WW II Memorial Project on Track for 2018

Waitsburg's Norman Estes, Anthony Lloyd, Merle Eaton and Bobby Pettichord will be honored

Special to The Times by Sherilyn Jacobson
As we approach Veterans Day, we reflect on many things. Those of us who are veterans, think about comrades we served with, missions carried out, places where we served, lessons learned, and how our lives were changed because of military service. Mostly we remember our comrades. We began as strangers from all over the country, standing in the same line at basic training waiting to be issued uniforms, boots, and gear. As training progressed, it wasn't the uniform that blended us into a team. That developed over time and through experience. That bond has existed among soldiers since the beginning—the now over-used "band of brothers," but that's what it is. Veterans Day has been set aside to commemorate a specific event, but it is a symbol for all time.

That's what the World War II Memorial Project to be built in Fort Walla Walla Park is all about—commemoration, remembrance, and most of all respect. At some time during the war, approximately 3,800 men and wom-

COLUMBIA REA TO CLOSE DAYTON OFFICE

Management offices will be consolidated at the Walla Walla Service Center

WALLA WALLA – The Columbia Rural Electric Association announced on Tuesday that it will close its Dayton office and consolidate its offices at the Walla Walla Service Center. Closure of the Dayton office is expected on or before April 1, 2018. There was no indication of what the use of the Dayton office building, located at 115 E. Main St., will be in the future.

In a press release, the non-profit cooperative said that the action is a cost-saving measure. "While we realize this might be inconvenient to some of our members, with the rising cost of doing business, it was determined that there would be considerable financial savings in consolidating the two offices," the release said.

REA says that approximately 58 percent of its members now access their accounts and pay their bills online, and that number continues to grow.

According to the release, Columbia REA will continue to operate its Patit Road service center near Dayton.

"The savings that will be generated by this move will help ensure that CREA can continue to serve our members with the lowest cost electricity possible," the REA press release said.

Realtors Paint Rosy Picture for Home Sales

Housing is "hot" in Dayton and Waitsburg for multiple reasons

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Gary Snyder, owner of Christy's Realty in Dayton, said there has been a slight uptick in home sales since Columbia Pulp at Lyons Ferry broke ground in October. There have been a few sales to Columbia Pulp department heads, but most sales have been to people who are downsizing, are new to the area, and are here for jobs, or retirement.

"It's a little bit of everything," Snyder said.

Snyder said he showed one property to two prospective buyers and had bids from both before he got the pictures up in the store window.

Snyder did say there is a scarcity of properties for sale in the $150,000 - $250,000 price range but it has been a fantastic year, anyway.

"I have a new agent, Chelsie Mann. She's done very well this year. It's been very busy aside from the Pulp Mill," Snyder said.

Snyder said the bigger issue is the lack of rental housing. He manages 40 properties in town, and owns 16 and said they are all full. There are also four residents in the Blue Willow RV Park, which he recently acquired.

Still, Snyder is thinking positively about Columbia Pulp's impact on the community.

"The construction guys are renting office space and staying in the RV parks and hotels. It's been very good for the Best Western Hotel. I expect it to get even better," Snyder said.

Julie Bickelhaupt at Blue Mountain Realtors echoed Snyder in regard to the shortage of rental inventory.

Bickelhaupt said rental properties are full, with properties rented before they are vacant with rents ranging from $500 to $1,200 per month.

Many of the Columbia Pulp construction workers are renting in the Waitsburg area, which she described as "hot," and "anyplace we can place them," she said.

"We have had an uptick in residential and commercial property sales, as well, some because of Columbia Pulp, and some not," she said.

She agreed with Snyder about the limited inventory in the $150,000 price range but noted that six houses in the $250,000, and up, price range, sold in 2016.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago November 15, 2007

Former Waitsburg mayor Tom Baker was honored with the 2007 Walla Walla Chamber of Commerce Award of Merit in a ceremony last week.

Five Waitsburg-Prescott Cardinals – three on defense and two on offense – were named to the District 9 All League Team for the Southeast 2B Football League, announced Coach Jeff Bartlow recently. Three senior players and two junior players from the combined team were honored. Senior receiver Colby Mayberry and junior offensive lineman Josh Wilson were tapped for their stand-out play on offense. Senior D. lineman Fred Cunz, senior linebacker John Gertsch and junior D back Jeff Hofer were selected by league coaches for their high level of play.

Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings will be served at the next regular meeting of the Waitsburg Commercial Club, Tuesday, Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. This is an annual event for the club. Last year about 50 people attended the dinner at Ye Towne Hall on Main Street.

Council members Don Wills and Bill Thompson have been appointed to review handicapped access to city buildings, including City Hall and the library. The review is required by federal law.

