Spectacular Fire Hits Waitsburg's Main St.

FORMER HUGS, GIFTS & COLLECTIBLES BUILDING WAS DESTROYED IN SUNDAY NIGHT BLAZE

By Brianna Wray | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG—Neighbors watched as first responders worked to extinguish a fire that broke out on Waitsburg's Main Street Sunday night.

"All of a sudden there were flames and it went up like that," said Joy Smith as she snapped her fingers. "It was fully engulfed before the fire people even got there."

The building, at 109 Main St., which formerly housed Smith's business, Hugs, Gifts and Collectibles, was destroyed. The building is owned by Waitsburg resident Skip Carpenter.

"We were alerted to the fire at 8:45 p.m. Sunday," said Neil Henze, Chief of Columbia and Walla Walla County Fire District 2. "The fire was already through the roof when we arrived on scene."

Further investigation is required to determine a cause, and test results are expected in a week or so.

The blaze was contained by 1 a.m. But as of 10 a.m. Monday morning there were still hot spots smoldering and firefighters hosing smoking embers.

Henze said he was pleased with the turnout from neighboring fire districts.

"We had as many people as we could get out here," he said. "District 2 had two engines here. Columbia County District 3 came to help. We had Walla Walla County District 4, District 5, District 7, and District 8. We also had the City of Walla Walla bring their ladder truck out for us which was a tremendous help so that we could shoot water down at the fire. We appreciate the City of Walla Walla and all the help."

The building was mostly empty when the flames broke out. "We were under the gun to get out of there," Smith said. "The Carpenters asked us to be out by the end of August because they wanted to get in and do some work on the building, so they could

LIBRARY BECOMING MORE OF A COMMUNITY CENTER; VOLUNTEERS ARE NEEDED FOR NEW PROGRAMS

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Are you interested in bird watching, hiking, fishing, geocaching, sewing, canning, or playing the ukulele? Are your children interested in fossils, rocks and minerals, human anatomy, bugs, butterflies, chemistry, forensic, microscopes, or something called Ozobots?

All you need is to be 18 or older and possess a valid library card to participate in a new program at the Dayton Memorial Library called Library of Things.

The Library of Things contains kits for children and backpacks for adults with themes in Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math.

This program fits into the library's goal of becoming more of a community center instead of just focusing on books. It is a growing trend for libraries nationally, said Library Assistant Shakira Bye.

Bye said Head Librarian Dusty Waltner has talked about launching the program for a long time. In fact, Waltner's first library checked out fishing poles to patrons," she said.

Bye urges library patrons to come and check things out. That includes the sewing machine in Waltner's office, for those who want to learn to sew, she said.

The librarians hope users will research library materials, based on the themes of the kits and backpacks.

"We're trying to think of different things to bring people in," said Bye.

On August 29, the library hosted a class in mixology for adults, and Bye said she taught the art of mixing a sidecar and gin martini to a crowd of about 40 people.

Plans are also in the works for Trivia Tuesday, which will take place on the last Tuesday in September, October and November, as part of the librarians' vision to be more community focused.

"I'm excited. This is a really good opportunity to

The Fossil Kit is just one of the collections available for check-out at the Dayton Memorial Library. Library Assistant Shakira Bye said the goal of "Library of Things" is to encourage interest in science, technology, engineering, art and math, for children and adults.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago-September 18, 2008

It is the quintessential American story, told and retold in thousands of towns and villages across the country of covered wagons, sturdy pioneers, immigrants from over the sea, financial hardships, moving, settling down, raising families. Yet with each retelling with different faces and facts, locations and circumstances, and points-in-time, come, like an heirloom family quilt, new textures to the fabric of the American Saga. Jack and Laurette McCaw are the modern-day reflection of the pioneering spirit, carrying on a long nurtured love of the land, passed down from generation to generation. The Waitsburg Historical Society will honor them Sunday as its 2008 Pioneers of the Year.

