PIE PICKERS

Karen Gregutt is Chosen to Fill Empty Waitsburg Council Seat

NEWEST MEMBER SAYS SHE WILL BRING CREATIVITY AND DECADES OF BUSINESS EXPERIENCE TO THE COUNCIL

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Karen Gregutt was selected to fill the vacant seat on Waitsburg's City Council at a special meeting on Sept. 15. Gregutt was sworn in as a council member and mayor pro tem Marty Dunn took the oath of mayor at the conclusion of the meeting.

Gregutt was the first to submit an application to fill the vacancy left by Dunn when he took assumed duties of former mayor Walt Gobel, who resigned in August. Gregutt was also the next highest vote-getter in the last election, just nine votes shy of winning the fifth place council seat.

Gregutt was selected from a field of five residents who applied for the position. Other applicants included Jim Davison, Debra Callahan, Jeanie Miller and Lisa Morrow. Applicants were interviewed by the council, with each giving a brief introduction and then answering the same three questions.

The council took a 10-minute executive session before returning with a unanimous vote for Gregutt. The executive session may have been short, but council member Kevin House said that choosing a winner was one of the tougher decisions he's had to make since being on council.

Council member KC Kuykendall agreed, saying he based his decision on the fact that Gregutt had received the next highest votes in the recent election. "The candidates were all very qualified and each had strong points," he said.

During the interview, each candidate was asked the same set of questions.

Kate Hockersmith asked what unique skills and characteristics each candidate brought to the role of council member. Gregutt said she is very creative and takes a creative approach to problem solving and promoting Waitsburg. She gave examples of organizing the Waitsburg Garden Club, brainstorming the Laurette McCaw Invitational Pie-Oneer Pie Baking Contest fundraiser, and promoting Waitsburg through her Waitsburg Windows of Art program, which has turned empty Main Street storefronts into mini art galleries.

Gregutt said that her many years of successful business experience, including work in Europe, has prepared her well for work-

Port Commissioners Discuss Rail Rehab

Long-term development plan for Lyon's Ferry Marina, new BMS Building also discussed

By Michele Smith
THE TIMES

DAYTON—Port Manager Jennie Dickinson said a plan to write a five to 10-page strategy request, making the case to the Washington State legislature for funding for rehabilitation of the rail lines for the Columbia/Walla Walla short line railroad, is in the works.

Chris Herman, Senior Director of Trade and Transportation for the Washington Public Ports Association, who also has background in the Rail Division at the WSDOT, is helping the port in that endeavor, said Dickinson.

"I write, Chris reviews, local meeting with agencies, and move forward with a plan to try and get some money from the legislature," Dickinson told the commissioners.

Herman will help share the port's message with legislators and he will also help identify grant and loan programs for the rail project, she said.

Commissioner Earle Marvin made a motion to approve a grant agreement for the second rail bank, for rail siding, in the amount of $230,000, which was seconded by Chairman Gene Warren. The motion carried.

Port officials said the 25-year lease with the Army Corps of Engineers for Lyon's Ferry Marina will expire on Dec. 31 of this year.

The Corps has a new lease ready, but has asked that a long-term development plan for Lyon's Ferry Marina be attached to it, according to Dickinson.

JUDGE RULES FOR DAYTON IN DISPUTE WITH COUNTY

DAYTON – On Sept. 14, Columbia County Superior Court Judge Jackie Shea-Brown ruled that the City of Dayton proved its burden in asking for an emergency temporary restraining order against Columbia County, requiring the county to continue providing municipal prosecution, and indigent defense services to the City.

The judge cited real injury to health, welfare, and safety of citizens if prosecutorial cases are not handled in a timely manner.

Columbia County Prosecutor Rea Culwell informed the city earlier this month that, because of a dispute with Columbia County Commissioners, her office will likely lose significant grant funding and therefore have to cut services, including those her office provides to the city.

Last week, the city, which has a contract with the county for prosecution and indigent defense, requested a temporary injunction against the county to require that the county's end of the contract be met.

After the judge's ruling, Culwell said that the court "reserved ruling on whether it could order an elected prosecutor to prosecute city cases, considering the Prosecutor is not a party to the contract between the City and the County."

In her ruling, the judge asked that both parties provide briefings this week on the question of how the county's end of the contract must be met.

Resource Center Will Sponsor Weekend Food Program

Donations to support Bite 2 Go program are welcomed

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The board of the Waitsburg Resource Center is always looking for more ways to serve the community. At their most recent meeting, they voted to utilize Second Harvest's Bite 2 Go program to provide weekend meals to elementary students in need.

The WRC has spent several months investigating the idea of providing weekend meal kits for elementary school students from needy families. Board Chair Pam Conover said District School Superintendent Carol Clarke recently polled teachers, who came up with a list of approximately 25 students they thought could benefit from the meals.

After learning of a similar program in Pomeroy, Conover and WRC board member Margie Benson visited there earlier this year, to see how their program was operated. Recently, Conover learned that Second Harvest has already developed the Bite 2 Go program, and that the WRC can participate in it through the Blue Mountain Action Council (BMAC).

WRC will serve as the sponsoring organization, pick up pre-assembled food kits from the BMAC Food Bank in Walla Walla, and deliver them to the school. Each kit includes food supplies that cover four meals and three snacks that are nutritious, easy-to-open, non-perishable, and don't require cooking.

The district will send home permission slips allowing families they feel could benefit from the program to sign up. Teachers will place the kits discreetly in backpacks belonging to participating students while the students are at lunch or recess.