Pigeons have captivated the interest of man for thousands of years and for one man in Waitsburg, his entire life. Richard "Abe" Abel remembers as a boy how he used to catch pigeons for pets in barns where they would roost. Today Abe has over 100 pigeons of various breeds . . .

Fifty Years Ago November 9, 1967

A community party held on Thursday night, November 2, honored the long and faithful service of an educator to this community. It was A. T. "Pop" Sutton night, and a multi-purpose roomful of people were on hand for this occasion. Larry Broom emceed the potluck affair, and "Pop" was presented with a six-pack of his favorite beverage – Mountain Dew – by Hermann Gohlman, a pair of binoculars to aid his hobby of bird-watching from appreciative citizens, and the very best wished of all who attended.

Polls of every size and description are with us – and I guess we will learn to live with them. It is fun to have a football team in the top 3 on the state AP poll. We can't help feeling that Waitsburg slipped to third from second place last week because their game with Dayton was not quite the runaway that the St. John – Rosalia game (77-13) was. We respect the decision of the Waitsburg coaches this year who chose not to intentionally run up a lopsided score against any team they played.

Seventy-Five Years Ago November 13, 1942

Car owners of the Waitsburg district will sign up for their gas rationing books at the high school basement on next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

GUEST COLUMN

Remembering Ed Carlson, Vietnam, POW

By Don C. Brunell

Since last Veteran's Day, Ken Burns' in-depth documentary on the Vietnam War has aired. It is a powerful reminder of an unpopular war in which many "baby boomers" fought and died. It also prompts memories of the brutal treatment of American POWs and 1,350 who were listed as missing in action after the war ended. Some remain lost today.

Among the 571 American prisoners released in the winter of 1973 was U.S. Army Maj. Ed Carlson, whose last assignment was senior Army advisor to the Washington National Guard.

Carlson, a 29-year veteran, was captured near the end of the war. He was held in a jungle camp along the Mekong River. He was a captive for 312 days. By comparison, Capt. Floyd Thompson, whose observation plane was shot down in March 1964, spent nine years as a POW, the longest in U.S. history.

Carlson grew up in San Lorenzo, CA, and was commissioned as an artillery officer upon graduation from San Jose State in 1963. He served two tours in Vietnam.

In early April 1972, Carlson was heading home after completing his second stint. He was an artillery adviser to the South Vietnamese army (ARVN). He drove 90 miles from Loc Ninh to Saigon and turned in his gear.

The only thing standing between him and his family back home was an optional appreciation dinner at Loc Ninh with his South Vietnamese counterparts. Out of loyalty, Carlson helicoptered back, but the dinner never happened.

Just after the Huey dropped him off, 20,000 North Vietnamese assaulted the base cutting off supplies and reinforcements. After a fierce two-day battle, direct air support from helicopter gunships and fighter jets was lifted despite the pilots' objections.

The base was quickly seized and Carlson and four other Americans were captured, put in tiny wooden cages and moved deep into the jungle. Carlson was suffering from chest wounds.

During their initial interrogation, they believed they would be executed. North Vietnamese guards put AK-47s to their heads and ordered them to talk. They never did.

Carlson's weight dropped from 185 to 135 lbs. from a meager rice diet of rice. There were no medications and his wounds were crudely treated. However, it was the discomforts of dysentery and the lack of sanitation which weakened his system and his will to live.

While not a frequent church-goer, Carlson had a deep faith which strengthened his determination to survive. He and the others started praying aloud, even though it was against camp rules and invoked punishment.

Fortunately, Carlson's captivity came at the end of the war after word reached home exposing the brutal torture at prison camps in North Vietnam.

On February 12, 1973, the first C-141 cargo planes took off from Hanoi packed with our POWs. At Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines we saw TV coverage of the prisoners walking, limping and being carried down the aircraft's ramp.

After reuniting with his family, Carlson returned to active duty. He retired in Gig Harbor with his wife, Nancy. Col. Ed Carlson died from cancer in 1999 and now rests with other veterans in Tahoma National Cemetery, Kent.

Ed Carlson's story is unique, but not unusual. Over the centuries, millions of our veterans have been seriously wounded, died or lost in war. They are men and women that we honor on Nov. 11.

Carlson was a fine soldier, family man and patriotic American. He served at a time when American flags were burned in our streets and those wearing military uniforms were excoriated.

Today, there is a new respect for our military men and women. They are America's finest and we are thankful for them, their families and their service.

DON BRUNELL, retired as president of the Association of Washington Business, is a business analyst, writer, and columnist. He lives in Vancouver and can be contacted at TheBrunells@msn.com.