Local rural residents have been reporting finding dead deer, victims of the viral disease "bluetongue" Last week, rural resident Audrey Ahmann, who lives on Woods Road north of Waitsburg, reported that her husband Martin had located a half dozen dead deer near their home. According to the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, bluetongue, aka Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease (EHD) is common to white-tailed deer, but rarely affects other species. It occurs in the driest part of the year when conditions are just right for the biting gnats, the carriers of the disease.

Waitsburg High School continues to keep its sharp high technology edge. New this fall is a class called computer-aided instructions. Veteran teacher Orval Hagerman is teaching three sections of the class and trying to keep the class size of each section or period to about six students.

Shane Smith of Dayton is a kid who likes to clown around. For three years the 12-year old, a member of The Seekers 4-H group, has carried clowning as a 4-H project. In addition to clowning this year, Shane has a sewing project. It seemed only natural that Shane should combine his two 4-H projects by making his own clown costume.

Bert Witt, the six year old son of C. J. Witt, and wife met with a severe accident during the family's journey to their ranch. The little fellow fell, while walking, and one of the wheel of the wagon ran over him, injuring him severely.

"Won't you tell us why you don't get married?" asked a Dayton dude of a lady at a whist party the other night. "Well, if you must know," she said, "there is at my home a parrot that swears, a mule that kicks, and a monkey that chews: so I have no use for a husband."

OBITUARY

Nancy Jane Gleason Aronson

MARCH 27, 1950 # SEPTEMBER 9, 2018

Nancy Jane (Gleason) Aronson, 68, died unexpectedly on Sept. 9, 2018 at her home in Waitsburg, Washington. Her funeral service will be held Friday, Sept. 14, 2018 at 11:30 a.m. at Herring Groseclose Funeral Home, 315 E. Alder Street in Walla Walla, Washington. Burial will follow at Waitsburg Cemetery, with a Celebration of Life afterwards at the Lyons Building in Waitsburg, Washington. Everyone is invited to share a meal and memories with the family.

Nancy was born on March 27, 1950 in Wichita, Kansas to Bessie Lillian (Patton) and Joseph William Gleason. She had six siblings: Garry, Dale, Geraldine, Gale, Darrel and Ima Gleason. As a child, she lived on various farms in and around Topeka and Wichita, Kansas, and went to school in local schools. Like the rest of the family, she acquired a strong work ethic at a young age by working with her brothers and sisters milking cows, feeding chickens and raising turkeys and other farm animals. From her mother, she learned the basics of cooking for a large family, and other household chores.

In 1965, Nancy married Darrel Biolo and they moved to Ashland, Wisconsin. Her children – Janet, Darrel John, and Douglas were born there. Sadly, she lost two small babies, Patricia and Kenneth there, too. Nancy and Darrel divorced in 1976 and she moved to Walla Walla, Washington to be close to her parents.

In November 1977, she married the love of her life, Marvin Aronson, in Waitsburg, Washington, and the two combined their families. Children in the home now included her children - Janet, Darrel John and Douglas, and Marvin's girls - Daleena and Celena. Soon, their own child, Michelle, made the family complete.

Nancy worked a variety of jobs during her life, but her favorite was waitressing – she loved bantering with her coffee guys at the White Stallion Restaurant the most. She was also a partner in business with her husband Marvin, her brother, Gale, and her sister-in-law, Patricia Gleason, at A & G Texaco in Walla Walla for a number of years.

Growing up, family demands kept her from finishing high school. So in 2010, Nancy decided to continue her schooling and plowed through high school classes at Walla Walla Community College, graduating proudly in June 2011 with a General Education Degree and excellent grades.

Nancy's favorite gift to others was her food, and she was an excellent cook. Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners at her house are now favorite memories. Everyone was welcome. Neighbors, friends, family – all were invited. Her beautiful buffets put 5-Star restaurants to shame. She loved planning the meal, making all the salads and desserts from scratch, roasting the ham and turkey and most of all, visiting all day with family and friends.