The kits are purchased in bulk by Second Harvest and cost $4 per kit. It will cost the WRC $144 per student to provide weekend meals for the school year. The board has committed to funding meals for 25 students, at an approximate cost of $400/month or $3,600 for the school year.

The WRC welcomes donations from individuals or organizations willing to help offset the ongoing cost of the program. Conover said the Center has the funds to get the program started, but will need community support to maintain it in future years.

With the goal of being more than just a food bank, the WRC meets the needs of the community in a variety of ways. The WRC supplies snacks for the summer reading program, provides meals and activities for students during the winter school break, and meets the Yellow shirts, green pants and red fire trucks have all but disappeared from around Waitsburg, Dayton and the Blue Mountains as the 109,402-acre Columbia Complex fire shifted from a Type II incident to Type III earlier this week. Personnel on the fire, at one time numbering about 1,700, dropped from 559 on Saturday to 67 as of deadline Tuesday.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Hofer can now be dubbed "The Heart Attack Kid" as he held coaches, fellow players and fans in disbelief for 59 seconds, before coming back with an awesome interception at just the right time.

At Waitsburg's last two cross country meets, freshman runner Maya Garcia has finished third and second, respectively. She finished a three-mile course at St. John on Sept. 21 third out of 18 and a 5 K course Pasco's Big Cross, second out of 13 Sept. 23.

A husband and wife team has purchased the Jackpot convenience store at 715 Preston Avenue. Bob and Carol Patton of Waitsburg bought the store on Sept. 10 from long-time owner Bob Jameson.

Jocelyn Leid, an eighth-grader in Waitsburg, won a first place Saturday in the 20th anniversary Eddie MacMurdo Memorial Horse Show at the Southeastern Washington Fairgrounds in Walla Walla.

The first rehearsal for a new community choir is scheduled for Oct. 2 at the First Presbyterian Church in Waitsburg. The public is welcome to join the choir, forming under the direction of Melissa Ferrians, of the First Christian Church and Anita Baker of the Presbyterian church.

City Councilman Bob Abbey says something has to be done about the lack of public restrooms at the city park. He said recently members of the 55 Club, the senior citizens group, had to clean the restrooms at the city pool so they could be used by members who attended a club get-together across the street in the park.

Cathy McCown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe McCown and a 1963 graduate of Waitsburg High School was selected this week to represent Columbia County as Wheat Queen. Runner up for the queen spot was Margaret DeRuwe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer DeRuwe of Dayton.

Capt. Jack H Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts of Waitsburg, has recently been awarded the Air Medal for his performance during 19 missions flown from his base on Guam over Viet Nam.

J. H. Harmon and William Bruce met with the misfortune to lose a $2,000 Clyde stallion on Tuesday night. He died suddenly, and what ailed him is a mystery. Fortunately, they had a life insurance policy on him for $1,000.

When the clouds of last Monday night cleared away a new coating of snow was plainly visible on the Blue Mountains and the atmosphere was delightfully cool and bracing.

Just to show us how ranchers live in this country, and thereby make us feel bad, our friend Milt Jonas last Saturday brought to this office a box of "pickings from the farm." The box contained corn, equal to the best Iowa production, potatoes and more than a dozen kinds of fruit - apples, plums, etc. Joking aside, we don't believe there is a country on earth, the farmers of which live so well as do the farmers in our own beloved state of Washington.

Dickinson told the commissioners that she has been in talks with Lyons Ferry Marina operator Jim MacArthur about some ideas he has for the marina, and with the Recreation Conversation Office, about the kinds of projects that can be funded through RCO grants.

Dickinson told the commissioners that some of the problems at the marina include a 45-year silting process at the breakwater and in the area of a couple of the docks, moorages that are too small, crib walls that are wearing out, and no electricity to current transient moorage.

There is also the need for two boat launches, a new fuel line for diesel, pull-through RV spaces, and repairs to the upland restroom and shower house, Dickinson said.

"The RCO doesn't fund covered moorage, or permanent moorage, only transient moorage with day or 10-day use," said Dickinson. "We need a plan to reconfigure the whole area."

Dickinson proposed hiring a consultant to help with the creation of a master plan, and targeting the 2018 RCO funding cycle.

"It sounds kind of exciting, actually. Fun to see it in a little bit different way," said Dickinson.

The commissioners also discussed elements in a draft of the raw-land lease for a second building at the Blue Mountain Station. The lease will be between the port and the builder, Tucannon Development LLC, Dickinson said.

Port of Columbia Economic Development Coordinator Brad McMasters said he is working with the Viticulture and Enology Program Director at WWCC, and is hoping to recruit a winemaker for the fourth space in the second building at the Blue Mountain Station.

McMasters said he has two more potential tenants for the new building, and he is working on true square-footage pricing, to help get tenants into the new building. McMasters said he continues to work with tenants at Blue Mountain Station.

"They seem to be plugging away with wholesale accounts, and preparing for winter," said McMasters.

McMasters is also working with the "Choose Columbia County" campaign in conjunction with the Dayton Chamber of Commerce, and the regional economist, to determine retail leakage.

McMasters pointed out that Columbia County is one of the lowest counties in state per capita retail sales, but that spending in convenience stores is higher per capita in the county.

"It's been fun to work with the Chamber on this," McMasters said.

McMasters said he is looking forward to a Shop Local campaign kick-off in the near future.

McMasters also helped to organize recent Community Conversations through the Community Council of Walla Walla, including the Sept. 21 community conversation in Dayton.