4-H NOW REQUIRES MEMBERSHIP FEES

Extension office staff is concerned that fees will cause drop in participation

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Staff at the WSU Dayton Extension Office are concerned that membership in 4-H could dwindle after the WSU Youth and Families Program enacted a $25 per-member annual enrollment fee beginning on Oct. 1, 2017. All enrolled 4-H youth ages 5 through 19 are now charged the fee, according to WSU Dayton Extension Agent Paul Carter.

Five dollars of the $25 fee will be allocated to the county to support 4-H programming at the local level. The remaining $20 will be used by the Washington State 4-H program to provide educational programs and experiences and to provide opportunities for professional development. The fee also provides for marketing and risk management purposes, such as paying for leader background checks, Carter said.

The WSU Extension Youth and Families Program cited unit cuts to state and federal funding for WSU Extension and 4-H and increased programming costs as reasons for enacting the annual fee.

Rachel Hutchens at the WSU Dayton Extension Office summed it up, "It's disappointing there is another fee."

"It is sad. Now they have to pay to learn life skills," agreed 4-H Program Director Donna Hanger.

While 4-H'ers earn money from livestock sales, some clubs have to come up with entry fees, and don't earn anything from their projects. Hanger said she is especially concerned about youth in grades K-2, because they are just beginning in 4-H and seeking direction for the future.

Carter said the county is being encouraged to work with individuals, businesses, and organizations to find donors capable of providing scholarships to young people needing assistance with fees.

"We've had somebody step up and pay for enrollments next year," Carter said.

While this is good in the short term, Carter and his staff are concerned about how the State 4-H enrollment fee will impact membership numbers over the long term. Carter said that since a 4-H enrollment fee was enacted in Umatilla County, there has been a reduction in enrollment by more than half.

He said the state set the amount of the fee based on what private organizations such as the YMCA and Boy Scouts are charging.

"We're a public entity. We have a state and federal tax base that pays into it," he said. "We need to be fair. We don't want to lose kids."

Families who need help with fees should come to the extension office for help. We will do what we can," Carter said.

Ten out of 13 western states have enacted, or are going to enact, a 4-H enrollment fee. The State 4-H enrollment fee will be in place for the next three years, beginning each year on October 1.

RAINBOW LAKE PROJECT

The first part of the Rainbow Lake project is almost completed and water is back in the lake. The lake was enlarged to the south towards Campground 3 and was dredged throughout the footprint of the new lake bed. The pipeline was installed and buried from the inlet to the lake. The sediment basin was constructed and a chain-link fence was installed around it. A loop driveway was constructed through Campground 3 this summer, as well. Fire pits have been installed in the new campsites and the campground will be open to the public by the end of November. The second part of the project, which will occur next summer, will construct the new dam along the west side of the new lake footprint and create a new wetland between the lake and the Tucannon River, according to Assistant Wildlife Area Manager Kari Dingman.

Bickelhaupt said people are moving from areas outside of Dayton because they enjoy the lifestyle.

"They park and walk on Main Street and walk on the river dike to get the flavor. They like the welcoming feeling, and people who smile and greet them," she said.

Jobs, retirement, and downsizing are driving sales. "It's all over the place," she said.

Blue Mountain Realtors has an office in Walla Walla as well as the office in Dayton, and Bickelhaupt said there is some movement from here, to there, and from there, to here.

She expects home sales will increase when the Lyons Ferry Straw Pulp Mill is fully operational, in 2018.

MAIN STREET BRIDGE NEARS COMPLETION

Paving on Waitsburg's Main Street Bridge was completed last week. Onsite engineers anticipate that the subcontractors will have the rails done by Friday, with sidewalk work being completed in tandem. If all goes as planned, the project should be substantially completed by next Friday, which is one week past contractual days according to city officials. EMT Shortage Causes Concerns for Local Fire Districts

NEW RESIDENTIAL PROGRAM WILL PROVIDE VALUABLE EXPERIENCE

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON – If you have ever thought about training as an Emergency Medical Technician, Fire District No. 3 will be more than happy to help out, provided you make a two-year volunteer commitment to the district after certification.

The shortage of EMTs is real, said Dayton Fire District No. 3 Chief Fire Chief Jeromy Phinney.

Phinney said he is hoping to have a new resident program at fire department headquarters up and running by the first of the year, and new trainees will be able to stay and gain valuable experience while attending classes.

"Our entire upstairs is basically set up for a resident program. It's basically a house," said Phinney about the living space which has six bedrooms, three bathrooms, a fitness center, living room, kitchen and laundry.

While all the details haven't been worked out, many have, he said.

"I'm really close to it, as far as the policies go, but I've got to find the people. I'm waiting to find some people so I can tailor the program to fit their needs," Phinney said.

