WAITSBURG'S SCHOOL ARTS PROGRAM INCLUDES PERFORMING ARTS, MASS BAND & CONCERTS

WAITSBURG — One of the elective courses available this year at the Waitsburg School District is performing arts taught by Elizabeth Jagelski. The class opened to sophomores and welcomed five students this semester. They recently performed their first skit, an abbreviated version of Cinderella, for elementary students.

In the class, students learn to be calm while performing, to ad-lib and to assist with fast wardrobe and prop changes, double casting, advertising, and cleaning up after performances.

Jagelski personalizes the skits to fit her students' strengths. Sasha Collins, Mackenzie Strickland, London Cook, Pilar Diaz-Easton, and Ava Childers said they were nervous during their first performance. After the show, they thought the skit went well and got easier as it went along. They said it was awesome to have the opportunity to perform in front of the "littles."

The class helps build confidence and self-assurance in preparation to perform in front of their peers. Two of Jagelski's students, Diaz-Easton and Collins, are performing this month in the Dayton Liberty Theater's Fiddler on the Roof production.

On Wednesday, October 23, Jagelski accompanied five band members to a mass band event hosted by The Southeastern Washington Music Education Association in Clarkston, Wash. About 200 band and choir students from Waitsburg, Asotin, Clarkston, Colfax, Dayton, Kahlotus, Oakesdale, Prescott, St John-Endicott, and Washtucna performed a concert under the direction of Dr. Jason Johnston and choir conductor Dr. Matthew Myers.

Waitsburg band students William Daves, Sarah Daves, Morgan Lindsey, Kyle Lindsey, and Leif Hickman practiced three songs with the other schools, had a short break, practiced again, had a dinner break, and then dressed for the 7:15 pm concert.

On Thursday, November 7, Jagelski's K-12 music students will perform for the Veteran's Day Assembly in the high school gym at 2 pm. The public is invited to honor our veterans and enjoy an outstanding performance by Waitsburg's students.

AT THE LIBERTY: "White Bird"

THE TIMES

DAYTON — In the movie "White Bird," kindness has the power to save lives, as Julian Albans, the bully who left Beecher Prep, is visited by his Grandmère from Paris and is transformed by her remarkable story of compassion and courage. As a girl in Nazi-occupied France, the young Grandmère goes into hiding with the help of a schoolmate, a young man who risks everything to give her the chance to survive. Together, they find beauty and love in the secret world of their own creation. From Marc Forster (director of Finding Neverland and Christopher Robin) and based on R.J. Palacio's book, "White Bird," like "Wonder" before it, is an emotional story about the ways that even in the most harrowing circumstances, empathy for others can make every difference in the world.

White Bird has a favorable rating of 72% from critics, while the audience rates it higher at 99% on Rotten Tomatoes. The critics consensus is that this movie packages a difficult subject matter into a digestible morality tale. White Bird is a soft-pedaled but ultimately moving drama fit for the whole family. This movie is rated PG-13 for strong violence, thematic material and language, however the the rating indicators on IMDb were none or mild for each of the categories. The movie runtime is 121 min.

The live performance of "Fiddler on the Roof" will run November 14 – December 7. Tickets are on sale online at libertytheater.org, by phone, and in person at the theater during Box Office Hours Tuesdays and Fridays from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

LYONS FERRY PARK CLOSED DUE TO ALGAE BLOOM

THE TIMES

LYONS FERRY — Washington State Parks has closed the swim beach at Lyons Ferry State Park due to the presence of blue-green algae. Algae is at its worst between September and October according to the state health department. The closure includes swimming, water skiing, and other water sports.

The park service warns pet owners to not let animals drink the water as the algae is toxic to pets and people. The park ranger on duty at the park over the weekend of October 19, said that a dog can die within six hours after drinking the water. She also advised park visitors to wear gloves when handling fish.

Microcystin is the toxin produced by cyanobacteria, also known as blue-green algae. On that weekend, the microcystin level from the algae bloom was 140 micrograms per liter. The Washington State Department of Health advises that the safe level for recreational water is 6 mg/L. Not all algae blooms produce toxins but there is no visible way to know. The water may look clear and inviting but visitors to the park should check for warning signs posted before entering during the algae bloom season.