"This is the second round. They have gathered the data and determine what people think will benefit the community. They will take the information and prioritize what's most important, based on the data, and move forward," McMasters said.

Trump Frees Republicans From Rigid Litmus Tests

By Ramesh Ponnuru, Bloomberg View

Over the span of two days, the Republican nominee for president has proposed new child-care subsidies, new mandatory benefits to be provided by business, the removal of millions of families from the income-tax rolls, and an increase in tax rates on single people making from $112,500 to $190,000 a year. Oh, and he put in a good word for Medicaid too, leaving the impression with many people that he favors expanding it.

Trump's Republican critics say that these announcements prove what they have been saying all along: that he is no conservative. None of the Republicans he beat in the primaries would have pursued these initiatives. But the difference between Trump and other Republicans isn't just that he has different views. It's also that he has less fear.

In recent years, Republican politicians have tended to keep heterodox thoughts about policy to private conversations, or not voiced them at all. They thought that they needed to stay within tightly drawn lines to avoid conservative criticism -- criticism that could cost them primaries, or depress Republican turnout in general elections.

And those lines kept getting narrower. Propose a replacement for Obamacare that sought to keep millions of people from losing coverage, and you'd meet the accusation of favoring "Obamacare lite." Some Republicans thought that they could achieve perfect conservative reputations by proposing to put everyone, no matter how poor, on the tax rolls.

Republicans who proposed ideas that did not fit within these lines did so very carefully. Like Trump, Marco Rubio came out with a tax plan that cut taxes in general, helped parents and raised tax rates on some affluent single people. But some conservatives criticized the plan, and he dropped the increased tax rates.

Trump has proved that those fears were overstated or, at least, that they do not apply to him. None of these positions seem to be costing him any of his supporters, just as his opposition to entitlement reform and free trade did not keep him from winning the Republican nomination.

Trump even managed to wriggle out

HARVARD PROFESSOR: 'IT IS NATURAL AND NORMAL TO BE PHYSICALLY LAZY'

By Colby Itkowitz, The Washington Post

Imagine you've set your alarm to go for an early-morning run before work. But when it goes off at 6, the embrace of your warm, cozy bed is too enticing and you never make it out the door. Or perhaps you've packed exercise clothes with plans to hit a spin class after work. But then the allure of happy hour, or even your couch, persuades you to skip it.

Even those with the best of intentions often struggle to motivate themselves to work out. There's almost always a powerful temptation to do something, or anything, else.

This can feel like a personal failing, as though the decision not to exercise were a sign of weak character, or at least willpower.

But you may just be giving in to humans' evolutionary instinct to be lazy.

At least that's the theory of one Harvard professor who believes our ancestors exerted so much energy hunting and gathering that they sought rest whenever they could. We are predisposed to want to conserve energy.

Daniel Lieberman, an expert in human evolutionary biology, posed in a 2015 paper, "Is Exercise Really Medicine? An Evolutionary Perspective," that it's not our natural inclination to exercise for health alone.

"It is natural and normal to be physically lazy," he writes. "... I predict that hunter-gatherers in the Kalahari or the Amazon are just as likely as 21st century Americans to instinctually avoid unnecessary exertion. Although a small percentage of people today exercise as a form of medicine, doing their prescribed dose, the vast majority of people today behave just as their ancestors by exercising only when it is fun (as a form of play) or when necessary."

Lieberman explains that our ancestors struggled to amass enough food to make up for the calories they burned tracking down that food. So they needed to conserve their energy when they could. Most modern humans who do exercise don't need to worry about whether after a hard workout they will be able to make up for the calorie deficit.

"Our instincts are always to save energy. For most of human evolution that didn't matter because if you wanted to put dinner on the table you had to work really hard," Lieberman said in an interview. "It's only recently, we have machines and technology to make our lives easier. ... We've inherited these ancient instincts, but we've created this dream world and the result is inactivity."

He points to escalators in a mall or a subway station. When they are positioned near stairs, most people will choose the ones that move for them. This is often true for elevators in buildings as well. People will drive around a parking lot several times looking for the closest spot rather than park farther away and have to walk the relatively short distance.

Bradley Cardinal, a professor at Oregon State University with an expertise in psychosocial and sociocultural aspects of health and physical activity, isn't entirely convinced that humans' reluctance to move is all biological, although he said he is intrigued by Lieberman's theory.

"I'm still trying to decide if it's learned or biological," he said. "These classic questions of nature and nurture, when I think about that, well, we have a lot of competing things in our environment that make it so hard to move."

Cardinal believes there are factors from childhood that may determine how active you are later in life. In a 2013 study, he found that people who had a negative experience with physical activity when they were younger, such as being picked last for a team, tended to exercise less than those who didn't have that experience.

Still, Cardinal, as well as Lieberman, think this idea that our penchant for rest is an evolutionary trait humans must fight continually may actually improve people's relationships with exercise. There is so much self and societal shame associated with not working out, that going to the gym, or for a run, can often feel like a chore. If they can stop berating themselves and accept that wanting to skip a workout is a completely normal human response, they might begin to untangle the negative associations with exercise.

"People are often made to feel bad [for not exercising] and I think that's just as pernicious and wrong and irresponsible as shaming people for being overweight," Lieberman said. It's not our fault that we are physically inactive, we live in a world that encourages that. They shouldn't be made to feel bad. We need help and we've created a world where we don't have to do it anymore."