"Right now we have four paid employees, including myself, and with only four people, we can't offer 24/7 coverage. We try to staff where we are the heaviest on the majority of our calls, which is Monday through Friday, and these calls are mostly inter-transport calls, when Dayton General Hospital is sending patients to St. Mary's for procedures," he said.

Fire District No. 3 headquarters will offer in-house apartment style living, for staff, in 2018.

There is one paid full-time person five days a week on the night shift calls, which Phinney characterized as "more emergent" in nature.

"We have a volunteer EMT that covers two nights a week, and at least one or two weekends a month, and a driver that covers a couple of weekends, and is on two nights a week. We've got a couple of other volunteers that take at least one shift every weeknight, and if they've got daytime jobs, and we keep them up every night, they are pretty worthless the next day for full-time employment," he said.

Phinney said Fire Dept. No. 3 is also covering some calls for Fire Dept. No. 2, in Waitsburg, as they build their transporting ambulance program.

Phinney said there is the potential for inadequate response to 911 calls because of being understaffed.

"Over the past couple of years we have been extremely lucky that we have been able to cover everything as it comes out," Phinney said. "We've been really close to third calls a couple of times when we've had both ambulances out. We've had a couple of times when we've been really close to not getting a second crew."

Phinney said at issue is the fact many forty to sixty-year-olds are beginning to retire and he is having a hard time attracting the younger crowd.

There is also a huge commitment of time for beginning trainees and some continuing education requirements for veteran EMTs.

Michael Field, an EMT at Fire Dept. No. 3, said he completed a three-month-long, Mon.- Thurs. evening course at Walla Walla Community College where he became proficient in; cardiac airways, trauma, medical emergency, pediatric, geriatric, legal and ethics, and ambulance time, and where he received his National Registry certification.

Devin Parvinen, a former EMT, said he took an on-line course offered by Inland Northwest Health Services in Spokane, to recertify.

Parvinen, said taking the on-line course required him to be more self-motivated and self-taught, than when he initially received his EMT certification going the traditional college route.

Phinney said it costs a little more to take the on-line course, but takes weekly travel time out of the equation.

Parvinen said his only travel requirement was for the week-and-a-half he spent in Spokane to finish his certification testing requirements.

The district will pay for the EMT course if individuals are willing to commit to two years with the department.

"We've got bedrooms upstairs," Phinney said. "We're hoping the Resident Program helps us out a bunch."

For more information about the EMT program and the new resident program at Fire Dept. No. 3, contact Fire Chief Jeromy Phinney by phone at: 382-4281 or by email at: jphinney@ccfiredistrict3.org

TALK ABOUT ART

Special to The Times by Carolyn Henderson

Technology is great, but if we don't watch ourselves, it has a tendency to dehumanize. Art – which has a history as long or longer than technology – counteracts that.

"In the age of machines, robots, and computers taking over almost every aspect of human life, we are finding that creativity is the real human value that has no substitute," says Joseph Rastovich, a metal sculptor from Kennewick. One of a family group of artists dubbed The Talented Trio, Joseph lives, works, innovates, and brainstorms with LuAnn Ostergaard, his mother who is an abstract photographer of "the forgotten places," and Michael Rastovich, his illustrator/ animator father.

"Art is an expression of our being, an extension of who we are," Joseph continues.

"Our creative manifestations will outlive us and have a tangible effect in the future."

Joseph, who grew up with professional art as a lifestyle, has installed 11 public art projects throughout the Northwest, and is working on his 12th. In addition, he creates metal wall art, home décor, and furniture from repurposed items, which he sells at galleries, retail and furniture stores, and at outdoor festivals.

LuAnn, a seasoned veteran of art festivals, has installed her works in private homes and corporate offices nationwide. Michael creates animated presentations for businesses, and sells his two-dimensional work as both originals and licensed prints.

MUSIC, SETS, COSTUMES AND ACTORS COMBINE FOR A CAPTIVATING SHOW

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Stunning sets, elaborate costumes, talented actors and a complicated Broadway score will surely captivate audiences who attend the Touchet Valley Arts Council's fall live musical production of Rodger's and Hammerstein's The King and I which will debut on the Liberty Theater stage on Fri., Nov. 10.

This 17th annual TVAC production is based on the book, Anna and the King of Siam by Margaret Landon and tells the story of Anna Leonowens who was sent to Siam (modern Thailand) to tutor the children and wives of the king. However, the king has a hidden agenda of using Anna to bring his "barbarian" country into favor with the modern world.

The production is directed by Liberty Theater stage veteran and TVAC Productions Chair Elizabeth Arabelos-Jagelski, who acted in the theater's very first live production of The Music Man in 2001. She has participated in dozens of musicals since then. She last directed Cinderella in 2014 and played the mother in last year's production of A Christmas Story.