CLAYTON FOR A BALANCED APPROACH

To the editor,

Walla Walla's current County Commissioner Jeny Mayberry's "Rob Peter to Pay Paul" budget mentality cannibalizes the County's current expense account. Mayberry's approval of hefty pay raises for the County Sheriff's Office without voting to raise commensurate revenue is creating the forbidden "Unfunded Mandate." Other county employees and programs that provide the infrastructure to put the deputies on the road, JOBS and PROJECTS are being put in jeopardy. Bertha Clayton's proven credentials will provide a balanced approach for funding county services. She understands teamwork, organizational protocols and appreciates the value of all county employees.

OBITUARY

Richard Barry Ford

May 7, 1943 – October 10, 2024

Richard Barry Ford, known affectionately to many as Papa Rich, left this world unexpectedly on October 10, 2024. Though it is comforting to know he is in Heaven where there is no suffering but pure Joy in the presence of the LORD, our sorrow is great. The "Old Man" will be greatly missed and never forgotten.

Our loving dad, husband, grandfather, and friend will be remembered for many things, one is his positive attitude. He woke up happy nearly every morning, saying, "Good morning, day!"

Rich Ford was a principled man who taught us that honesty was highly prized. He passed his principles and work ethic to his children and grandchildren. A bit of a perfectionist, he also taught us that if you don't have time to do the job right the first time, you definitely don't have time to do it twice.

Rich was also known for his famous quotes we called "Richardisms." And there is a whole bunch of them. He was a whole lotta fun and quite the practical joker. We could write a book filled with his hilarious pranks.

Maybe not wealthy by the world's standards, Richard Ford was extremely wealthy in other ways, including the legacy he left through his six children and his beloved grandchildren. To quote someone he greatly admired, Paul Harvey, "And now here's the rest of the story."

"Richie," as his older sisters called him, was born May 7, 1943, in Escanaba, Michigan, to Marvin and Marianna Ford. He grew up on a UP (Upper Peninsula dairy farm.) He shared stories of so much snow that they had tunnels from the house to the barns. When he was seven, he and his parents and older brother Roger moved to a dairy farm in the Poe Valley, outside of Klamath Falls, Oregon. His two older married sisters, Elaine Jensen and Gerry Thornton, remained in Michigan and Wisconsin. After his mother suddenly died when Richard was in high school, he went to live with his brother and sister-in-law Pat.

An independent teen, he moved to his own apartment at 16 and worked full-time at Weisfield's in Klamath Falls while finishing high school at Klamath Union. Then, he met a pretty gal living across the street who just happened to have the same last name, even though they were NOT related. Betty Jo and Rich married in 1963 and welcomed their first-born daughter, Marlee, in 1964. Eleven months later came Cheryl, and they were blessed with Gregory five years later.

Richard worked as an electrician for Weyerhaeuser until 1970. As the story goes, he and his brother Roger could whoop any of the 4,000 employees who dared to arm wrestle them. Years later, Richard arm wrestled in Northern California and Oregon, winning or placing in several big tournaments, including the Northern California Heavyweight Championship in 1974 and the Oregon State Championship.

In 1970, Rich and his young family moved to Yreka, California, where he was hired by Pacific Power & Light as a high-voltage electrician. It didn't take him long to be promoted to Wireman Working Foreman, a position he held until he retired at 54, in Walla Walla, Washington.

Life is not always perfect; Richard and Betty Jo divorced after nearly 20 years of marriage. Looking to start fresh, Rich and Janice relocated to Washington State, eventually ending up in Waitsburg, happily living in the house they built on Caroline St. How they built their home speaks volumes about the kind of man he was. Who builds a home designed for entertaining their grandchildren? Papa Rich, that's who. The three-story house has built-in baby gates, a basketball hoop, a huge sandbox with a water faucet, Tonka trucks, and shovels. Papa Rich loved to spend time with his grandkids, and it wasn't unusual for him to take five or more of them to the couple's cabin on his own for several days.