She also loved puzzles and games of Yahtzee, collecting wolf figurines and wolf pictures, eating breakfast at local restaurants, watching TV with Marvin, teasing her friends and family, and playing with her beloved dogs and cats.

Nancy's life was a testament of love and devotion. Her kindness knew no boundaries. She opened her heart and her home to anyone who needed a hug, a cup of coffee, a bit of attention, a shoulder to cry on, someone to laugh with – or just a tasty meal. She will be greatly missed by all who had the joy of knowing her.

Nancy is survived by husband Marvin; sisters Geraldine (Allen) Freese, and Ima (Ray) Hardesty; brothers Garry (Carol) Gleason, and Darrel (Donna) Gleason; her children Janet (Roger) Lawrence, Darrel John (Marie) Biolo, Douglas (Amira El-Cherbini) Biolo, Daleena (Jim) Caldwell, Celena (James) Duff, and Michelle (Neil Arnold) Aronson. She has 13 grandchildren – Mark Jr., Keith, Kelly, Jessica, Jordyn, Tiffany, Emily, Brittnee, Brandon, Brady, Brooklyn, Jacob, Hunter - and a baby grand-daughter due in January 2019. She has one great-grandson, Nicholas Adams. She is also survived by her beloved in-laws – Joe and Lola Aronson, Donald and Terry Aronson, LeeAnn and Jim Kendall, Shelly and James Done, Troy Aronson and Patricia Gleason and last - but not least – a multitude of cherished nieces, nephews, and cousins.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Joe and Lillian; her children Patricia and Kenneth; her brothers, Dale and Gale; and her in-laws, Oscar and Clarise Aronson and Elaine Hoikka.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Jude's through the Herring Groseclose Funeral Home, 315 East Alder, Walla Walla, Washington.

SUPPORT URGED FOR STROE

Dear Editor,
My family and I are proud to support Matthew J. Stroe for Walla Walla County Sheriff. I strongly encourage my friends and supporters to vote for Matt Stroe. I worked with Matt for many years at the Sheriff's Office. During his tenure with Walla Walla Sheriff's Office, Matt gained the experience and knowledge necessary to be an effective Sheriff. He served honorably as a Deputy Sheriff for four years and as a Crime Analyst for two more years. Matt offers a diverse background in law enforcement where he has been cross-trained from both road deputy duties to detective's duties. Matt's extensive background maintaining the Registered Sex Offender program and assisting in numerous sex crimes cases enable him to provide the training and resources necessary to assist his deputies in their duties.

I know Matt to be a dedicated, hardworking, and honest man. He has the law enforcement experience, administrative experience and the personality traits to be this county's chief law enforcement officer. Matt has hometown experience and hometown values; he has served this community his entire adult life. Matt's desire to serve as our next Sheriff is a continuation of his commitment to service in our community. Matt's love for this community is apparent in his every action and statement. He is a man of character, that can be verified from birth! If you do not know Matt firsthand, I offer you this suggestion – ask your friends or neighbors if they know him. Verify that he is what he represents – we have that ability in this candidate. The position of Sheriff is too powerful a position to take a chance on the unknown – let's verify the person we are voting for has the background they represent as having before we cast our vote.

Join me and many others that place a high priority on supporting the most qualified candidate, who also is our local hometown candidate. Please elect Matt Stroe Walla Walla County Sheriff.
Sergeant Tom Cooper, Retired

SUPPORT URGED FOR NYSOE

Dear Editor
I am writing this letter in support of Dain Nysoe for Columbia County Commissioner. His educational background in business and public administration are perfect for the job. His management of the family farming operation has informed him of the needs of the agricultural community. His tenure on the Dayton City Council has informed his knowledge of how city government runs and the challenges people who live in Dayton face. I've always known Dain to be thoughtful and fair and believe he will be a great commissioner for everyone in Columbia County.