Arabelos-Jagelski is quick to credit longtime stage musicians Dr. Randy Pearson and Jim Thorn, who she refers to as the Great Dynamic Duo, as the "unsung heroes" of the production.

"The music is so complicated and Jim and Randy are able to play with the professional ability required by a Broadway score – something most musicians can't do," she said. "They perform instinctively as one and need the least direction of any group because they are so professional, she added.

Arabelos-Jagelski said it is nearly impossible to single out individuals when talking about the show's cast and crew.

"I really look forward to the togetherness of over 80 people coming together and volunteering their time for the community. That is something you rarely see other than in cases of an emergency or tragedy," she said.

Nyssa Zanger and Sean Calvert play the lead roles of Anna and the King. Zanger is a TVAC veteran, who recently moved to Walla Walla. Calvert, who lives in College Place, is new to the Liberty stage.

"It is a huge commitment for them to travel to Dayton for rehearsals, but they've done it. Both Nyssa and Sean have their entire families participating in the play along with them, so it's a family endeavor," Arabelos-Jagelski said. "It's incredible to watch the main characters because they are in nearly every scene. They work tirelessly."

"One challenge has been converting western people to Siamese people in regard to behavior and voice dialect, but the actors have been meeting that challenge, Arabelos-Jagelski said.

The cast has gone to great lengths to become as authentic as possible. Actor Justin Jaech, who has lived in Thailand, and Thai exchange student, Ing Phoolpipat, have both spent time working with actors on their accents and mannerisms.

Arabelos-Jagelski said that the elaborate costuming is one of the reasons some companies shy away from producing The King and I. TVAC's Mary Luce, along with her team of talented tailors and seamstresses, has not shied from the challenge.

"Anna wears one skirt that we have named Big Bertha because it's so huge. When blocking the actors, we have to treat the skirt as an entire person," Arabelos-Jagelski said, laughing.

"Getting to Know You" and "Shall we Dance?" are two of the musical highlights in one of Broadway's longest-running shows in history. Choreographer Darla Brownell-Tubbs has traveled from Spokane to work with her team, Tracy Barron and Julia Mead and Brenda Henderson has stepped in to choreograph the many children in the production.

"It is always so fun to watch a production evolve from a simple thought into its own person. We started out as a little child and now we're off and running. I hope people come out and get excited about what we've done," Arabelos-Jagelski said.

Rodger and Hammerstein's The King & I will begin its 13-performance run on Nov. 10 and will run through Dec. 2. On Family Night (Nov. 10) and Encore Night (Nov. 30), tickets are specially priced at $10. Tickets may be purchased online at libertytheater.org, at the Liberty Theater box office, by calling (509) 382-1380. To learn more, call or email info@libertytheater.org.

Lady Bulldogs End Regionals with Five-Set Loss Against Tonasket

LONGTIME COACH SHANNON TURNER TENDERS RESIGNATION

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WENATCHEE – The Lady Bulldogs wrapped up their season with a hard-fought match against Tonasket at the regional tournament in Wenatchee on Thurs., Nov. 2. Tonasket took the game 26-24, 17-25, 25-19, 21-25, 15-12.

“Our team stats were better than ever as a whole. We hustled, played hard, stayed upbeat and battled the entire match. It just came down to us making a few more errors in that last set than Tonasket did!” said Bulldogs coach Shannon Turner.

“They were a very good defensive team and picked up balls that we typically scored on. It was a great season coaching a group of amazing young ladies that were dedicated and worked hard! Thank you for all of your support!” she added.

On Nov. 5, Turner posted photos of this year’s team and her first-year team as a coach, along with a copy of her letter of resignation saying she has decided it’s time to “hang up her whistle.” Turner’s letter says that she began coaching in Dayton in 1989, has coached 38 teams, and has been varsity coach for 24 years. She has coached 30 middle school/high school seasons and spent four years as head track coach and coached four seasons of middle school basketball.

“It’s time for me to retire from coaching and make more time for adventures with my family... Wouldn’t trade it, I had the time of my life,” she said.

31, 1946, ninety men had made the ultimate sacrifice including six POWs. The multi-element monument will stand on a pentagon-shaped concrete pad just east of the Fort Walla Walla Museum. Three gray Vermont granite pillars, representing air, land, and sea warfare, are designed similar to those in Washington, D.C. The names and ranks of the casualties will be engraved on the pillars. A large stone will hold our dedication statement and bronze emblems of the four military services—Marines, Navy, Army, and Army Air Corps. In the center will be a flag pole donated by AmVets Post 1111.

The cities of Walla Walla, College Place, and Waitsburg have provided financial support. The general public has been generous with cash donations, but we still have a ways to go. Several businesses will also be furnishing some substantial in-kind donations. These will be named in an ad in the upcoming supplement in the November 19 issue of the Walla Walla Union-Bulletin.

