Dayton principal position full-time

Athletic Combine to continue with more shared oversight.

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Dayton School District held a special board meeting on Wednesday, June 29, 2022, at 5:00 p.m. in the Dayton High School Auditorium and on Zoom. For the first hour, the board held a joint meeting with the Waitsburg School Board to discuss the DW Combine.

The combined school boards discussed ten items that were previously identified as issues that required further clarification. The two boards agreed to change policy to require principals, or their designates, to attend the monthly Combine meetings and work together closely to administer discipline for athletes. The combined boards agreed to allow sixth-grade participation at the superintendents' discretion based on recommendations from the principals and athletic director.

Finally, the combined boards discussed how the Combine would handle transportation and the financial aspects. To ensure closer cooperation, the boards agreed to meet jointly, at least once per quarter.

The combined meeting adjourned at about 5:50 p.m. The Dayton School Board continued their special session at 6:05 p.m.

The board acted on two issues; the first was to renew the contract with Athletic Director Sam Korslund for the 2022-2023 School Year. The board agreed unanimously; however, some details will have to be approved by the Waitsburg Board since the Athletic Director is a combined position.

The board discussed language modifications to Resolution 2021-05 Administrative Restructure needed to hire Guinevere Joyce as the full-time secondary school principal. The current version of the administrative restructuring resolution limited the secondary principal position to part-time.

Strot said the board could pass the resolution with modified language, which would change the principal to a full-time position. He also said the board should consider new language changing the classification of the Teacher on Special Assignment (TOSA), for discipline, to administrative staff.

This change of the TOSA position to an administrative title, such as Vice Principal, gives this position more latitude when dealing with disciplinary issues. For example, a vice-principal can place a student on in-school suspension, but a TOSA cannot.

In Strot's estimation, even though this change increases the full-time equivalent (FTE) positions for administrators, the district would still save money compared to last year's administrative structure.

Neither version of the proposed resolution was made available to the public at the time of the meeting.

The board approved the resolution with the change to the principal position and will study the proposed change to the TOSA reclassification. The meeting adjourned at about 6:30 p.m.

On-campus location for childcare center moves forward

Rivers Walk Assisted Living on track for Labor Day grand opening

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—The Hospital Board of Commissioners has given the nod to hospital administrators to have Hallway II at the Booker Rest Home evaluated for turning it into a childcare and early learning facility, as proposed by CCHS CEO Shane McGuire at last week's board meeting. Hallway II at the rest home is the wing closest to the Touchet River and Rock Hill. It will be empty later this year when many nursing home residents go to live in the new assisted living facility.

McGuire said he was walking around the hospital campus shortly after the Childcare Community Forum on May 23 and thinking about how to repurpose that hallway when he was struck with the idea of utilizing it for the childcare center.

He and the owners of Blue Room Architecture and Design, Alison and John McLean, pitched the idea to the board of commissioners at their meeting last week, saying the concept makes sense.

The McLeans presented the board with a preliminary design drawing for the center, which they said could have between 38 and 50 openings for children. John McLean said the plan fills almost every requirement.

"We've got the sprinklers. We've got the fire alarms. It is properly built. Almost every box is checked."

The design shows the childcare center walled off from Hallway I, keeping childcare and health care separate.

McGuire agreed with their assessment, "Every room has a sink. Every room has a toilet. It literally has the infrastructure we need to support some of those expensive line items you need in a building. And you walk out the back door, and you have a secured playground with green space."

McLean said it is good practice to plow money back into publicly owned, tax-supported buildings and create another value-added service for the public.

This is the 4th or 5th preliminary design Blue Room Architecture and Design has come up with for the childcare center since exploring locations for the site began back in 2021. Several locations have been ruled out mainly due to the high price of retrofitting existing buildings and high construction costs. For instance, a new 3900 sq. ft. center could cost as much as 1.7 million or more, up from the previous estimate of $1.6 million earlier this year.

CCHS Finance Manager Matt Minor told the commissioners the district would need to practice due diligence, keeping in mind the financial viability and sustainability of the facility over the long term.

