TOUR OF WAITSBURG?

The "Peleton" rolled through downtown Waitsburg Sunday, as riders prepared to start the Kellogg Hollow Road Race, which was the fourth and final stage of last weekend's Tour of Walla Walla bicycle race. Later that afternoon, a female rider was seriously injured in a crash and was taken by Life Flight helicopter to Richland. (See story, Page 7.)

State Approves $110M in Bonds for Columbia Pulp

CONSTRUCTION SLATED TO START MID-JUNE FOR STARBUCK-AREA STRAW-PROCESSING PLANT

By Dian Ver Valen | THE TIMES

STARBUCK – The Washington Economic Development Finance Authority has approved issuance of $110 million in non-recourse revenue bonds to Columbia Pulp, LLC.

The bonds will cover construction costs for the planned 449-acre wheat straw refuse recovery and paper pulp manufacturing facility to be located on Highway 261 near Starbuck, according to Columbia Pulp President John Begley.

"It still has to go through a fairly detailed process, which will probably take about eight weeks," Begley told The Times on Monday. "We're hoping to close these bonds mid-June and then break ground about 10 minutes later," he joked.

Construction of the project should be complete within 12-13 months; Begley said he hopes the pulp plant will begin operations in June 2016. "When we close the bonds, we will bring on a couple of key management people," he said. "In the fall we will start hiring the rest of the salaried work force. In the first quarter of 2016 we plan to begin hiring the operational work force."

WAY-FINDING PROJECT WILL BRAND TOUCHET VALLEY

WAITSBURG IS ASKED TO KEEP SIGNS IN MIND AS FUNDING BECOMES AVAILABLE

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – After several years of dedicated effort, the Regional Way-Finding System Project has finally entered its final phase: the installation of the road and pedestrian signs that will brand the Touchet Valley corridor.

Port of Columbia Manager Jennie Dickinson and Tourism Walla Walla Executive Director Ron Peck presented an update on the project to Waitsburg's city council at their April 15 meeting. With sign designs recently approved, Dickinson asked that Waits-burg keep the project in mind as they replace signage and/or as funds become available.

The project's steering committee is comprised of Dickinson, Peck, Duane Wollmuth of the Walla Walla Valley Wine Alliance and Elio Agostini of the Downtown Walla Walla Foundation.

"We have been working on this for years. We're a good team," said Dickinson. She said the way-finding idea originated with Walla Walla Valley wineries that were concerned with people being able to find their way around. "But this isn't about private businesses; it's about pointing the way to public services and area attractions," Dickinson said.

The project consists of a system of signs that will be placed throughout what is considered the economic region of the Walla Walla Valley to help direct tourists around the region. The 30-mile travel corridor stretches from Dayton to Milton-Freewater, and

Columbia Co. Will Switch to REA

BOARD BELIEVES SAVINGS, RELIABILITY AT COURTHOUSE, PUBLIC WORKS JUSTIFY UP-FRONT COST

By Dian Ver Valen | THE TIMES

DAYTON – After months of deliberation, Columbia County Commissioners decided on April 15 to switch power providers for the county courthouse and the county public works building from Pacific Power & Light to Columbia Rural Electric Association.

Representatives from both utilities were present at the board meeting, but relatively little discussion took place. Commissioners Mike Talbott and Dwight Robanske voted in favor of the switch; Commissioner Merle Jackson was opposed.

"My thought is not to switch because it will take 11 and a half years to get a return on our investment," Jackson said, referring to PP&L's estimate of $80,000 to remove its connection to the two county buildings. "There is a great deal of opportunity to use that money for other things, and I believe more pertinent and necessary things. We still have the data if we want to do it later."

County Engineer Andrew Woods reported to the commissioners during a workshop Monday that, by his estimate, the county will save $4,800 per year by switching to REA. Information provided by Pacific Power Regional Community Manager

Bill Clemens estimated a larger cost savings – of $6,400 annually, according to Woods.

Both Talbott and Robanske stated they were confident that the estimate for removal by Pacific Power represented an inflated number; by their estimation, it will only take the county six years before the savings from switching to REA will make up the cost of the switch.

Woods presented information to the board several weeks ago showing two independent estimates for the utility removal work. One estimate came in at $21,000 and the other was approximately $33,000. "These are just to show how much the work is likely to end up costing the county," Woods said during that workshop in March. PP&L does not allow outside contractors to do the removal work.