An unplanned extension of the project has resulted in the research and writing of a brief narrative about each of the 90 casualties. Two committee members did this on their own, along with their regular fund raising and promotional duties. Those who were lost are much more than names on a roster. They were someone's son, brother, uncle, husband or neighbor. Three of the men were from Waitsburg—CPT Norman Estes, 1LT Anthony Lloyd, and 2LT Merle Eaton. With the construction of this memorial, none of them will ever be forgotten.

This project is taking longer than any of us imagined, but we are all fully committed to complete the mission. We all owe the entire "greatest generation" for the freedoms we have today and so much more. When the soldiers, sailors, Marines, and airmen came home, they did not expect to have statues and monuments built for them. They considered themselves as ordinary men who fulfilled their duty and just wanted to get on with their lives. Ordinary maybe when they left home, but their service was anything but ordinary. Instead, the men who returned to Walla Walla asked for recreational venues as a "living memorial" that they could enjoy with their families and would benefit the entire community. This request was answered with Veterans Memorial Golf Course and Veterans Memorial Pool. Now 70 years later with the ranks of WWII veterans rapidly dwindling, a committee was formed to establish a permanent reminder. We are on track to dedicate the planned memorial on Veterans Day 2018.

Information about the project may be found at www.wiimemproj.com. Donations may be sent to Fort Walla Walla Museum, 755 Myra Road, Walla Walla 99362 with WWII memorial on the memo line. Questions may also be directed to Neil & Sherilyn Jacobson, committee members, at 509-876-2425.

Narratives of the Waitsburg honorees follow.

CAPTAIN NORMAN BRADFORD ESTES

OCTOBER 29, 1916 – FEBRUARY 12, 1945

Norman was born in Lincoln County, WA to Thomas and Goldie Schoonever Estes. He had two older sisters and a younger one—Marion, Edith, and Bertha. Brother Elmer was two years older. The only other information about Norman's early years includes graduation from high school and living in a boarding house in Walla Walla on Boyer Avenue. At some time he also lived in Waitsburg. On July 23, 1942 Norman married Frances Zuger in Walla Walla.

He enlisted in the Army on March 7, 1941 in Spokane as a Private. At that time his occupation was vehicle mechanic. No further information is currently available regarding how he was commissioned, unusual for someone with only a high school diploma so it may have been a battlefield commission. All that is known is that CPT Estes perished in Germany and is buried in Margratin, Holland in the Netherlands American Cemetery. His memory is commemorated on the Wall of Honor at the Waitsburg City Cemetery and there is a headstone marking an empty grave. Source: www.ancestry.com

SECOND LT. MERLE STIMMEL EATON

1921- APRIL 5, 1946

Born in 1921, Merle joined parents Clarence and Charlotte May Eaton and sister Ursula. Another sister, Clara Jean, was added later. The family was in Waitsburg at least by 1930. The census also lists three men living with the family—George Prest (age 72), Robert Russell (age 59), and Laurence May (age 17), but no information about them. Laurence might have been a relative of Mrs. Eaton. By 1940, Ursula is no longer living at home, but there was a woman listed as Kanela who would have been the same age. At that time Merle had completed high school and was working as a tractor driver. In 1941 he enrolled in Washington State College as an engineering major. In 1942 he was living in Seattle.

On March 12, 1943 Merle enlisted in the Army Air Corps as an aviation cadet in Santa Ana, CA with one year of college to his credit. Another source states he entered the Army Reserve Medical Administrative Corps.

At some point Cadet Eaton was commissioned and assigned to the 882nd Bombardment Squadron, 500th Bombardment Group (Very Heavy) as a pilot for the B-29 Superfortress and credited with flying six sorties. The 882nd was activated in November 1943 and trained in Kansas. There were frequent delays in training as modifications to correct production deficiencies were made. Training completed, the squadron moved to Isely Field on Saipan in January 1945. The 882nd was assigned to the XXI Bomber Command of the 20th Air Force. Its mission was strategic bombing of Japanese home islands and destruction of its war-making capabilities. Wide-area firebombing attacks using incendiary and high explosive bombs were carried out resulting in major damage. This continued until the end of the war in August 1945. The mission shifted to carrying relief supplies to Allied POW camps in Japan and Manchuria until fall when it was demobilized and sent to March Field, CA. The entire 500th Bomb Group was deactivated in January 1946.