Educating people on the health benefits of exercise and movement is not enough to override this basic instinct, he said. There needs to be a cultural and environmental shift in how our physical activity is prioritized in schools and work. There need to be incentives to move. And although we're not going to return to chasing our dinner, there might be monetary incentives through health insurance, for example, that could encourage people off the couch, he said. He is also an advocate for making physical education a required course in college.

There's also the element of play. One way adults have always done this is through dance. But after their 20s, how many people go out dancing anymore? People are more inclined to be physically active when it's done socially. Lieberman said it's no coincidence that some of the biggest fundraising events in the world are marathons.

"We tie physical activity to community," he said. "I think that has ancient and deep roots. It's a communal issue, so we have to help each other. This individualist attitude we take, it doesn't work that way, it never worked that way. The most effective exercise programs are ones that are social and communal and it's always been that way. People for millions of years went out [hunting and gathering] in groups."

SUPPORT URGED FOR KIMBALL

Dear Editor,

I have enjoyed the privilege of working alongside Todd Kimball as a Supervisor for the Walla Walla County Conservation District for over 10 years. Todd is a rare combination of education, talent, experience, and personality. His deep understandings of business and tax law is a tremendous asset for any organization he is involved with but add to that his farming background, work experience, and his ability to communicate effectively, and you have a package that can really make a difference. I believe that having Todd involved in the governance of our county would be a tremendous benefit due to his business knowledge, problem solving ability, and his connections and experience within the agricultural and conservation communities of the county and state. I have tremendous faith in Todd's ability to make good sound decisions and to represent the citizens of his district with integrity, common sense, and honor. I greatly appreciate his willingness to offer up his services for the good of the county and our community.

Dear Editor,

I had the opportunity to work with Todd Kimball as a Board Member for nine years while I was Manager of Northwest Grain Growers. Todd was an outstanding board member during his term. His ability to explore opportunities and offer creative solutions greatly contributed to the financial stability of the Co-Op. His experiences as a farmer and a CPA gave him a unique perspective of the farming community as well as the ability to look at our financial statements and recognize potential opportunities. Northwest Grain Growers reached gross revenues of almost $250 million and excellent profits during his tenure. I support Todd in his efforts to be a County Commissioner for Walla Walla and know that if elected, he will serve this community well.

CONGRATULATIONS TO GREGUTT

Dear Editor,

Congratulations to Karen Gregutt for being selected to fill the vacant seat on the Waitsburg City Council for the remainder of the current term. Community members in attendance at the September 15 special City Council meeting to interview candidates learned there was a field of qualified candidates who voluntarily put their names in the running for the vacant seat. The information and answers provided by those candidates made the choice that much more difficult for the existing council members. One of the themes in answer to a question asked was Waitsburg needs to broaden its tax base by attracting new business. You may have connections/contacts unknown to others which could be beneficial toward that endeavor. Be part of the solution by helping your elected officials find ways to make Waitsburg's downtown as vibrant as in the past. Open store fronts with employees selling products will help support our schools and city infrastructure. Again, congratulations Karen.

When past Republicans have spoken similarly, they have been accused of supporting "amnesty" -- sometimes by Trump himself.

On many issues, Trump has maintained the party line. He became an opponent of abortion and same-sex marriage before running for the Republican nomination; he says he will repeal Obamacare and oppose general tax increases. But he has exercised more freedom than Republican politicians dreamed they had. For years, they have been complaining that purists had imposed a series of litmus tests that kept their party from winning elections or governing well.

For good or ill, and probably some of both, that stranglehold now appears to be broken.

FOUR NEW COLUMBIA COUNTY HIRES

New sheriff's deputy, GIS Specialist, road crew worker and engineer

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Columbia County Sheriff's Department has a new deputy, and the Public Works Department has three new hires.

Robbie Patterson's first day with the Sheriff's department began on Sept. 12, and was filled with the usual orientation procedures, he said. Patterson said he knew when he was in high school he wanted a career in law enforcement.

Patterson, who originally hails from Laurinburg, North Carolina, met his wife Crystal, there. He said they left Laurinburg in 2002 for Fort Lewis, Wash., when Patterson joined the Army.

Patterson was a paratrooper with the Army First Special Forces, and throughout his four years at Fort Lewis he was an instructor in martial arts, he said.

When Patterson left the Army in 2006, he said that he trained and worked as a union carpenter, but he also attended Covenant Seminary and Northwest University. In 2010 he took over pastoral duties at a church in Bellevue, Wash., he said.

Patterson said he looks forward to attending police academy, in Burien, Wash., beginning in October.

Patterson also said he looks forward to becoming a part of the Dayton community, and he intends to "make the rounds" in the Christian community, looking for a church. He said he would also like to apply his martial arts skills in a teaching capacity in the community.

The Pattersons are looking for a four-bedroom home in the rural Dayton area to rent so they can settle in with their three children; Lillian, 14, Robbie II, 13, and Joseph, 11. The couple is also expecting their fourth child, Patterson said.

Eian Ray is the new GIS specialist in the Public Works Department. His job is to manage geographic information system data to run analyses, to help make decisions that are based on geographic cartography maps.

Ray hails from the Yakima area, and earned a BA in geography with GIS certification from Central Washington University in Ellensburg, in 2008. He also earned an MBA from Marylhurst University in Portland, Ore., in 2013.

From 2008 to 2012, Ray worked for the Bureau of Land Management in Oregon, and then in the Realty Department for the Makah Indian Tribe, on the Olympic Peninsula, from 2012 until his employment in Columbia County, he said.

