILLY COURSE

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

RICHLAND – At the Richland Invite cross-country meet on Friday, Waitsburg's Emily Adams had a strong race, finishing 3rd out of 108 runners in the Division II varsity heat.

"Emily finished very strong and solid," said Waitsburg coach Ann Adams. "She got boxed in a bit at the start but handled the pressure, working her way up to the front of the pack where she just continued to pick up her pace."

Adams' time of 19:06.75 was a season record for three miles. She beat her time on the Richland course last year by 42 seconds.

Skylar Wood ran the Division II varsity race for the boys and finished in a time of 19:20.02. He placed 109th out of 135 runners.

"Skylar did a great job, another large heat," said Adams. "He finished very strong, passing a few other runners in the final stretch."

Daltin Lambert ran in the freshman/sophomore race, placing 139th out of 432 runners with a Personal Record for a three-mile course of 19:46.88.

"He paced himself well and fought hard for a good spot," Adams said of Lambert. "I am very pleased with how well he handled the pressure of such a large race."

Tom House, Joe Leamy and TJ Morrison all ran in the Junior/Senior race for the Cardinals. Leamy finished with a time of 21:37.43, for 169th place out of 232 runners. House had a time of 22:11.15, for 182nd, and Morrison finished in 24:10.15, for 213th.

"Joe ran his best race this season," said Adams. "He looked strong and solid. He was smart and kept moving up."

Emily Adams is greeted by former Richland coach Max Jensen.

Jensen initiated the Richland Invite in 1969. This year Richland dedicated the meet to him and in the future it will be called the Max Jensen Memorial invite.

Before moving to Richland, Coach Jensen competed in track and XC at WSU. He started the Richland XC team in 1963 and led them to multiple state championships. He was inducted into the Washington State XC coaches hall of fame in 1994. He awarded medals to the top three finishers on Saturday.

"This was a good week for the Cardinal volleyball team," said Waitsburg coach Angie Potts. "We played six out of eight sets with great consistency and were able to re-group and bounce back after two sets we lost to St. John to win that match in five.

"This team has really good chemistry and is a lot of fun to watch," Potts added. "They bring quite a bit of energy to each match. We're still continuing to emphasize cutting down on our unforced errors but I'm very proud of the progress they've made this season."

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX

Sausage and Apple Stuffed Squash

True confession. I had this other recipe for this week, but I copied only enough for me to go off of and I didn't want to chance sharing it. My plan is to alternate weeks with dessert, bread, entrée, and vegetable. This is vegetable week and I wanted something with apple. I came across a yummy looking fruit salad, but its fall and I've moved onto warmer dishes. This does have apples and vegetables in it so it's close enough for me and it's very close to the recipe I was going to share.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 acorn squash-halved and seeded | 4 oz mushrooms, chopped |
| 1 TBSP butter, melted | 2 apples, cored and chopped |
| ¼ tsp garlic salt | 1 c. fine breadcrumbs |
| ¼ tsp sage | ½ tsp sage |
| 1# pork sausage (regular seasoning) | salt and pepper |
| ½ c. onion | 1 egg beaten |
| 1 celery rib, finely chopped | 2 TBSP fresh parsley, chopped |

Combine the melted butter, garlic salt, and ¼ tsp sage. Brush over cut side and cavity of squash. Salt and pepper to taste. Bake in large roasting pan, cut side up, at 400 degrees for 1 hour, or until squash is tender yet still holds its shape.

Meanwhile, make the stuffing. Fry pork sausage until light brown. Remove and drain well, leaving a few tablespoons of drippings in pan. Add onion, celery, and mushrooms, sauté for 4 minutes. Stir in apple and sauté for 2 more minutes.

Combine sausage, vegetables, apple, and breadcrumbs in a large bowl. Taste and season with sage, salt and pepper to taste. Stir in egg and parsley.

Fill the squash halves with stuffing, return to oven for 20 more minutes, until egg is set. Garnish with parsley and shredded romano cheese.

MY NOTES: I will try not to get "snarky", but when I copy recipes, I leave out the obvious, like sauté for 4 minutes, then 2 more minutes. I would never time that, or measure the onions and mushrooms (seriously, 4 ounces??) and who wouldn't drain the sausage? We have Panko crumbs so I would use them for the bread crumbs. I would never copy "apples, cored and chopped" because that's obvious. See?, Then when I dig the recipe out of the box, I have questions. I think I will make this soon, but I won't be measuring the onion or mushrooms or timing my sauté. I'm sure substituting turkey sausage would be fine. And I will be checking the squash after 45 minutes, which should be plenty.

Enjoy!