Talbott also expressed his support for REA, before the vote on Wednesday, as a local, community-involved organization that he feels will best address utility issues discussed in previous meetings by himself and former Commissioner Chuck Reeves, who pressed for the switch before leaving office at the end of last year.

Reeves believed the quality of service through Pacific Power had declined in the last few years, as evidenced by an apparent increase in power outages and power "events" in the last few months of 2014.

In a prior meeting, Columbia County Commissioners agreed unanimously to "begin the process of switching power providers" for the courthouse and county public works building; this vote took place on Dec. 31 – Commissioner Reeves's last day in office.

While severe thunderstorms were going through the area last Saturday, so were several hundred bicycle racers. The cries of the other girls attracted the attention of O. M. Conover, who was plowing nearby and he ran to the rescue, arriving just in time to rescue Maud from a watery grave.

COMMENTARY

FROM THE PUBLISHER

Your Tax Dollars At Work

When you read what I'm about to say, you're going to think I'm a sore loser. So I plead guilty right up front. But I write on anyway because I think it's important for taxpayers to know how their money is being spent.

Last month, The Times was invited to bid on the contract to publish legal notices for Columbia County for the 12-month period beginning July 1. Our bid was $4.95 per column inch, and our text size is 8 point font. With this bid, we would easily cover our costs make a reasonable profit.

The only other bidder was the Dayton Chronicle. Their bid was $7.15 per column inch, and their text size is 10 point font, which is significantly larger and uses up more inches for the same words.

Between the lower rate and the smaller type, a legal notice in The Times would cost about 44 percent less than the same ad in the Chronicle, with their higher rate and bigger type.

So last Wednesday the county commissioners passed a motion, 2-1, to award the contract to the Chronicle. Commissioners Dwight Robanske and Merle Jackson voted in favor, and Mike Talbott dissented.

Despite the fact that we have an office in Columbia County and cover news and do a lot of our work in the county, and that we were invited to bid, and, most importantly, that the Superior Court Judge ruled four years ago that The Times qualifies as a legal newspaper in Columbia County, both commissioners Robanske and Jackson cited ambiguity in the law, which led them to decide that The Times actually might not qualify to hold the contract, because we're not 100 percent published in the county. (Neither newspaper is printed in Columbia County.)

Based on the volume of ads the county ran last year, I estimate that county taxpayers will be on the hook for between $5,000 and $6,000 MORE for the coming year under the contract with the Chronicle than they would be with The Times. And in future years,

Step Up to the Challenge

Dear Editor,

IT'S TIME: It takes a lot of community members to make the right decisions regarding how we live and accomplish tasks within Columbia County, its cities and Waitsburg! In most instances this is accomplished by individuals that step-up and accept a challenge, either as an elected official or as a volunteer.

For several years I have been either elected or a volunteer and it is now time to pass the challenge to the younger members of our community. As I move into the mid-seventies it is becoming more difficult for me to make the decisions today that will affect the community well into the 2020's.

One example: I am a Hospital Board Commissioner. We are about to make a major decision to restructure the Hospital's interior, (5.5 million dollars), in order to enhance services and provide essential care for years to come. The Commission is also faced with a costly decision to invest in an updated computer system that will support future medical records and billing demands associated with the Affordable Care Act. In addition to the above, the District will have to make a tough decision regarding continued operation of Booker Rest Home despite ongoing financial losses... In addition, if the State Budget for 2017 reduces Medicaid reimbursements for Nursing Homes it will have a significant impact on Booker's future.

So, if you are inclined to step up to the challenge, consider jumping in at the Hospital District or one of the other Councils, Commissions, or Boards in our community. There are or will be vacancies and you will be rewarded with a smile and a thank you for your time and efforts. It's your community and you need to take part in its growth and future. Now is the right time to do it!

Columbia County Commissioners passed a resolution approving the issuance of the bonds last week during their regular board meeting. WEDFA will only issue bonds welcomed by the community, as evidenced by such a local resolution, according to a letter from the finance authority.

"We wish to emphasize that the only purpose of this resolution is to approve Columbia Pulp's use of WEDFA financing for this project," the letter from Rodney Wendt, executive director of WEDFA, reads. "It does not supplement or replace any portion of the normal permitting process. There is no liability against Columbia County created by issuance of WEDFA's bonds."