"I always wanted to work on a county level. The job is interesting, and I have family in the area. Everything just worked out," Ray said.

When he is not working, Ray said he enjoys adventure driving. He said he and a partner make one or two, trips per year. "In 2015 we drove to Guatemala and back to Seattle in two weeks," Ray said.

In January of this year the pair drove from Seattle to the Arctic to watch the winter solstice, he said. Ray said he looks forward to driving the Al-Can 5,000, sometime in the future.

Lisha Thomas is also new to the Public Works Department.

Thomas was helping fix a sewer line break in front of the Public Works Department during her second week of work for the county, where she is employed as a laborer/operator.

Thomas grew up in the Willamette Valley and after graduating from Lebanon-Union High School in 1989, she ended up in eastern Washington, where she worked in construction.

"I've done construction most of my life," said Thomas.

Thomas' work has included; traffic control supervisor, equipment operator for Ray Poland and Sons, in the Tri-Cities, and equipment operator for Dennis Myers Construction in the Tri-Cities, from 2014 until her employment with the Columbia County Public Works Department, she said.

Thomas has two sons, Seth Williams, 22, and Colton Williams, 18. She and her husband, Bob Thomas, moved to Dayton because of family ties he has in the area, she said.

"I love it here in Dayton," said Thomas.

When asked about her hob-

Lisha Thomas

bies, the word that came to her mind was "horses". Thomas said her goal is to get into barrel racing at some point.

Jeff McCowen is not a new employee in Columbia County, but he is new to the Engineering Department in the Public Works Department.

McCowen said he began working at the Columbia County transfer facility in June of 2008, and that he transferred to the county road crew in 2010, and then into his current position in 2016.

McCowen said he comes out of the "school of hard knocks," and attributes his new position in the Public Works Department to "spending some time in the Engineering Department, whenever I was pulled out, to assist in bridge and road inspections."

"I've been given opportunities through my employment with Columbia County," said McCowen.

When McCowen isn't at

work he and his wife, Melissa, are busy with their children; son Jordan, 7, and daughter Melissa, 5.

A big part of McCowen's life is also dedicated to other youth in the Dayton community, he said.

In his spare time McCowen is a soccer and girls' basketball coach at Dayton High School, and he is, also, a youth leader for YoungLife.

All of this keeps McCowen very busy. "I wouldn't mind having a seat once in a while. There are no idle moments," McCowen said.

Coming Soon to the Dayton Memorial Library

USED BOOK SALE, BANNED BOOK WEEK, FAMILY STORY TIME, AND MORE

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Dayton Memorial Library is offering some new activities, as well as some recurring activities, during the autumn months, according to the librarians.

Banned Book week runs from September 24 through October 1.

The Dayton Memorial Library is partnering with the Liberty Theater on Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 6:30 p.m., to show the movie The Indian in the Cupboard, according to librarian Dusty Waltner.

Banned Book Week began in 1982, and it is a call to celebrate the freedom to read, and of individual choice in what to read. The Indian in the Cupboard has been challenged due to stereotypical characterizations, said Kirsten Schober, manager at the Liberty Theater.

Prior to viewing the film on the 28th, youth will read their favorite passages from books they love that have been banned, Schober said.

The Friends of the Library Used Book Sale will take place on Friday, Sept. 30, from 10 a.m., to 6 p.m., and, again, on Saturday, Oct. 1, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

On the first Tuesday of every month, families and children of all ages can gather in the library for a Family Story Time. Thirty minutes of stories and songs, followed by chili and cornbread, and apple cider, is on tap for the first Family Story Time, which takes place on Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 6 p.m.

An Autumnal Equinox program will take place on Thursday, Sept. 22 at 3:15 p.m., and is the first in a series of programs the library will offer on alternating Thursdays.

Learning about how the earth tilts on its axis, discussing springtime in the southern hemisphere, and exploring traditions and folklore in that part of the world, are on tap for the Sept. 22 program. Snacks and drinks will be provided, and there will be craft projects as well, according to the librarians.

"Sit, Stay, and Read" will alternate with the special Thursday programs. Children are invited to read aloud with "Tex" the Library Dog, on Sept. 29, at 3:15 p.m., and every other week thereafter.

The Dayton Writer's Group continues to meet on the fourth Thursday of each month, from 6:30 to 8 p.m., in the Delany room, and all levels and styles of writers are welcome, the librarians said.

Book Chat takes place on the third Thursday of each month from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Delany room. Literary conversation, games, and discussion are on-going for Book Chat attendees. Bring your own beverage. Snacks will be provided by the library staff.

AFTER SCHOOL PROGRAM MOVED TO OCTOBER

DAYTON—The 2016-17 After School Program has been moved forward to an Oct. 4 start date, and it will run for seven weeks during the fall quarter, according to Peggy Guterrez, Drug Free Grant Coordinator for the Coalition for Youth and Families.

The After School Program is being offered to third, fourth, fifth, and sixth graders in the Dayton School District, and will take place between from 3 to 4:30 p.m. on Tuesdays through Thursdays, she said.

Potential activities are cooking, gardening, art, photography, music, games, football, volleyball, baseball, basketball, soccer and softball.

The program had an original start date of September 20. The delay is due to the fact that a coordinator has only recently been identified.

Guterrez said that Shakira Bye has been hired to coordinate the program, and that Bye is connecting with volunteers to determine what specific activities will be offered during the fall quarter.