One summer several years ago, a bunch of the grandsons asked for Mohawk haircuts; guess who else got one? Yep, you got it, Papa Rich. Kids spell love T-I-M-E, and Papa Rich gave his grandkids an incredible amount of love.

Richard is survived by his loving wife & partner of 42 years Janice, his children; Marlee (Scott) Billingsley of Yreka, Calif., Cheryl (Jesse) Gonzalez of Spring Creek, Nev., Greg (Amy) Ford of Kennewick, Wash., Aaron (Leah) Trent of Benton City, Wash., Kim (JC) Picton of Kennewick, Wash., and Kaylyn (Daryl) Rutherford of Waitsburg, Wash. Papa Rich was the proud Grandfather of 20: Jace (Alyssa), Blake (McKenzie), Scotty (Emily), Gage, Elaina, Brooklyn, Bryce, Addison, Gabriella, Garrett, Colton, Ben, Lauryn, Annie, Michael, Jonathan, Lucas, Alexa (Eman), Ryder, and Brody. His legacy continues as the Great-Grandfather of seven: Sophia, Belimy, Luke, Leytin, Pierce, Adalee, and Adriel.

INNOVIA AWARDS $6K THROUGH COLUMBIA COUNTY CHILDREN'S FUND

THE TIMES

Spokane — The Columbia County Children's Fund at Innovia is awarding grants totaling $6,000 to organizations serving youth in Columbia County. The grantees selected were Touchet Valley Arts Council, Tri-State Steelheaders, and LaunchNW.

"Ensuring that children have access to exceptional education and extracurricular activities is essential to creating vibrant and sustainable communities," says Nolan Glueckert, Regional Engagement Manager of the Southern Region at Innovia Foundation. "Innovia is partnering with the Columbia County Children's Fund grant program to provide educational experiences and opportunities to children in Columbia County."

The CCCF awarded The Touchet Valley Arts Council a $1,000 grant to support its Summer Cultural Enrichment Program (SCEP). The program includes a summer film series for families, free theater education, and the opportunity to participate in a live theater production in partnership with the Missoula Children's Theatre. Community members can attend the performance at a reduced cost.

The Tri-State Steelheaders received $4,000 from the fund for their Salmon in School 24-25 initiative. The program educates students and the community on the importance of salmon to our regional economy and culture. Salmon in School provides classrooms with salmon eggs, allowing students to observe the early stages of the life cycle before releasing them into local streams in the spring.

LaunchNW received a $1,000 grant to support high school students in Columbia County through the Columbia County LaunchNW Scholarship Fund. The fund will benefit students attending Dayton High School, helping them to reach their post-high school educational goals and meet their full potential.

The Delayed Visit Happened

By Vicki Sternfeld-Rossi | THE TIMES

My friends scheduled to visit a few months ago finally made it—no more COVID-19 or work delays. To say we hit the ground running is an understatement. We may have surpassed Henry VIII in gluttony and alcohol consumption over the weekend.

They booked the brutal 7 a.m. flight out of Burbank (California), so obviously, they were bleary-eyed when they boarded for Seattle. While in the Seattle airport connecting to Walla Walla, John ran into a shop, and his phone's magnetic wallet became detached. Luckily, Alaska Airlines customer service called to let him know they found it. His blood pressure normalized, and my visitors were ready to celebrate.

Our first stop was Graze to pick up sandwiches and salads, then the Mark Ryan tasting room. We laughed so much our stomachs hurt. The tasting host augmented our flights of wine with other bottles they thought we should try. Then we decided dessert should be a bottle of sparkling wine. A well spent three hours, until I got home and realized I'd left my phone.

Next, they checked into Hiromi's House, Waitsburg's premier vacation rental, before going to The Royal Block for more wine, oysters, and poetry—the perfect appetizer for our next stop at American 35 for wood-fired pizza. We unanimously decided water was the ideal drink to complement our pizza!