WEDFA is an independent agency within the executive branch of state government created by legislators to act as a financial conduit to businesses through the issues of non-recourse revenue bonds, according to the group's website.

The agency has authority to issue bonds on both a taxable and tax-exempt basis in support of qualifying projects such as manufacturing, processing and waste disposal facilities (retail projects do not qualify). Columbia Pulp qualified as a solid-waste disposal facility, according to Begley.

Non-recourse loans and bonds, sometimes referred to as "industrial revenue bonds," are from a bank or bond purchaser through WEDFA. The finance authority then lends the proceeds to the company (such as Columbia Pulp) in return for the company's agreement to repay WEDFA an amount equal to debt service.

The biggest benefit to this type of financing is that the bank or bond issuer does not have to pay income tax on the interest they earn on the investment, according to information on the WEDFA website. This means they are willing to accept a lower interest rate. WEDFA passes on the lower interest rate to the borrower, reducing the borrowing cost.

The commissioners plan to invite REA representatives to a future workshop to discuss the particulars of this new service; they signed an initial contract with the utility association after the vote on Wednesday.

EMMA PHILBROOK: STUDENT LIFE

My Legacy at WHS

It's human nature to want to leave a legacy of some sort after spending any extended period of time in a given place.

For example, after bidding adieu to my beloved Knowledge Bowl in March, I did so knowing that my team and I were responsible for two new additions to the state rules – the one about the audience keeping well away from the teams (aka the Onion Breath Amendment of 2014), and the one that says that if the question asks for a last name, a first name is offered, and the first name is incorrect even if the last name turns out to be right, you still get the question wrong. (David Livingstone? David? What kind of a name is Dav – oh, hi, Dad! Didn't see you there!)

My legacy at Waitsburg High School, however, will probably be somewhat less tangible. Apart from the ten-foot statue slated for construction in 2025, there will be few lasting hallmarks of my time there. Twenty years from now, the name "Emma Philbrook" will mean nothing to the general student body at WHS.

So, given the chance to have something hanging in the hall with my name on it, I would naturally want this something to be as high-quality as possible.

Enter the senior composites.

These are basically pictures of all the seniors arranged in a big frame with "Class of 2015" (or whatever the case may be) on top and a name written underneath each picture. Composites of years past hang all over the school – one over the drinking fountain, a row of consecutive years along the back wall of the auditorium, more in the upper hallways. Everyone winds up looking at them, pointing out relatives, friends, teachers, and the one senior who invariably has a crazy hair-do on picture day.

Come to think of it, that last classification is probably how future generations will remember Emma Philbrook – "Dude, what is up with that hair?" "Dunno, man. Maybe it's alive or something. Hey, is she that one mad scientist who got herself blown up last year?" "Naw, that chick was in my dad's class."

So now I'm scouring my closet for something nice to wear. There's my vintage Knowledge Bowl t-shirt... my more current Knowledge Bowl t-shirts...my Girls State t-shirt...my other Girls State t-shirt that I shredded and wore as a zombie costume...

What? We're not allowed to wear t-shirts for senior composites?

Grrr...

What does that leave me with? Let's see: A chicken suit, a frilly blue ball gown, my collection of funky sweater dresses, shrink-wrap-esque blouses from my fair court days, and the shoulder-padded 80s-era bridesmaid outfit my mom loaned me.

I think I'll go with a funky sweater dress. Maybe it'll make my hair seem less conspicuous.

Speaking of which, what should I do with my hair? I'm thinking a braid; otherwise people may not recognize me. Leaving it down is probably just asking for some tangled horror, and I'm not sure I trust myself to curl it. Braid it is, then.

As for shoes – well, the picture's only from the waist up.

In that case, I'll wear the legs from the chicken suit. Comfort meets utility meets impeccable taste – and the photographer, at least, will remember me for years to come.

with The Times ineligible, the Chronicle will have a monopoly and can pretty much charge whatever they want.

So here's the thing: If the county would maintain a competitive bidding process for official newspaper, the savings to taxpayers each year – even if The Times didn't always win – would almost certainly be greater than the savings expected from the switch in power providers they are making (see story Page 1). And there would be no upfront cost!

If you're a satisfied Times reader and a taxpayer in Columbia County, and you happen to run into either Commissioner Robanske or Commissioner Jackson, I encourage you to let them know whether or not you agree with their decision to spend your tax money to maintain the Chronicle's monopoly.