Emailed registration packets will be sent from the school district to parents of third, fourth, fifth and sixth graders, and they can also be obtained at the school, Guterrez said.

For further information about the After School Program contact Peggy Guterrez at: 382-1511.

Equestrian Center Plan Moves Forward

Fairgrounds Committee-approved plan will be presented to city council on Sept. 20

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – After months of debate and planning, the Waitsburg Fairgrounds Committee has finalized and approved a plan they will present to the Waitsburg City Council at the council's regular meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 20. Anticipating approval of the plan, a work day has been planned for Saturday, Oct. 22, as part of "Make a Difference Day."

The three-phased equestrian center plan proposes a renovation of the existing horse facilities at the Waitsburg Fairgrounds as well as construction of new riding arenas and amenities. Local equestrian and Fairgrounds Committee member Suze Wood developed the plans based on feedback from horse owners who participated in a survey last March. (See survey results below.)

Wood said her original plans were altered to accommodate the conflicting needs and space requirements of active community groups, as well as consideration for the City of Waitsburg, who owns and maintains the fairgrounds property.

Wood says the equestrian center has three main goals. The fairgrounds committee hopes to provide a horse-friendly environment where dedication to the welfare of the animals is a priority; create a resource that the community can be proud of; and make Waitsburg a desirable destination for traveling horse people and equestrian tourism.

The proposed primary equestrian center activities will include:

- A recreational facility for equestrians to ride, attend riding clinics and seminars, and compete at small local-level schooling shows and competitions.

- Coordination with 4-H, FFA, and other organizations to ensure that kids have access to recreation, mentoring, and learning opportunities related to horses and livestock. Groups will also have the opportunity to raise funds during local equestrian events.
- A horse hotel, or short-term layup facility, to serve equestrian travelers and horses with health needs who require stall rest and convalescence.
- A Year-round boarding facility for locals.

"This is an ambitious project which will require hard work, extensive fundraising, and is expected to begin modestly, with incremental improvements and strategic phased implementation to achieve the end goal," Wood said.

If approved by the city council, Phase One will kick off on Oct. 22 with a work party that will focus on cleaning up the existing buildings, renovating Barn B (known as the Railroad building), and preparing the grounds for pasture, leveled stalls, improved footing, and arenas. (See story at below right for more information on the Make a Difference work day.)

Phase One will be considered complete when fencing, shelter areas, and clean-up is completed to a level where the grounds are safe and habitable, with at least one barn and some pasture turnout available. The co-op will be established in Phase One, with special recognition of founding members, donors, and sponsors.

Phase Two will focus on the renovation of existing property, completing the fenced paddocks and outdoor arena, promotion of the facility for short-term stays, and fundraising for the covered arena.

Phase Three will include construction of the covered arena, stables completion, hiring employees and marketing use of the facility and sponsored events to people outside the area.

The equestrian center will be founded as a solidarity cooperative, meaning it will be and democratically controlled by customers and workers who have purchased a share of the business. Anyone can join, and owners get one vote and, from amongst themselves, elect a board of trustees.

A financial agreement with the City of Waitsburg is still to be worked out. The proposal states a preference for a standard lease contract with the city, with monthly payments adjusted to offset the cost of investment in property improvements.

The timeline is dependent on resources and funding, but the Fairgrounds Committee hopes to have the first phase completed by spring of 2017. They hope to establish an outdoor riding area and have the facility open to travelers for the summer 2017 traveling season.

EQUESTRIAN SURVEY RESULTS

VOLUNTEERS AND RESOURCES NEEDED FOR FAIRGROUNDS WORK DAY

COMMUNITY MEMBERS WILL JOIN LDS CHURCH FOR "MAKE A DIFFERENCE DAY" PROJECT

By Dena Wood THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – The LDS Church of Walla Walla has a tradition of volunteering to help communities on Make a Difference Day. This year, the church has chosen to donate their time and effort to Waitsburg fairgrounds renovation efforts. Local volunteers, donations and resources are needed to make the Oct. 22 workday a success.

The Waitsburg Commercial Club is working with the Waitsburg Friends of the Fairgrounds Committee to coordinate the project. Volunteer efforts will center around the proposed equestrian area at the fairgrounds, where barns, stalls, and grounds will be rehabbed.

"The project requires local volunteers on a large scale. We need about 200-300 Waitsburg community volunteers to work alongside the church volunteers to paint, dig, and do demolition and carpentry work," said Commercial Club President Joy Smith.

A detailed task list has been prepared for the event. Projects include: clearing downed tree limbs, clearing and preparing a pasture area, west parking lot improvements (including fence removal/replacement), north fencing and driveway access improvements, painting the 4-H barn, renovation of Barn B (the Railroad building), and work on the temporary barn and long shed row.

The Commercial Club will solicit monetary donations and donations of materials and equipment to accomplish the projects. Contact the Commercial Club via Facebook, via email at waitsburgcc@icloud.com, or contact Joy Smith at (509) 539-8773 to offer time, money or materials.

Donated items and services needed include: scissor lift, branch cutters, saws, chipper, tractor, earthmoving equipment, hole digging auger, electrical services, paint, ceiling fans, fencing materials, grass seed, tree services and gravel. An updated list of items needed will be posted on the Waitsburg Commercial Club Facebook page in the coming weeks.

In addition to the fairgrounds projects, senior citizens or those with disabilities that need help with yard work can be added to the project list.

Work will begin at 8 a.m. at the Waitsburg Fairgrounds on Oct. 22, and will conclude with a lunch at noon.