The district has already secured $658,500 from private and federal sources for the childcare center. This includes $100,000 from the Sherwood Trust. The funding agencies are okay with this new proposal, according to McGuire.

Commissioner Bob Hutchens went on record pointing out that repurposing Hallway II is

AT THE LIBERTY:

The Duke

THE TIMES

The Duke is set in 1961 when Kempton Bunton (Jim Broadbent), a 60-year old taxi driver, stole Goya's portrait of the Duke of Wellington from the National Gallery in London. Helen Mirren plays as Bunton's wife.

This portrait theft has been the only theft in the Gallery's history. Kempton sent ransom notes saying that he would return the painting on condition that the government agreed to provide television for free to the elderly. What happened next became the stuff of legend. Only 50 years later did the full story emerge -- a startling revelation of how a good man set out to change the world and in so doing saved his son and his marriage.

Rotten Tomatoes critics rate this as 97% favorable, and the audience gives it an 85%. The Rotten Tomatoes critics' consensus is that "The Duke offers a well-acted and engaging dramatization of an entertainingly improbable true story."

This movie is rated R for language and brief nudity throughout. Common sense media notes that this movie has moderately high levels of sex/nudity, and that it features strong language, including some racist slurs. It has a runtime of 96 minutes.

Please see our nearby advertisement, or our website, for movie dates and times. We have reduced the seating buffering distances between groups to 1 seat in both directions in the row. We appreciate your cooperation.

The Liberty Theater's children's film series of 6 free movies continues for the third week with A Dog's Way Home, at 1 pm on Tuesday and Friday (July 12 and 15). We also have a small popcorn and a small drink (soda or water) combo available for only $2.00.

VIKKI'S SWEET SHOPPE BRIGHTENS UP DAYTON

THE TIMES

DAYTON—Vicki's Sweet Shoppe is the place to satisfy that sweet tooth with a selection of chocolates, hard candies, and candies from our childhood.

The shop is building a selection of over 100 sodas, including original recipe Dr. Pepper, Squirt, Route 66, Jones, and other sodas made with pure cane sugars. There is even a Bob Ross Positive Energy drink.

Owner Vikki Griffin has brought years of retail management experience and a natural cheerfulness to open this shop. Her daughter Rylee was on hand to help, happy to be surrounded by all the candy imaginable.

In September, Griffin and her husband Jason relocated the family to Dayton from the Tri-Cities, finding a home, a business, and buying the commercial building next to the shop. The plan is to remodel their building, add apartments upstairs, and eventually move the shop.

Myth #1: Betsy Ross created the first American flag

1. Although the person who stitched the first Stars and Stripes flag is unknown, the designer is. Scholars now credit Francis Hopkinson as the American flag's designer. (Source: Leepson, Marc. "Flag: An American Biography." St. Martin's Griffin. 2005. p. 33.)

#FlagFact: The designer of the American flag was Francis Hopkinson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence as a delegate from New Jersey.

COUNTY CANDIDATES CELEBRATE JULY 4TH

THE TIMES

DAYTON—Columbia County candidates participated in events to celebrate Independence Day with food, games, and fundraising for school supplies.

The two County Commissioner candidates took center stage at two events.

The Columbia County Conservatives sponsored an Ol' Fashioned Family Picnic at Dayton City Park. The well attended event included cake walks, games, food, and Commissioner Amerein volunteering for the fan favorite, dunk tank.

Columbia County Commissioner candidate Jack Miller and members from Neighbors United for Progress volunteered to help and attend the Best Western Plus Dayton's July 4th BBQ.

The Best Western held this event to raise money to buy school supplies for local families in the Dayton and Starbuck School districts. A constant flow of supporters came by for a hamburger or hotdog, raising over $1,600. Proceeds will go towards providing backpacks filled with items from each school's supply list.

OBITUARY

Harold Vance Price

May 11, 1934 – June 24, 2022

Harold Vance Price ("Vance") passed away peacefully on Friday, June 24, at Providence St. Mary Medical Center in Walla Walla, Washington, surrounded by family.