SUPPORT MARK CRIDER

Dear Editor,
In 2015, I was a Corrections Sergeant at the Walla Walla County Jail. During that time, the Commander position became vacant and the Sheriff's Office was trying to find a qualified person to fill the position. I was asked if I had thought about advancing my career at the jail. I asked if they were talking about applying for the Commander position. The response I was given was yes. My response was "that job takes more experience than the seven years I have." At that time, I had successfully graduated two corrections academies, completed the first level supervisor's course, was the training coordinator and FTO, a Taser Instructor, been involved in multiple trainings with the department, was respected by staff and inmates, and a Sergeant for over three years. I knew that the Jail Commander position required much more training and experience than I had at that time.

So how much more important is it for the Sheriff to have advanced knowledge, experience, and training in law enforcement? The liability, responsibility, and decision-making are monumental and require more than just a passing fancy for or dabbling in law enforcement. For that very reason, I believe Mark Crider is then man that will continue to move the Sheriff's Office forward. Mark Crider has an overabundance of instructor certifications, knowledge in law enforcement, and has made hard decisions. He is well respected at the Sheriff's Office, and the majority of the Deputies are supporting his campaign. Mark Crider is the leader we want to work for!

One of my first interactions with Mark happened on one of his days off. He was returning a patrol vehicle to the Burbank area and asked if I could give him a ride back to town. When I arrived halfway through my shift, I saw Undersheriff Crider in complete uniform. I asked him if he wanted me to take him to his residence and he stated "No, I'm here for you, I'm your backup." This made a huge difference on how I could patrol the remaining hours of my shift. We searched for warrants and searched an abandoned home due to past incidents. These tasks would not have been possible to complete safely if Undersheriff Crider decided to just go home for the day.

Please support the deputies and support Mark Crider for Sheriff.

Dear Editor,
In November, Columbia County voters will elect a county commissioner for District 3. Outside of politics (since this is not a partisan position and decisions taken by our commissioners do not involve political viewpoints), how do we decide who is the best qualified?

The most important part of being a county commissioner is approving the county budget and overseeing its spending across every department in the county. Without a background or knowledge of accounting, this would be almost impossible to understand, let alone manage. We have one candidate who received his bachelor's degree in Economics, was a college faculty member in business administration, and has successfully run his family's farm for many years - managing leases, working with tenants, and buying and selling his farm's crops. THAT CANDIDATE IS DAIN NYSOE.

Arguably, the most difficult part of the job besides the budget is dealing with the public and the various department heads. It is important to have good communication skills and having a background in working with the public. We have one candidate whose background includes a Master's degree in Public Administration, marketing director for Kitsap Co. Parks Department, member of the Kitsap Co. Board of Equalization (listening to appeals of disputed tax assessments), President of the Kitsap Mental Health Services non-profit organization, President of Kitsap Mental Health Services Foundation, chamber director for the City of Bremerton, and most recently, current and active member of the Dayton City Council for seven years. THAT CANDIDATE IS DAIN NYSOE.

To sum up, the needed skills for being a qualified county commissioner are having a successful background in business, good communication skills, being open minded, and having a background with working with the public. More than anything, we have ONLY ONE qualified candidate who meets these requirements. AND THAT CANDIDATE IS DAIN NYSOE.

Why would anyone settle for anything but the best qualified candidate to manage our county finances? I know I won't. Please join me in voting for DAIN NYSOE, Columbia County Commissioner.

NEWS BRIEF

GEAR UP FINANCIAL LITERACY NIGHT

DAYTON—Parents with students in grades 8 and 9 are invited to attend the WSU Gear Up Financial Literacy Night on Sept. 24 at 6:30 p.m. in the Dayton High School Auditorium.

Melanie Casciato, an outreach and admissions specialist from Columbia Basin College in Pasco, will present information on saving for college, scholarships and costs associated with attending a post-secondary school.

At the end of the program there will be a work session for the parents of high school seniors, to prepare for the "Free Application for Federal Student Aid" process, which begins on Oct. 1, said Monica Chapman, academic specialist at the Dayton School District. All parents with students in grades 6-12 are welcome to attend, she said.