DW Runs Over DeSales, 40-18

CROCKETT SCORES FOUR TDS AND GAINS 355 YARDS; TEAM RECORD IS NOW 2-1

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – For the second week in a row, the Dayton-Waitsburg football team gave up an opening drive touchdown and fell behind early in the first quarter.

But this time, in their home game here Friday night against DeSales, DW dominated the Irish in the second half and won their second home game in as many weeks, 40-18.

Also, for the second week in a row, DW running back Travis Crockett scored four touchdowns, and again proved to be an offensive weapon that his team's opponent had no answer for.

Crockett finished the game with 355 yards total offense, giving him an even 600 yards offense in his first two games this year. He has also scored eight touchdowns in those two games. Crockett missed DW's season-opening loss to Mac-Hi.

DeSales took the game's opening kickoff and drove down the field to score with 2½ minutes gone. The first two DW possessions went nowhere.

DW coach Troy Larsen was suffering from the flu on Friday and coached from the press box as best he could. "I didn't want to be giving this to the players," he said of his illness. "Our pregame was different with me not there, and I think that affected our play in the first quarter. After they settled down we were fine."

Later in the first quarter, DeSales drove down the field again and set themselves up with first and goal at the DW 6, threatening to go up by two touchdowns. But Jacob Dunn, playing free safety for DW, intercepted a pass, squelching the Irish drive and giving his team possession on their own 4 with 1:45 to go in the first quarter.

On DW's next play, Crockett rumbled up the middle and then cut through the Irish secondary to the right sideline, springing to the end zone to score from 96 yards out to even the game at six. It was the momentum changer.

"Travis is so fast and reads the defense so well, if we can bust him loose with one block he can get a big gain or be gone," said Larsen. "That's what you saw on that first score. He's fun to watch."

After a three and out by the Irish, DW started their next drive from their own 31. A 22-yard Crockett run was followed by a pass over the middle from quarterback Dunn to running back Cal Martin for 24 more yards. DW drove the ball to the one, before Martin punched it in at 9:19 to go in the second. After the game's third point-after attempt failed, DW led 12-6.

DeSales punted on their next possession, but DW lost a fumble and the Irish took over on the DW 18. On a quick overhead-lateral-and-pass play, DeSales evened the score at 12, with 5:58 remaining in the half.

DW and DeSales traded punts on each of their next possessions, and DW found themselves with first and 10 on their own 8 with 2:40 to go in the half.

Crockett quickly picked up 32 yards on a run, and then Nic Kitselman caught a pass over the middle for 20 more. An unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on DeSales gave DW the ball on the Irish 25 with a minute to go. Three plays later, DW faced fourth and 1 on the 16 with just a few seconds remaining in the half.

After Crockett got the first down on a run up the middle, Dunn threw a bullet to Kitselman, who scored with one tick left on the clock. This time, DW was successful on a two-point conversion, courtesy of a Crockett run up the middle, and DW went into halftime with a 20-12 lead.

"I've been really happy with Nick Kitselman's play," coach Larsen said. "We have him in at slot receiver, and he gives us a great weapon there."

DW took the second half kickoff, but on their third play of the half, Dunn threw an interception, and DeSales took over on the DW 32.

The Irish quickly drove for a touchdown, and after a failed 2-point attempt, DW held on to a slim 20-18 lead, with 7:46 to go in the third.

But it was all DW football from there. Crockett scored on a 23-yard pass from Dunn, at 1:42 in the third, pushing the lead to 26-18.

The teams traded possessions over the next seven minutes, before Crockett extended DW's lead with a 33-yard run up the middle, with 6:25 on the clock. After a Martin 2-point conversion, it was 34-18.

After DW's defense shut down the Irish over the final 1½ quarters, Crockett put the proverbial icing on the cake with 11 seconds left in the game, running the ball in from the 18 to push the score to 40-18.

Coach Larsen said that, for the second week in a row, he switched his defense from 3-4 to 4-4 midway through the game, adding a down lineman. "We seem to do better with a four-man front," he said. "That's where our talent is. It looks like we'll be sticking with that."

Crockett's heroics included 245 yards rushing on 16 carries, with three touchdowns, along with 110 yards receiving on seven catches and one TD. He also had seven tackles on defense.

Dunn had an outstanding day passing, completing 14 of 22 attempts for 195 yards and two touchdowns.

Martin picked up 57 yards rushing on nine carries.

On defense, cornerback Tanner Bren made 11 tackles, and lineman Cade Branson and linebacker Martin each had 10.

"Bren was our player of the game on defense," Larsen said. "He had 11 tackles, and he had four knockdowns. He's doing an outstanding job at cornerback."

The DW team travels to Pasco Friday night to take on Tri-Cities Prep, in a game that starts at 7 p.m.

"Prep is probably the best team in the league we'll play this year," Larsen said. "They're a running team, so we'll probably go with a four or even five-man front on D."

Lady Cards Upend Prescott in Four Sets

WAITSBURG ALSO TRAVELED TO YAKIMA SATURDAY FOR SUNDOME FESTIVAL

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

PRESCOTT – The Prescott volleyball team hosted Waitsburg in a 1B league match on Sept. 15, but the visitors came away with a four-set win, 25-16, 25-18, 20-25, 25-20.

"We played well and maintained our focus in the first two sets and were able to play at the tempo we wanted to play," said Waitsburg coach Angie Potts.