Vance was born to Harold W. Price and Verna Melvina (Hurst) Price of Waitsburg, Washington, on May 11, 1934.

Vance was raised on the family farm in Waitsburg, along with his sister, Donna, and his uncle, Lyman "Ike" Hurst, who made a great impact on his life. He graduated from Waitsburg High School in 1952 and attended Central Washington University in Ellensburg for two years. He then enlisted in the Army in April of 1954 and received a medical discharge in August of 1954. In July of 1955, he married Joann Carol Carson of Dayton, Washington. They had three children.

During this time, Vance and Joann moved to Seattle, Washington, where Vance was employed with Boeing, and their first daughter, Berneice, was born. The family returned to Waitsburg to live, where their son, Steven, and another daughter, Leslie, were born. In order for Vance to pursue an education as a photographer, the family moved to Santa Barbara, California, where Vance attended Brooks Institute of Photography.

His career in photography took the family to various locations around the country, including Missoula, Montana, Defiance, Ohio, and Beaverton, Oregon. His final job was with the "Oregonian" newspaper of Portland, Oregon as their photo lab manager. He instilled in his children a love for the outdoors with the various hiking, camping, and canoeing trips that the family took together. While living in Oregon, Vance and Joann divorced.

In 2001, Vance left Oregon and returned to the town of Waitsburg to live. While there, he met and married Judy (Smith) Price of Dayton. In December 2009, he and Judy were married and continued to live in Waitsburg.

He enjoyed working on his 1987 Ford van, which he had converted for camping and equipped with any and all types of gadgets. He was able to make many trips in his van, including driving to Alaska, to the East coast to see the fall colors, and a backroads trip in Oregon. He was an avid photographer, taking many wonderful photographs on each trip. He was an active member of the Walla Walla Photo club and loved to take and print scenic pictures. He won several awards for his photographs. He also ran for mayor of Waitsburg in 2005.

Vance was a member of the Dayton United Brethren Church and was active as his health permitted. He had a growing relationship with his Savior and a close relationship with his pastor, Greg Brownell.

As Vance and Judy aged, they were greatly helped by Judy's daughter, Catherine Ann Smith. She helped with cooking, errands, and "doctoring." Her assistance greatly benefited Vance's well-being.

Vance was preceded in death by his mother and father, and his sister Donna Luverne (Price) Keeney. Survivors include his wife Judy Price, his children: Berneice Joann (Price) Koelbl of Cut Bank, Montana; Steven Vance Price of Welches, Oregon, and Leslie (Price) Boettcher of Beaverton, Oregon along with numerous grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, and nephews.

A graveside service will be held at the Waitsburg Cemetery on Tuesday, July 12, at 11:00 a.m. This will be followed by a reception luncheon at the United Brethren Church of Dayton at about 12:00.

Donations can be made in Vance's name to the "Wounded Warrior Project." Friends and family may share memories and sign the online guestbook for Vance at www.mountainview-colonialdewitt.com

VENDOR SHOWCASE IS COMING TO WAITSBURG JULY 9

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG—The first Small Town Big Heart Showcase is headed to Waitsburg this weekend. More than 20 vendors will set up at the Gary Thomas Lot at the corner of Coppei and Preston Avenues on Saturday, July 9, starting at 9:00 a.m.

Sponsored by the Waitsburg Commercial Club, President Kim Smith said she hopes this will become an annual event. Smith said that while the vendor list is already extensive, more businesses may sign on before the weekend rolls around.

Vendors will offer products from home decor to hand-woven jewelry, with no two booths alike. Smith is not only organizing the showcase; she and her family will participate bringing their businesses to the showcase. Smith Craft offers handmade and retail products, including knives and crafts. Her father, Dean Smith, will bring his two businesses, Smith Horseshoeing and Skyrocket Outdoor Sports. Waitsburg businesses Dusty Britches and A-Ron's Rustic Designs will have booths offering fresh produce, jewelry, soaps, decor, towels, and custom-printed apparel. Mr. Billie Goat will be available for pets, of course!