In the meantime, The Times will be fine. We were again awarded the official newspaper contract in Walla Walla County this year, even though the price difference between us and our competitor (the U-B) was much smaller than in Columbia County. (Our bids to both counties were the same.)

Okay, that's off my chest. How about the great weather we've had the last few days!

Columbia Co. Eyes Seneca Property Purchase

Historians request access to property to document buildings prior to any removal

By Dian Ver Valen
THE TIMES

DAYTON – Columbia County has its eye on Seneca property neighboring the county public works office on North Guernsey Avenue, including the much-used activity center and well-known “Labor Camp” on Green Giant Camp Road.

This information was revealed during last week’s county commissioner meeting when Ginny Butler, with the Dayton Historical Depot Society, requested that her organization have access to the site to document and record the long history present there before the county made any changes to the property.

“We’re not interested in saving the buildings; we just want to document them so that history is not lost,” Butler told The Times on Monday. She told commissioners the society wants to map the location, take photos and record videos.

Columbia County is in negotiations to purchase Seneca property adjoining the public works office on N. Guernsey Avenue, including the popular activity center.

The county has not released any further information on the property purchase, the cost or its intended use.

Butler thought Seneca had already transferred ownership of the land to the county; the commissioners and County Public Works Director Andrew Woods assured Butler that the acquisition was not yet secured.

“We’re in negotiations,” Commissioner Dwight Robanske said. “Hopefully we will own it, but right now we’re waiting for the appraisal and environmental reports.”

Robanske and Woods stated the county plans to buy “as much as it can afford” of the property.

“The labor camp and activity center are really a sure thing,” Woods said. “We’re still discussing how much farther to the east it will go.”

Butler said the camp at Seneca, or Green Giant, was more recently known as a migrant housing complex. During World War II, the camp was used to house German prisoners of war and Japanese American interns.

Columbia County Health Shows Improvement

BETTER ACCESS TO EXERCISE, HIGHER QUALITY OF LIFE AMONG INDICATORS

By Dian Ver Valen | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Columbia County jumped from 24th in state health rankings to 12th between last year’s assessment and now, Public Health Director Martha Lanman reported to county commissioners last week.

The county’s biggest improvements were in access to exercise opportunities, mental health providers and diabetic monitoring, according to the report provided by County Health Rankings – many of these were community health areas targeted by local wellness programs in the last year.

“It shows that all the work we’ve done in this community has really made a difference,” Lanman said. “Everyone with the Columbia County Wellness Project, Columbia Cares, Public Health and the Coalition for Youth and Families, they’ve all worked together to improve the health of this county’s population.”

Between 2014 and 2015, the number of people in the county with access to exercise opportunities increased 23 percent – from 43 percent of the population to 66 percent. The county is still lagging behind the state average, at 89 percent, but the boost means good things for the community.

“For more people to have access to exercise opportunities really benefits everybody,” Lanman said. Many organizations, from the Senior Center to Columbia Cares and Dayton General Hospital, have worked to provide fitness programs in the county.

The ratio of mental health providers improved as well, from 666 people for every one provider in 2014 to 576 for every one in this year’s data. And diabetic monitoring, a focus of the new Patient-Centered Medical Home program through the Columbia County Health System, is at 87 percent of the population, higher than the state average of 86 percent.

One of the most influential factors between last year’s measurement and this year’s, however, was the inclusion of the quality of life indicator “low birthweight,” Lanman said. Last year this data was not included in our ranking; this year it was, and Columbia County’s score (3.8 percent of babies having low birthweight) is better than the state average (6.3 percent of babies having low birthweight).

“I don’t know why this data wasn’t included in last year’s measurement, but at the end of the day we’re lower than the Washington average by a significant amount and therefore our ranking went up,” Lanman said.

The County Health Rankings is a collaboration between the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute and measures the health of nearly all counties in the nation and ranks them within the state.

Data is collected from a variety of national data sources such as the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System, U.S. Department of Agriculture, FBI Uniform Crime Reporting, Safe Drinking Water Information System, Fatality Analysis Reporting System, U. S. Census and others.

More information on the rankings, past reports and details on the collection and analysis of data can be found at www.countyhealthrankings.org.