Potts said that in the fourth set, she changed up her lineup, "to give us a look at other options just in case we ever need to do something different. In the 4th set, I went back to our original starting rotation and the girls played much better," she added.

Prescott coach Bob Young said he was pleased with how his team played. "The girls responded well after Monday's loss to LWK," he said. "They played together with energy and purpose. Nayeli Flores gave us a lift coming off the bench to spark a third set victory."

Prescott was led by junior setter, Jocelyn Granados with 7 aces. Middle Blocker, Yoali Ortega, contributed 4 aces and 3 kills.

Waitsburg stats: Kelsey Alleman 2 aces, 9 digs; Tayler Jones 6 aces, 4 kills, 7 digs; Chloe Pearson 2 aces, 5 kills; Jade Alleman 3 aces, 7 kills, 8 digs, 1 block; Analisea Araya 2 kills, 2 blocks; Ariel Sandau 4 aces, 11 assists, 4 kills, 11 digs; Devon Harshman 4 aces, 6 kills, 17 digs.

"This tournament is a really fun tournament in terms of getting play different teams from different classifications," coach Potts said. "It's a long day and requires a lot of stamina in terms of being able to play and maintain focus."

Waitsburg's opponents in pool play were: Goldendale 25-18, 26-24 (Goldendale won both); Chelan 25-8, 25-9 (Chelan won both); Darrington 25-19, 13-25 (Waitsburg took the first set); 3rd place pool bracket West Valley JV 25-9 27-25 (WV won), Onalaska 21-25, 26-24, 15-13 (Onalaska won).

Other than our match against Chelan, the girls were competitive and fought hard," Potts said. "Against Chelan, we just got beat by a better team. Tournaments give the girls the opportunity to get a lot of playing time as well as the opportunity to play different positions," she added.

Waitsburg stats: Kelsey Alleman 4 aces, 7 digs; Tayler Jones 9 aces, 11 kills, 8 digs; Chloe Pearson 3 aces, 6 kills, 15 digs; Jade Alleman 3 aces, 4 kills, 11 digs, 2 blocks; Analisea Araya 1 block, 1 kill, Ariel Sandau 4 kills, 16 digs, 38 assists; Timber Frohreich 3 aces, 9 digs; Devon Harshman 2 aces, 15 kills, 10 digs; Taylor Hays 2 aces, 13 kills, 12 digs.

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX Applesauce Cake

“Nothing says lovin’ like something from the oven.” I’ve been wanting to say that for some time as it was stuck in my head. This is a favorite recipe that, of course, I copied but didn’t put down how long to make the cake, so I made it and paid attention to how long I cooked it. It makes a large cake, full of raisins and nuts, and quite frankly, qualifies for breakfast...in my opinion.

Cream: 2 c. sugar, 1 c. shortening, --I use the mixer to blend well.
Add: 2 ½ c. unsweetened applesauce**

Add: 2 eggs, 1 tsp vanilla
Sift together: 4 c. flour 1 tsp allspice
2 tsp soda ½ tsp cloves
½ tsp salt 1 tsp nutmeg
1 tsp cinnamon 2 tsp baking powder

Add dry ingredients to other ingredients, and mix well. The batter will be thick.

Add: 2 c. raisins, and 1 c. nuts

Bake 325 degrees for approximately 50 minutes or until toothpick inserted into the center comes out clean.

My notes:
I frosted the cake with a regular buttercream frosting, but the options are endless. It's great without frosting. Whipped topping and ice cream would be good as well as the instant pudding/whipped topping combination.
Did you know that on the can of baking powder, it says to shake well? I'm not sure why so I do it. Also, make sure your baking powder is fresh.
This is a little tricky because applesauce can vary. The unsweetened applesauce in the store is quite like baby food, with a lot of liquid. I have used it and had no problem. But I like homemade applesauce that is chunky. I made my own today and it was very thick. I also added ¼ c. sugar and forgot to subtract it from the 2 cups. Whoops! When I mixed it into the above ingredients, I added about ¼ c. water. I've been anxious on how to share what was done, but the cake seems to have handled my homemade sauce and also the store bought sauce. Perhaps the texture is different, is all. So don't stress if it's not exactly what I did.
I love to share my food and since this is a large cake, I will take some to friends, freeze some to take to my family, freeze some for later, and have dessert for the next few days 😊

ing and talking with a wide spectrum of individuals. Gregutt said she has managed a staff of more than 40, overseen hundreds of freelancers, and worked with a budget larger than the City of Waitsburg's.

Kuykendall asked candidates what they felt was the main role of a council member. Gregutt said that ensuring good governance is a critical responsibility. She said it is important that council members know the city codes and laws and make sure they are enforced equally so that all residents are treated fairly.

Council member Kevin House asked candidates what they thought the biggest challenge Waitsburg faces over the next five years is. Gregutt said that flood control, which the city is working on, is a top priority. "If we don't make sure that is taken care of, nothing else matters," she said.

Gregutt also cited economic development as a priority, adding that it is important to support the residential community by maintaining property values as well as supporting businesses.

"We need to support the families that invest here and put their kids in school here," she said. "We can't ask people to come here and then move the goal post. Waitsburg has to be a safe place to make an investment," she added.

A Big THANK YOU!

It takes an army of volunteers to pull off an event as successful as the 2016 Columbia County Fair! Please know that each person and business who supports the fair is critical to the outcome and if your name isn't listed below, it's an oversight and nobody is omitted intentionally. Thank you all for your part in a fantastic event!!! Just 50 more weeks until the 2017 fair will be here!