The Girl Scouts of Waitsburg will be at the showcase selling handmade epoxy crafts, accessories, wreaths, and other handmade items, said Smith. The Commercial Club is excited to welcome Buckin' Tasty, owned by Val Watkins, who will have a selection of smoked cupcakes, brownies, cookies, and chocolate-covered strawberries as unique as Waitsburg.

Other vendors include Blessed to be Mamma of Walla Walla, Baraza Bangles from Yakima, and Kickin' It Crafts from Dixie.

The Gary Thomas lot is located at the corner of Preston and Coppei Avenues, in Waitsburg, across from the Freedom Post drive-through ATM. The showcase is just catacorner from Preston Park and Waitsburg's new splash pad if the sales get too hot to handle.

written into the district's 2022-2027 Strategic Plan. Supporting Early Childhood Education is also in the Strategic Plan.

"It is a creative way to get to workforce development," McGuire said.

If built, and as owners of the childcare facility, CCHS would lease the facility to whoever is chosen to operate it.

The facility is not just for use by CCHS employees. It will be for all the community to use, and enrollment will be on a first-come, first-serve basis. McGuire said there is enough need for childcare in Dayton to support other family-run or private daycares, too.

The first step will be to complete a detailed design with firm quotes for construction. The next step is to get an operator on board through advertising for Requests for Qualifications (RFQs). McGuire said the criteria for the RFQs will be spelled out. There will be an internal and external board to review and score candidates, and the process will be done openly and transparently.

The board voted unanimously to allow further evaluation of Hallway II at the Booker Rest Home for a childcare center.

Rivers Walk Assisted Living

Four cottages are currently under construction for the new assisted living facility adjacent to Dayton General Hospital, to the north.

Cottage A "Touchet" should be finished by the end of July.

"Touchet" along with Cottage B "Patit," C "Palouse," and D "Tucannon" should be finished in time for a Labor Day grand opening.

Principal Architect John McLean has no concerns about the construction schedule.

At their meeting last week, the board of commissioners approved a motion to allow the purchase of furniture from Direct Supply for the cottages in the amount of $275,412.65.

Acute hallway project

The Acute Care Hallway project has been tabled, for now, due to the high cost of construction. McGuire told the commissioners the funding agencies are not asking to be reimbursed for the money they have provided for the project and have extended the timeline for construction into 2023.

When completed, the project will create two additional negative air rooms for isolating and treating patients with infectious diseases. The hospital already has two negative air rooms.

Palouse Outdoors: Pedaling for Petals

By Brad Trumbo | THE TIMES

It had been some time since I made the drive up to the Godman Guard Station. As familiar geography passed by, I realized I had never made the drive outside of hunting season. A steep and jagged ridge, narrow as a razor's edge, reminded me of a time one archery season when I contemplated trying to find mule deer in the bowls of the canyon below. Considering the pack out cured me of that notion. Passing Stockade Spring and Midway Campground reminded me of my last hunts for snowshoe hare and grouse with a friend who passed away last fall. While the drive stirred welcomed reminiscence, intermittent color pops from meadows blanketed with blooming wildflowers kept my mission fresh in my mind.

Summer wildflowers in the Blues are a true spectacle to behold, ranging from white to deep purple and every shade, shape, and size. From the crimson of Indian paintbrush to canary-yellow balsamroots and violet hues of the of penstemons and Bonneville shooting stars, a rich palette presented itself along the drive. But window-shopping from the driver's seat was only the beginning. My mountain bike was freshly tuned and sporting new treads and begging for a loop on the mountaintop.

Departing from the Godman Campground, I biked down to the Guard Station and started out the Goose Corral Trail with the intent of dropping off onto Meadow Creek Trail and eventually circling back. However, what should have been a relatively quick loop melted into something like Gilligan's three-hour tour of the mountain as the entire ride was cloaked in blooms that changed species and colors with elevation and moisture level.

While the pleasing burn of thigh muscle pumping it out along the trail provided constant proof of my present lack of physical fitness, the allure of each different flower shape and color led to many dismounts and photo opportunities – enough to allow for a longer ride on relatively fresh legs.