We took an ambitious walk around town on Saturday morning, including Ten Ton for coffee. Then, we hit the road again to Valdemar Winery for more wine and food, but first, we quickly stopped to pick up my phone. At Valdemar, we ran into one of my Waitsburg friends and a group we'd met the night before at the Royal Block.

After gorging ourselves while enjoying the spectacular view, we drove to my coop garden, where we picked corn, tomatoes, and a few watermelons. After that workout, we needed liquid sustenance, so off we went to Grosgrain Winery for another bottle of sparkling wine and more ogling at the view.

We had reservations for dinner but decided we were too tired. Daniel came to the rescue. He cooked a Pho/Ramen for us, and again, we polished off three bottles of wine. However, there were four of us this time, which seemed a little less guilt-inducing.

We hit the streets again on Sunday morning with an ambitious walk to Ten Ton for more coffee and conversation. Then, on to brunch in Walla Walla, where I left my sunglasses on the table. Luckily, someone turned them in, and it was all good again.

We headed to Tranche Winery, where we ran into the group we'd met at Royal Block and then Valdemar. We tried to decide who was stalking who. No decision was made, so we drank more wine.

That was the only wine tasting that day, which left us time to shower and drive into Walla Walla for dinner at Hattaway's and start the wine "wind-down" after polishing off two more bottles of wine.

Monday, after another ambitious walk to Ten Ton, I made breakfast. The beverage of the day: coffee.

fee. Then, it was time for my visitors to return to Los Angeles. They packed a few ears of the corn they'd picked, some showing in John's luggage. When the TSA agent asked, and John confirmed it was corn, the agent just shook his head and said, "That's a first."

A great time was had by all. And all phones, wallets and sunglasses are with their rightful owners!

CARDINAL FOOTBALL SENIOR NIGHT

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg's last home game was cancelled due to illness on the St. John-Endicott Eagles team. Since it was Senior Night, the Cardinals staff arranged a flag football game against alumni-community members.

Before the game, students and community members enjoyed a BBQ before the senior football players, cheerleaders, and their families were recognized.

Once the flag football match began, the Cardinals looked to run away with the game in the first half. Short passes and players with young legs dominated to take a 22-12 lead at halftime.

Rising above their aches and pains, the old guys rallied in the second half and won 45-38.

"It was a good way to honor the seniors tonight. There were a lot of smiles and laughs," said Coach Gabe Kiefel. "I was happy to see the current team play so well, and the old guys gave it their all."

"A big thank you to the parents, staff, and students for coming out to honor our senior players," said Kiefel.

It was a great community event overall. Thanks to paraeducators Lash LaRue and Chris Andrews, who organized the impromptu game.

The Cardinals finished third in the Wheat League and will take on the third-place team from the Grape League, Sunnyside Christian. The league crossover game will be played on Friday, November 1, at Granger High School starting at 7 p.m.

The Cardinals will play a second crossover game against a team from the North league on Friday, November 8. Play-off games will be determined after the November 8 game.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago

Dayton – Collection week for Operation Christmas Child Shoeboxes is November 17–24, 2014. Twenty-one years ago David C. Cook decided to pack simple gifts in a shoebox for child victims of the Bosnian war. To date, over 100 million shoeboxes have been given to needy children around the world. Operated through Samaritan's Purse, Operation Christmas Child is the world's largest Christmas project of its kind. Dayton-Waitsburg-Prescott area donors gave 295 shoeboxes last year- over a hundred more than the year prior.

"A Special Place," A poem by Sharon Weyand.

"It's a new town, it's a whole new place, the people all smile hello as you meet face to face.

Not the fast pace of the city lived in before, but a peaceful place - like the ocean coming ashore.

Gentle and quiet as when the tide is low, but richer in beauty than even the rainbow.

A sparkling, clear stream runs through the town, glittering in the sun like jewels upon a crown.

And the mountains surrounding hold their own, their might and power protruding with an undertone.

And the people of Waitsburg have a special flair, a more charming place I know not where.

The 40-foot triumphal arch across Main Street is about completed. It will indeed be handsome. The church bell which the boys sent from Pasig, hangs under the arch. The word "Welcome" in large letters, made by electric lights also adorns the arch.