The focus of WSU Gear Up is currently on a cohort of students who will graduate in 2022 and 2023. The goal is to provide them with resources to prepare for postsecondary education, according to Chapman.

engage the 20 to 30 year old demographic," said Library Assistant Charlie Orribio, who is the Trivia Tuesday facilitator.

Orribio said Trivia Tuesday will feature "The Game of Thrones" in the segment pop culture for literature, local history and sports trivia.

The first Trivia Tuesday will be held at Chief Springs Fire and Irons Brew Pub on Sept. 25 from 6-8 p.m. The second Trivia Tuesday will be held at the Weinhard Café on Oct. 30 from 6-8 p.m.

Orribio said he is still deciding the location for November's Trivia Tuesday.

The librarians all agree that volunteers are needed to make library programs successful. "If your children are participating, then why not volunteer? Even if it's just for an hour," Bye said.

Volunteers are also needed for the library's involvement in established community events like Dayton Days, All Wheels Weekend and Dayton on Tour, she said.

Report from Dayton School Board Meeting

Sept. 5, 2018

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—Topics of discussion at last week's meeting of the Dayton School Board included how to tackle the district's budget deficit for the 2018-19 school year, as well as a facilities update, athletic combine update and enrollment update.

Budget

Superintendent Doug Johnson said because budgeted expenditures exceed revenue by $225,000, the district will need to consider implementing cost savings in order to maintain its financial health. Johnson and the Board will take a "deeper dive" at the October 3rd workshop meeting.

The elementary and high school principals and administrative personnel will be included in future talks about how to address the deficit, he said.

In the interim, board members will meet with high school and middle school ASB officers and Principal Kristina Brown to discuss the impact of the athletic combine on the district budget. Meetings will take place during the school day. Directors Katie Leid and Justin Jaech agreed to attend those meetings.

Facilities update

Drew Wright of Garland Company and Michael Jacobsen of Gillespie Roofing were on hand to talk about the poor condition of the sloped portion of high school roof. Wright said the exterior slope and gutter valleys are in an extremely deteriorated condition and he presented the board with two options for repairing them: to continue demolition, redecking, and reframing the gutter valleys for a cost of around $60,000, or to overbuild the gutter valleys, for a cost of $79,000.

The board decided on the second option to alleviate a possible safety issue for school maintenance staff.

Superintendent Johnson said he will ask for an extension of the contract the district has with Garland Company and he will apply for a state Urgent Repair Grant to raise money for the repairs.

If the district receives the grant, repairs can begin in the spring or the summer of 2019. Without this state funding mechanism, the district will need to consider other options, he said.

Athletic Combine Communications

Johnson said that students and coaches using texting and social media platforms, which might lead to inappropriate use, is a concern recently expressed by board members.

"At this time, it seems as though the only social media being used is Facebook. There is a page for the HS volleyball, and a page for the HS football program," he said.

Johnson said he and Director Katie Leid will raise the issue with Waitsburg school officials at the next athletic combine meeting.

Enrollment

Student enrollment is equal to last year's numbers, said Johnson. "That's exactly what we budgeted for," he said.

Johnson said enrollment could increase when Columbia Pulp, LLC becomes operational in December.

Show and Tell

Academic Specialist Monica Chapman provided the Board of Directors with an update on the WSU Gear Up program.

She said 18 students in grades 6 – 8 participated in the three-week summer program, studying environmental science, rocket science, and science math concepts.

"We had a lot of fun. The kids seemed to really enjoy it," said Chapman. "We were really happy with the turnout."

Gear Up is currently supporting eighth and ninth graders with resources for postsecondary education, she said. If a second Gear Up grant is awarded to the district, students in grades 6 and 7 will be supported, as well.

Chapman said the purpose of the Gear Up program is to create a culture of college-bound students. Thirteen out of 20 students from the District's 2018 graduating class are attending college, she said.

A Financial Literacy Night is planned for the parents of eighth and ninth graders, on Sept. 24 at 6:30 p.m. in the Dayton High School auditorium, Chapman said.