NEWS BRIEFS

Planning Commission Cut to Five

DAYTON – Columbia County Commissioners decided this month to reduce the number of members on the county planning commission from seven to five following the resignation of long-time member Ron Groom. The board had one vacancy already.

“The five there have been members for a long time and will have a better chance of a quorum this way,” County Commissioner Dwight Robanske said.

State law allows for the reduction in planning commission members, and all three county commissioners approved the change. With the cut, Commissioner Merle Jackson’s District 3 is not currently represented on the planning board. The next vacancy on the board will be filled with a volunteer from that district, the commissioners agreed.

Fire Behavior Workshop April 30

DAYTON – WSU and OSU Extensions will offer a free fire behavior workshop at the new Columbia County Fire District 3 station at 111 Patit Rd. in Dayton on Thursday, April 30, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Presenters will discuss fire behavior, history, tools to evaluate conditions, firefighter roles and state regulations and policies. Go to <http://ext100.wsu.edu/spokane/forestry/classes-events/> to sign up and get details about the workshop.

Time will be spent indoors and in the field. Bring lunch and water. Be prepared for inclement weather and wear footwear for walking over uneven terrain. Bring a high clearance vehicle if possible.

“With the low snowpack and the mild winter we had in the Pacific Northwest, this could be the beginning of a long fire season,” said Steve McConnell, WSU Extension regional forestry extension specialist. “This class can help you be prepared.”

Fair Board Considers Repairs to East Grandstand

By Dian Ver Valen
THE TIMES

DAYTON – Columbia County Fair Board members have appealed to Columbia County Commissioners several times this year, including at last week’s board meeting, to approve a plan intended to make enough improvements to the East Grandstands at the county fairgrounds that the space can be used at events where the newly repaired West Grandstands are standing room only.

Commissioners and County Engineer Andrew Woods are concerned that the current plan, while proposing some critical repairs to the unused grandstands, do not address major infrastructure improvements identified in an engineer’s report published several years ago indicating rotting foundation and other potentially dangerous problems with the structure.

The fair board has been supported in its request by local events planners such as Bette Lou Crothers, with All-Wheels Weekend, and Columbia Rural Electric Association, which has donated $10,000 toward such a project and has a vested interest in the success of events such as Mule Mania.

Improvements such as those recommended by the report commissioned by the county could cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, and commissioners are conflicted about whether this particular project is more vital to the county than others. The fair board was advised to consult an engineer or other qualified person on their proposal and return to the board of commissioners with more information.

Co-Queens To Reign Over Celebration Days

HUBBARD AND HARSHMAN BOTH RECEIVE CROWNS AT SATURDAY'S CORONATION

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – If there's ever a fitting time for double the celebration it is this May's Waitsburg Celebration Days weekend, which also commemorates the city's 150th anniversary.

The first-ever Waitsburg Celebration Days co-queens were crowned in a coronation ceremony at the Waitsburg Elementary School multipurpose room on Saturday. In a flashback to 10 years ago, Brittany Artz and Kimberly Smith were crowned co-queens for the 92nd Days of Real Sport in 2005. This year, Devon Harshman and Ashleigh Hubbard will represent Waitsburg as Celebration Days Royalty Queens for the sesquicentennial celebration.

Both girls are eighth graders at Preston Hall Middle School and were selected to Waitsburg's 2015 Celebration Days Court last October. The young ladies, under the direction of Court Advisor Beka Adams, have represented Waitsburg at parades and events since then and were eager to learn who would be named queen at Wednesday's coronation ceremony attended by community members and Milton-Freewater's Pioneer Posse royalty. A spaghetti dinner, musical entertainment and silent auction preceded the coronation ceremony.

Each girl was individually escorted to the front of the room where she gave a brief speech. Hubbard, who lives in Dixie, said she wanted to be a part of the Celebration Days Court in order to improve her public speaking and to get to know the community of Waitsburg better. She rides her 19-year-old appaloosa mare, Bella, and says she enjoys riding western, English, trail and bareback.

Harshman is the current Preston Hall student body president, and is active in Rainbow Girls, 4-H, and school athletics. "But my favorite commitment is big and fluffy and goes by the name of Big Moh," Harshman said, describing her Isabella palomino quarter horse.

Following their speeches, 2013 Celebration Days Queen Emily Adams presented each girl with a "royalty lifesaver kit," complete with bobby pins and Advil, and the queen candidates took turns reading a humorous poem that accompanied the gifts.