On the mountaintop, a pale blush came from the lanceleaf springbeauty; a low-growing, delicate five-petaled flower with deep pink vanes and pink-tipped stamens. A carpet of yellow fawn lily and Gray's biscuitroot completely covered a meadow in a golden glow. The trail edges were speckled with lavender-toned Douglas' brodiaea and boasted what appeared to be a deep, rich blue showy penstemon, both with an intriguing pitcher-like flower structure.

Dropping onto Meadow Creek Trail, I wound through a short section of evergreens, relearning how to negotiate large loose rock and water-breaks as I bombed downhill. The trail made an abrupt left at the bottom and quickly traversed wetland seeps that were flowing more like trout streams from recent rains.

Chartreuse moss grew over rocks beneath a labyrinth of thick service-berry stems. Sagebrush buttercup occurred in brilliant yellow mounds. And the oddly-shaped ballhead waterleaf with its prickly-looking purple flower hidden beneath its complex leaves was an interesting discovery.

A yellow-fawn lily stands like a lamp shining down on its leafy feet.

Indian paintbrush steals the show among sulfur lupine

Rounding a bend in the trail, a series of puddles made for sticky going and mud-slinging, and the mud held secrets of the mountain's inhabitants. Deer tracks were expected, but in the middle of a long puddle was a perfectly-formed singular cat track suggesting a bobcat had slipped through the area.

As the trail loop had brought me nearly full-circle, a series of snow drifts lingered in the shaded north aspect. Walking on them suggested they were sturdy, and, of course, there was no question I would follow up on the bike. Unfortunately, skinny tires, a heavy rider, and a melty surface layer led to an abrupt halt as I mounted the first drift. Interestingly, the bike had no trouble sliding backward off of the drift and nearly dumping me into the runoff stream that the drifts were feeding. As I walked the bike over the drifts, I noticed another small white flower and had to stop for further inspection. I have yet to identify it, among many others from this wildflower ride.

Climbing the hill back up to Godman Campground, I noticed another wetland seep completely covered in yet a new pink flower, the "grass widow". This unique beauty grows a single bloom hung on the side of the long, slender grass-like blade that supports it. A final showing of Mother Nature's artistry at the end of the tour.

With summer finally upon us, it's the perfect time to head for higher ground to bask in the splendor of the Blue Mountains. Camping, biking, hiking, and bird-watching options are plentiful, the weather is prime, and the wildflowers are nearing their peak bloom. But the show won't last forever. Don't miss it!

SMILES AND LAUGHTER

The sounds of laughter, singing, and children at play will bring a smile to your face. Children involved in indoor and outdoor activities create wonderful memories of their youth.

Recently, members who attended the June school board meeting were treated to songs by the middle and high school choir. All those present had smiles on their faces. The choir had recently entertained participants at a mature exerciser's class at Town Hall. There, Anita Baker played the school fight song on the piano, and the girls were all smiles as they learned the words from Sherri Erikson.

Before school let out for summer break, the FFA group held a field day. Students played some basketball, played some cornhole, and finished with a game of slip-n-slide kickball which brought a lot of laughs and smiles to the faces of the competitors and the spectators.

Vacation Bible School was a hit with about 50 participants. The children appreciated discovery and Bible stories, created crafts, sang songs, and smiled and laughed during the recreation session.

Over at Preston Park, the new splash pad is a hit with many kids as the weather has warmed up. Children's laughter as they play with friends and shrieks when the cold-water splashes them can be heard from blocks away.

Make someone smile today. Sing, play, and laugh like a kid or a kid at heart!

Abbi, Marion, Natalie, Natalie, Olivia, and Ellie sing as Anita plays the school fight song.

The City of Dayton and its leaders are getting frustrated. The city has just six years to solve a wastewater problem that seems unsolvable. Dayton's wastewater treatment plant, located at the west end of commercial Drive, was built in 1938 and has had several tune-ups since that time. Mayor Craig George said many people have a big misconception about the current treatment plant thinking it is a brand-new facility. "New things were added in 2000," George said. "But it was basically just a facelift. Repairs are expensive and don't always update the plant."