FIRST-HALF PENALTIES HALT
MULTIPLE DRIVES AS DW LOSES FIRST HOME GAME

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Dayton-Waitsburg football team hosted DeSales on Friday night, but couldn't overcome the Irish offense, or their own penalties, and took the loss, 34-8.

DW was hit with 16 penalties in the game, including a rash of flags in the second quarter, which stifled their offense and led to 19 unanswered Irish points that quarter. DW also lost six fumbles in the game and was intercepted three times.

"We need to protect the ball and not let negativity change our attitudes and effort," said DW Coach Troy Larsen. "We let the officials get to us and started to play out of character in the second quarter. I felt we came back in the third quarter again and played well after half and finished the game still playing hard."

DeSales led 26-0 at the half. DW was scoreless until late in the game, after DeSales had built a 34-0 lead.

Split back Brayden Miller scored on a 21-yard run late in the fourth quarter. Quarterback Lash Larue ran in the two-point conversion.

We led the game in a lot of the statistical areas, but we shot ourselves in the foot with penalties and turnovers," Larsen said. "Johnny Wyatt played in his first football game and had a great one, with two interceptions and two receptions. Damian Johnson had a breakout game at running back, with over 100 yards, and Brayden Miller started to run the ball really well. Outside of the second quarter, the defense played well, with Jared Williams leading the way from line-backer."

For the game, Johnson carried the ball 20 times for 112 yards rushing. Miller carried the ball 11 times for 85 yards.

Larue had 55 yards passing on six completions out of 18 attempts. He also threw three interceptions. Miller had two receptions for 30 yards, and Wyatt caught two passes for three yards.

list it for sale."

Smith and another former thrift store owner were just removing the last items when the fire started.

"We went to the grocery store and when we came back the power wasn't on in the building," Smith said. "There's knob and tube wiring down there so I thought they blew a fuse. There was smoke."

Upon further investigation Smith realized it wasn't smoky in the main area of the building, only the breezeway, which had windows that opened to the second floor. "We could see something going on in there, so I said, 'let's get out,'" she said.

Both business owners were able to exit the building safely before its collapse.

Smith continued, "By the time we got out of the building it was coming out of the second-floor door, so that's all I know. All I know is that it went quickly, and it broke my heart. Trying to wrap your head around it is hard. We were there ten years."

Although no one was hurt, two adjacent buildings were damaged.

"With the way downtowns in most places are you have buildings connected or right next to each other," says Henze.

The two-story building to the south, owned by Jim and Claire German, was left with a melted heat pump and two broken-out windows. Their cats both fled the scene and were recovered. One cat was found walking along Highway 124.

Skip Carpenter, the building's owner, was already working at the scene Monday. "We're in the process of cleaning it up right now," he said. "Clyde Burdine has his backhoe down there moving the burnt stuff out. When the matter gets settled a little, we'll haul it all away."

Mary Grant Tompkins shares her family history from her home outside Prescott.

Mary Grant Tompkins is Pioneer of the Year

THE GRANT FAMILY HAS FARMED LAND NEAR PRESCOTT SINCE 1858

By Brianna Wray | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG—This year's Waitsburg Pioneer Fall Festival Pioneer of the Year, Mary Grant Tompkins, doesn't think of herself as a pioneer. But she certainly comes from a long tradition of pioneering spirit.

Mary's family, the Grants, settled in the Prescott area in 1850s, and the rest is history.

"My great grandfather came here in 1858 and we've been here ever since," Mary said.

The Grant Farm has been up and running, harvesting wheat and very occasionally barley, continuously since its inception.

The early Grants also valued education, Mary recalls. "My great-grandparents had a school," the structure of which still stands. "My great-grandfather heard that his younger cousin married a guy who could teach. He wrote him a letter asking him to come out and teach at his school." So, in 1883 Joe and Carrie Pettijohn Uter came to stay. The following year they endeavored to build the house.

"My grandparents bought this side of the road and the house in 1919," Mary said. The house then sat empty until Mary's parents married in 1933.