Court Advisor Beka Adams addressed the crowd and said that both girls and their families were "awesome" to work with and that there was no way she could decide between the two. "For the first time ever, we will have two Waitsburg Celebration Days queens," Adams said. In her final official act as 2014 Celebration Days Queen, Megan Morrison placed crowns on both Harshman and Hubbard.

"Being chosen as one of the queens is such an honor. What I'm looking forward to is being able to talk to the kids and just being there to help support the community. I look forward to going to the parades and rodeos and having fun with my horse," Hubbard said.

Harshman said the event she anticipates most during Celebration Days is the ATV Poker run. "I'm very proud of myself and Ashleigh for making it so hard for them to decide (between us) and I'm so blessed to go around representing Waitsburg with such an amazing girl," Harshman said.

Injured Tour of Walla Walla Cyclist Airlifted from Waitsburg

By Dena Wood | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG - A female Tour of Walla Walla cyclist was injured and reportedly rendered unconscious in a bicycle crash that took place on McKay-Alto Road north of Waitsburg during the race Sunday afternoon. Waitsburg Ambulance Service responded to the call and transported the cyclist to Waitsburg Elementary School playground where a Life Flight helicopter landed at approximately 4:25 p.m. to pick up the victim. She was reportedly being transported to Kadlec Regional Medical Center in Richland.

The victim was identified as Sheila Croft, 40, of Seattle.

Steve Rapp, co-owner of Allego Cyclery, which organized the race, said his business partner, Michael Austin, was meeting with Croft's family in the Tri-Cities on Monday afternoon. Rapp said the last report he received indicated that the rider had received several skull fractures, undergone surgery Sunday night to relieve pressure on the brain, and was in an induced coma. "Apparently, the doctors are optimistic," he said.

There were no vehicles involved in the accident. "The hearsay is that four riders went down and she got dinged the hardest," said Rapp. "We are just really hoping that she is OK," he added.

Waitsburg Council Is Sworn In

By Dena Wood THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Waitsburg's current mayor and city council members ran unopposed in the 2015 elections this month and were sworn in by City Administrator Randy Hinchliffe at the April 15 City Council meeting. Mayor Walt Gobel said he was disappointed to see that Izzy the Camel failed to receive his traditional write-in vote this year. Hinchliffe said 157 voters cast ballots which is 30 shy of the year prior.

Gobel was re-elected mayor, for his third one-year term, with 117 votes. The following individuals received write-in votes for mayor: Markeeta Little Wolf includes Waitsburg, Walla Walla and College Place.

(3), Don Siedleman (8), Martin Dunn (2), Joy Smith (1), Jim Davison (2).

The council seats remain the same with Kevin House (134), Martin Dunn (126), Karl Newell (124), K.C. Kuykendall (124) and Debra Callahan (112) re-elected to office. Write-ins included: Leroy Cunningham (3), Stan Bly (2), Daniel LaRue (1), Ron Griffen (1), Joy Smith (1), Richard Hinds (1), Karen Gregutt (3), Gary Thomas (1), Ross Hamann (1), Fred Hamann (1), Delores Nettles (2), Gail Gwinn (2), Jeff Bartlow (1), Robert Richardson (1), Mike Ferrians (3), Tad Brannock (1), Markeeta Little Wolf (1), Jim Davison (2), Walt Gobel (2), Dan Cole (2), and Todd Wood (1).

"The functional economy of the Walla Walla Valley stretches from Milton Freewater to Dayton, meaning our communities are geographically, socially, and economically tied together," Dickinson said. "It makes sense to provide a cohesive system of directional signs throughout that same area, helping residents, visitors, and passersby find their way to what we have to offer – parking, services, area attractions, historic downtowns, etc."

Dickinson said that the City of Waitsburg and the Waitsburg Commercial Club contributed funds to the planning phase of the project which took place in 2011. In Phase 2, which was completed in 2013 at a cost of $130,000, the steering committee worked with community partners to design the signs. "Now we're to the implementation phase, which is the hardest. That's about funding and actually getting the signs installed," Dickinson said.