One source states that 2LT Eaton was the co-pilot of Z Square 31, nicknamed "Homing De-Vice" on a bombing mission to destroy the Tachikawa aircraft plant near Tokyo. All communication was lost after take-off and no wreckage was found. It is presumed the plane crashed into the ocean or Tokyo Bay. It is not even known if Z-31 reached its target. The date of the mission must be incorrect since combat missions were no longer being flown and the 500th had already been deactivated. Further research is required. 2LT Eaton's name is engraved on the Tablets of Honor at the National American Cemetery of the Pacific in Honolulu, HI. He was posthumously awarded the Purple Heart and Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster. There is a grave marker for him in the family plot of the Waitsburg Odd Fellows Cemetery. It is probable that Merle married. A 500th Bomb Group report lists Marilyn Eaton of Merced, CA as his next of kin. FIRST LT. ANTHONY BOYNTON LLOYD

MARCH 12, 1915 – JANUARY 7, 1943

The Lloyd family has been in the Waitsburg area for many years going back to the early pioneer days. Tony's grandfather, Albert Gallatin Lloyd, was a volunteer militiaman who fought in the Battle of Walla Walla in December 1855. Conversely Tony's father, Wesley A. Lloyd, became known as "a friend of the Indians". During his lifetime, pack trains to the Idaho gold field gave way to railroads and trackless prairie gave way to wheat ranches. Mr. Lloyd came to know the local Indians quite well, even learning their languages which was helpful since his land was next to theirs. Tony and his younger brother, Milton, grew up in this rich environment receiving many handmade native items and learning much about Indian lore from their neighbors. In recent years, the Lloyd family has generously donated a large number of artifacts to Fort Walla Walla Museum that are now on permanent display.

Among other figures of notoriety in the area, Mr. Lloyd once sold a horse to CPT Wainwright whose father was in the Cavalry at Fort Walla Walla. At some time during Tony's all too brief military career, he served under General Wainwright in the Pacific.

Tony graduated from University of Washington with a degree in chemical engineering. A different skill he developed while a student, was marksmanship with rifles and resolvers. He won many competitions with the ROTC team including national meets.

Tony's brother, Milton, served his country for four years earning the rank of First Sergeant while assigned to the 646th Technical School Squadron.

One source indicates that Tony enlisted in the Army Reserve as an officer in 1940 while another states he was called up for duty with other Reserve officers. At any rate, LT Lloyd was sent to March Field, CA and was deployed overseas in September 1941 to Fort Mills, Corregidor in the Philippines. He was assigned to the 78th Coast Artillery. Later he served with Battery H, 60th Coast Artillery Regiment that was tasked with anti-aircraft defense of Manila and Subic Bays. (See separate information about the Coast Artillery Corps.) His last letter home was written on November 17, 1941. Corregidor fell in May 1942 and all allied troops, including 1LT Lloyd, were taken prisoner. Locations included Bilibid, a POW hospital; Cabanatuan; and finally Kokura, Japan on Shokuku Island. A year later, the family received a message from a SGT Russell that Tony was still alive in a Philippine POW camp. This was cruel false hope since 1LT Lloyd had already perished of malnutrition at the hands of his captors on January 7, 1943. Repeated attempts by International Red Cross had yielded nothing.

In July 1943, his parents saw a news reel in a movie theater. It showed American soldiers being taken prisoner by the Japanese on Corregidor. Mrs. Lloyd was certain one of them was her son. The theater manager gave them a section of the film so they could have a still picture made. Even though positive identification could not be made, the Lloyds held out hope that Tony was still alive somewhere. Official notice was not received until December 1945.

On March 8, 1946, 1LT Lloyd's parents received a letter announcing the posthumous award of the Silver Star "for gallantry in action on Corregidor, Philippine Islands on 28 April 1942. During a heavy Japanese artillery concentration of a battery position, the electrical power transmission cables were destroyed by artillery. Completely disregarding his own safety, Lieutenant Lloyd left cover, exposed himself to enemy fire for two hours, and repaired these vital cables thereby bringing the battery back into synchronization. By his sustained gallantry and courageous devotion to duty, Lieutenant Lloyd rendered invaluable aid to our forces during a critical period of operation".

As a lasting tribute to 1LT Anthony Lloyd, a U.S. flag was eventually presented to Mrs. Lloyd. In turn his brother, Milton, presented it to the Waitsburg American Legion post in 1957. The Legionnaires proudly fly the flag over the city cemetery each Memorial Day and Veterans Day in his honor.

PVT. FIRST CLASS BOBBY NORMAN PETTICHORD

MARCH 2, 1925 - JUNE 13, 1945

Bobby's parents were Earl and Blanche with siblings Richard and Billie completing the family. His formal education included three years of high school.

Bobby enlisted in the Army in Spokane on July 23, 1943. At the time of his death on Luzon in the Philippines two years later, he was assigned to Company G of the 20th Infantry Regiment. The only information about his military service is a Navy muster roll dated May 27, 1944. The USS General John Pope (AP-110) was a troop transport from San Francisco bound for Edur at the northern tip of India. One source states she was headed for ports in New Guinea, Guadalcanal, and the Russell Islands (part of the Solomons).