Over time, the farmhouse's footprint changed. "Originally it was the kitchen and this [sitting] room, but it stopped there," said Mary, gesturing toward the near wall. There were two bedrooms, but no bathroom and no running water. None of the modern-day conveniences that currently adorn the home.

"There was a porch I think the grandparents added. In maybe 1941, my parents turned that porch into a bedroom. So they had three bedrooms, but by then they had five kids."

"Eventually, in 1943, everything happened after harvest. I suppose they had a little money or something – they moved the wall back. They added the upstairs and a bedroom in the corner. That one was my bedroom."

Mary smiled as she recalled growing up with four brothers. "We all got along," she said.

Two of the five Grant kids stayed in the area, but the majority left only to return later. Mary, true to her education-enthusiast pioneer ancestors, "went away to school at San Jose State. Then I got a master's degree from University of Oregon."

Meanwhile, at the farm, business continued as usual until Mary's father retired in the 70s. "My parents stayed here until they eventually moved into the Oddfellows in 1986," says Mary.

Following their departure, the house sat empty for six years. "I moved back into the house in 1992," she said. "That was 26 years ago now...time flies!"

After her father's retirement, Mary's brothers, Bill and Sam, ran the farm. "My brother Bill passed away in 2009, then Sam passed away in 2010. My other brother, John Grant who has also since passed away, farmed north of Prescott for the Hofer Farm, another century farm. His wife was a Hofer."

Mary is glad the farm is still in the family. "It's really sad when I hear of people selling," Mary said. "I think, my gosh, your family has been there for a long time and where are your roots going for the next generation?"

Sam's son, Mark Grant, runs the farm now with the help of one full-time and one part-time assistant.

At harvest time, Mark enlists the help of his two daughters and son, who are always willing to lend a hand. "They take their vacation [from their jobs] to work the harvest. They love it," Mary said.

Mary was pleasantly surprised to learn of her Pioneer of the Year nomination and is happy to share her family's history.

"Often people don't get into family or history until they're adult and then there's nobody to ask," she said.

Mary surveyed her vintage farm equipment and lawn sculptures overlooking the rolling hills that make up her family's legacy. "As far as I'm concerned it's the best place to live."

Pioneer Fall Festival participants can learn more about Prescott's rich culture, including the Grant family's contributions, through a history exhibit at the Wilson-Phillips House.

The Makings of a Championship Barrel Racer

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD ELSIE MANN HAS LEARNED MANY ASPECTS OF RACING FROM HER HORSES

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—It will take teamwork between Elsie Mann and her horse, and the support of a community of caring people, for this 12-year-old barrel racer to achieve her dream of qualifying for Junior National Finals Rodeo.

Mann, of Dayton, and her parents, Jeni Ritchie and Christian Mann, have been working to help her achieve that goal since she climbed aboard her first pony, Annie, at the tender age of 2 ½. It was then that she ran her first barrel race, at the Milton-Freewater Pioneer Posse Pee Wee Rodeo.

Mann said she missed qualifying for Juniors National Finals Rodeo in Moses Lake last year but did "pretty good."

"She's going to have a faster horse to qualify," said her mother. Much depends on the horse and the interaction between horse and rider.

Things were fairly tame, initially, when Ritchie led Elsie on Annie in Pee Wee Barrel Racing division races. Then they acquired a horse called Rain, who was pretty temperamental. He bucked her off three times.

"Elsie has had 2 pretty good concussions," Ritchie said. "We sent that horse back and began looking for a solid horse."

That was when they found a 23-year-old retired barrel racing horse from Canada called Alotta.

Alotta came with instructions: "Don't mess with him. Put her on him, and trust him. He'll take care of her."

"And he did," said Ritchie.

"I made a deal with him," she said. When we retire him we will keep him and he will never have to work another day."

"I won five buckles and one saddle on him in one year," said Mann.

Then disappointment struck when Alotta was injured while racing.