Bulgur & White Bean Stuffed Grape Leaves

Inspired by the world class wine-makers of our region, and the phenomenal growing conditions in our backyard, last year we planted three rows of little Cabernet Sauvignon starts next to the plum trees. From little twigs they have doubled in size this year, adapting beautifully to their protected sunny spot. While it will be a few years before we harvest enough fruit to make wine, the beautiful tender leaves had me researching a Mediterranean culinary favorite, stuffed grape leaves, also called dolmas or sarmas. This vegetarian version, with a filling of bulgur and white beans, makes a satisfying and unique appetizer.

Ingredients:

- 1 15-ounce can white beans, drained and coarsely chopped
- 1 ½ cups bulgur
- ½ cup fresh mint, minced
- ½ teaspoon crushed chili flakes
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- Salt and black pepper
- 2 tablespoons tomato paste, divided
- 30 to 50 fresh grape leaves, or jarred (see notes)
- 1 large onion, thinly sliced
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 lemons, plus more for serving

Directions:

If using fresh grape leaves, bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Rinse the leaves and trim off the stems. Working in batches, drop the leaves in the boiling water and blanch for 30 to 45 seconds. Leaves will turn a golden-olive color. Drain the leaves in a colander, then lay flat on a clean kitchen towel to dry.

In a mixing bowl combine the beans, bulgur, mint, chili flake, and cumin. Season to taste with salt and black pepper. Dissolve one tablespoon of the tomato paste in 1 cup of warm water, then pour and mix into the bulgur mixture. Taste and adjust seasoning.

Prepare a large, heavy bottomed cooking pot by lightly oiling the bottom. Slice one of the lemons into thin rounds and arrange the lemon slices in a single flat layer. Next top the lemon slices with any leaves that are too big, too small, or torn making an even layer of grape leaves.

Assemble the stuffed grape leaves. On a clean work surface lay one leaf shiny side down, with the stem end towards you. Depending on the size of leaf, place 1 to 2 teaspoons of the filling at the bottom-center of the leaf in a little rectangle shape. You do not want to overstuff the grape leaves and remember that the bulgur will expand when cooked. First fold the bottom end up over the filling, then fold the sides over like an envelope. Starting at filling, roll leaf away from you, tucking loose edges in, forming a tight little cigar shape. You want them to be tight enough to keep their shape but allowing a little room for the filling to cook. As you assemble, arrange the rolled leaves in prepared pot, seam side down, and packed tightly. You will have 2 to 3 layers of the stuffed grape leaves.

Next, in a large skillet, heat the 3 tablespoons of olive oil over medium heat. Sauté the onions with a pinch of salt until translucent. Add the remaining tablespoon of tomato paste and cook for a few minutes until fragrant. Pour in 1 ½ cups warm water, stir to combine and bring to a boil. Pour the cooking liquid over the pot of rolls to just cover, adding more water if needed to reach the top. Place one or two heavy plates over the top to keep everything in place. Cover with a lid and set over medium heat, cooking for 40 to 45 minutes, until the water is absorbed, and the filling is cooked through. Adjust heat if the water is cooking off too quickly and add more water if needed. When done, remove from the heat and allow to rest for 10 minutes. Remove rolls and arrange on serving platter, squeeze the juice of second lemon over the top then drizzle with olive oil. Serve warm.

Notes:

If you don't have access to fresh grape leaves you can find jars of grape leaves in large grocery or specialty stores, usually in the Mediterranean section. If using jarred, drain the leaves from the brine, then rinse off the excess salt in cold water. Drain and dry in a colander.

Bulgur is a cracked parboiled whole grain wheat often available in bulk food sections of grocery stores. If you cannot find bulgur you can substitute short grain white rice. Presoak the rice in cold water for 15 minutes, drain thoroughly, then continue with the steps to make filling.

Serve these as part of a Mediterranean mezze spread, with grilled meats, salads, olives, and dips. Lovely with a yogurt dipping sauce, or simply with fresh lemon wedges on the side. Enjoy!