The 20th Infantry Regiment was assigned to the 6th Division in October 1939 and became known as Sykes Regulars. Its elements participated in the campaigns on New Guinea and Luzon that included bitter fighting through jungles and up mountains. They debarked at Maffin Bay on New Guinea in mid-June 1944 and fought Japanese soldiers to total destruction by December. The new year found the 20th on Luzon Island with General MacArthur liberating the same people the American Army had policed 40 years earlier. On January 9, the 20th landed on Blue Beach in Lingayen Gulf and took on 250,000 well-equipped Japanese who had spent three years fortifying the area. The Sykes Regulars took the beaches and Purple Heart Valley across the 6,000 bloody yards in the world at the time. It was during this campaign that PFC Pettichord was killed and posthumously awarded the Bronze Star. He is buried in the Waitsburg City Cemetery near other family members and his name is engraved on the Wall of Honor. A government-issue headstone was requested in 1951 by his mother, remarried to a Mr. Watt, and it is in the veterans section of Walla Walla's Mountain View Cemetery.

Following consolidation, the 20th Infantry Regiment moved to Munoz Island. With other elements of the 6th Infantry Division, the 20th was the most heavily engaged Army unit having spent 219 consecutive days in combat. They faced the last groups of organized resistance in the Pacific Theater until the cease fire was ordered on August 15, 1945.

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX

Buttermilk Cinnamon Rolls

One of my many downfalls is cinnamon anything, but cinnamon rolls are on the top of that list. I prefer mine to be a sweet roll with plenty of cinnamon and no frosting, please. When I saw this recipe I thought, if it has buttermilk as an ingredient then it has to be a light, not heavy, dough, and I was right. It also used brown sugar which I had not used before. I thought I'd give it a try.

And thankfully, I have a handy taster, Joe. When he went for his third roll, I knew they were a success.

If cinnamon rolls sounds good but you don't want to take the time to make them, then head to our local bakeries, Carolyn's Café and Moose Creek Bakery.

Mostly, I retype recipes and try to watch for errors. Sometimes, if I feel the directions are obvious, I may shorten them. If anyone has any questions about how it is written, please call. Who wants a recipe not to turn out after the time, effort, and cost to make it?

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 (.25 oz) packages of active dry yeast
- ¼ c. warm water (110 degrees)
- 1 ½ c. buttermilk
- ½ c. vegetable oil
- 4 ½ c. flour

- 1 tsp salt
- ½ tsp baking soda
- ½ c. butter, melted
- 1 ¼ c. brown sugar
- 1 ½ tsp cinnamon

DIRECTIONS:

In a large bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water (I add about ½ teaspoon of sugar). Let stand until creamy, about 10 minutes. In a small saucepan, heat the buttermilk until warm to the touch.

Pour the buttermilk and oil into the yeast mixture, mix well. Combine the flour, salt and baking soda. Stir the flour mixture into the liquid 1 cup at a time, until a soft dough forms. Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface and knead 10 times. Cover and let rest for 15 minutes. In a small bowl, stir together the butter, brown sugar, and cinnamon.

On a lightly floured surface, roll dough out into a large rectangle. Spread the brown sugar and butter mixture over the dough, roll up into a log and pinch the seam to seal. Slice into 1 inch pieces and place cut side up in a lightly greased 10 x 15 baking pan. Cover and let rise 30 minutes or cover and refrigerate overnight.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Let stand for 2 to 3 minutes before serving.

MY NOTES:

I buy the yeast in bulk, so the conversion is 2 or 2 ¼ tsp yeast to a package of yeast. I have mentioned before, I buy the powdered buttermilk which seems to work fine. In home economics classes in high school, we learned to 'scald' milk so that it killed the milk enzymes. I believe that is the reason to warm the buttermilk, but make sure it has cooled enough not to kill the yeast.

I noticed as I was making it, that this dough does not have sugar or eggs. Before I forget, next time I am going to increase the cinnamon to 2 teaspoons. I also added raisins.

If this is anyone's first time rolling up the dough to make a log, the starting is a bit tricky, but before long, you can start actually rolling it.

I chose to refrigerate overnight and if you do also, heads up. I put the pan in without much care if it was level or not. The next morning, some of the brown sugar mixture turned liquid and mostly gathered into one corner. Since the rolls had gotten larger and tightly together, I had to cut in between them to make channels to even out the liquid.

When I removed them from the pan, I turned them upside down, with the gooey bottom on top. They resemble more of a caramel roll, I think.

The dough is not heavy at all, and it was really easy to work with.

ENJOY----- and share with someone who would appreciate homemade cinnamon rolls.