"Alotta came bouncing off the fence on the 3rd barrel, and he was refusing the gate," said Mann.

Mann told her mother, "He hurts too much. I can't make him do it."

"That was a proud Mommy moment. She was in the lead for the saddle," said Ritchie.

They then received the loan of a horse called Lucky. Mann had to learn a new pattern with Lucky, because Lucky ran to the right barrel first, and her other horses ran to the left barrel, first.

They ran Lucky for three or four races and then were introduced to Kaysee, who was faster than Lucky, Ritchie said.

"She stepped up quite a few speeds," she said.

"On Kaysee I won a buckle in Lewiston," said Mann.

Last year, Mann won a saddle for Junior Division Barrel Racing in the Walla Walla Valley Girls Association on her current horse, a 10-year-old gelding named Raisin.

"Raisin is easy going," said Ritchie.

Mann ran Raisin in Saturday night's Jackpot Rodeo at the Columbia County fair, and finished with a commendable score of 18.71 seconds.

"I think I did really good. I've been practicing," she said.

Mann has learned something from all the horses in her young life, said Ritchie.

"Annie taught her how to ride. Alotta taught her what barrel racing is, and what it is to go fast. Lucky filled in the gaps and taught her to run to the right,

Twelve-year-old barrel racer Elsie Mann shared a moment with her horse, Raisin, before Saturday night's Jackpot Rodeo at the Columbia County fairgrounds. Mann placed second in her division.

Kaysee taught her speed, and Raisin has taught her correct horsemanship," said Ritchie.

Mann agreed. "You learn what those horses can teach you. You are constantly learning," she said.

To date, Mann has picked up two saddles, six or seven buckles and some cash prizes that she tucks away to be used on tack, shoes for the horse or entry fees, she said.

Mainly she races for the fun of it, she added.

What comes next?

There are three or four state-wide Junior Rodeo Association events she can participate in, and her mother hopes she might learn roping and the two can pair up for team roping.

In the meantime, qualifying for Junior National Finals Rodeo hasn't been ruled out.

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX

Apple Butter

Original recipe from The Times and Bette Chase

The thought of apple butter warms my heart. I always try to buy it homemade, usually at bake sales or yard sales, which I did for my last jar AND it was from Anita Baker's or her friend's yard sale. Then I asked her for the recipe. Seriously, I had no idea of how it was made, or cared, as long as I was able to resource it.

This is a quote from Crazy-forCrust.com: "Apple butter is a highly concentrated form of applesauce; it's cooked slow and long so that the sugar in the apples caramelizes and turn the sauce a rich, dark brown. It's great on toast and muffins, or in marinades or dips. The smell is amazing!"

Also, on that site was a recipe for Apple Butter Snickerdoodles. I guess apple butter can be used like applesauce when one is substituting the fats and oils.

Did you know that chilled cookie dough is better because the cookies do not flatten as much? I read it on the King Arthur site, and they did experiments on both ways. From their explanation, the fats (butter) do not mingle as much with the flour if it stays chilled, creating more volume—or something like that. It's worth the google if you are curious.

I will retype the recipe as given because, like older recipes, they assumed you knew how to get into the jars for canning. The question I found on the computer was if it could be frozen instead of canned and the answer is yes.

Everyone, and I mean 100% of those who make apple butter, will tell you transparent apples are the best. They come on in August and don't last long. I'm not sure why they are the best to use, unless it's because they cook down quicker.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 gallon of cooked apples (summer Transparents the best)
- 3 qts sugar
- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ tsp each cinnamon, cloves, allspice, salt
- Touch of cayenne pepper

DIRECTIONS:

Cook in oven at 250 -300 degrees until thick.

MY NOTES: For those who would like to try this, please google any additional questions. There is a lot of information available. I had to be reminded how many cups is a gallon and a quart. The answer is 16 cups to a gallon and four cups to a quart.

Fall is just around the corner, and for me that means fresh apples.

Thank you, Anita, for taking the time to drop off the recipe.
 ENJOY!