Peck and Dickinson presented the recently approved sign designs to the Waitsburg council. The largest are gateway signs which welcome visitors to the Walla Walla Valley and will be placed at Nine Mile Hill entering Walla Walla on Highway 12, on Highway 124 entering Waitsburg from the Tri-Cities, and on Highway 12 entering Dayton from Spokane. Smaller gateway signs welcome visitors to each city, though Dickinson said municipalities are free to use their own designs if they choose.

Each downtown will have a kiosk with a map of that downtown and its attractions on one side and a map of the entire region on the other side. Vehicular directional signs will point drivers to services and attractions such as hospitals, museums, parking and city pools. Finally, pedestrian signs will be placed on poles and lampposts.

Dickinson said the plan now is to partner with the Walla Walla Foundry on fabrication and installation and to nail down the purchasing process.

"Working with so many municipalities is complicated so we're working with the Walla Walla city attorney about putting up an interlocal agreement so that monies could be funneled through the Downtown Walla Walla Foundation, which is a 501c3 and used for the project," she said.

Dickinson said Tourism Walla Walla ($15,000), the Walla Walla Valley Wine Alliance ($17,000), the Dayton Development Task Force ($30,000), and the City of College Place ($60,000) have all committed or budgeted funds for the project. "We are not asking for anything tonight, we just wanted to update you on what we are doing and encourage you, as you are budgeting, to think about budgeting money for signs," Dickinson said, addressing the Waitsburg council.

When asked for a timeline, Peck said the committee realizes that funding sources and opportunities will change and the Way-Finding System is seen as a phase-in project. "As signs become available or as funding comes we hope that you will consider utilizing the signs so that we have a consistent quality," he said. "The first sign we'll see will probably be in Dayton," he added.

LOCALS EXCEL AT PASCO INVITE

THE TIMES

PASCO – In a field of more than 2,000 athletes from 100-plus northwest high schools, four Touchet Valley athletes gave strong performances Saturday at the Pasco Invite track and field meet.

WP Senior Kobie Brown had a personal best time of 41.15 seconds in the 300 meter hurdles, which was good enough for 12th place. Brown also finished sixth in the long jump, with a distance of 20 feet, six inches. He was 16th in the high jump, at 5 feet, 10 inches.

"He will soon be under 41 and will be in the heat of the state," said WP Coach Jeff Bartlow, of Brown's hurdles performance.

Sophomore Emily Adams set a school record in the 800 meter run with a time of 2 minutes, 27.5 seconds. She placed 25th, which shows the strength of the field.

WP Senior Owen Lanning competed in the triple jump, finishing 18th, with a jump of 40 feet, 2.5 inches.

For Dayton, senior Kaitlyn Andrews competed in four events in Pasco. She was 8th in the javelin, with a throw of 118 feet, 6 inches, 15th in the triple jump, 23rd in the 100 meters and 27th in the long jump.

WP Baseball Drops DeSales Double-Header

SATURDAY LOSSES COME AFTER ONE-HIT VICTORY OVER RIVERSIDE OF BOARDMAN, 3-0

By Ken Graham
THE TIMES

PRESCOTT – The defending state champion DeSales baseball team came to Prescott Saturday, and the WP Tigers gave them all they could handle. But the Tigers came up just short in both games.

A seventh-inning run gave the Irish a 1-0 victory in the first game, and three extra-inning DeSales runs in the ninth were the Tigers undoing in the second game – a 6-3 loss.

The first game was a pitching masterpiece between WP's Jacob Dunn and DeSales' Cam Richman. Richman was a little better, throwing a no-hitter against the Tigers, and striking out eight. Dunn gave up three hits, including a seventh-inning single that led to the game's only run.

After a walk and a fielder's choice, the Irish had runners at first and third in the seventh. They executed a successful double-steal to bring home the game-winner.

In the second game, the Tigers led twice before DeSales tied the game at three in the fifth. The game went into extra innings, and in the top of the ninth, the Irish pushed across three more runs to win it.

Talen Larsen pitched five innings and was relieved by Kyle Gradwohl in the sixth. Tyler Feddersen replaced Gradwohl in the ninth. The Irish outthit the Tigers, 10-7, with five of their hits coming in the ninth.

later in the game. Leroue and Jacob Hargrove also had hits. WP also took advantage of five Riverside errors.

"I was impressed with the way we played defensively and pitched after spring break," said WP Coach Dustin Snedigar. "We stayed patient at the plate, and Kyle Gradwohl did a great job of driving the ball in key spots with runner on."
