Dayton Graduates Receive Well-Earned Diplomas

SALUTORIAN MORGAN RILEY AND VALEDICTORIAN EMMA SIERRA GIVE INSPIRING MESSAGES

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON--Family and friends crowded the Dayton High School gymnasium on Saturday to hear the Class of 2018 Salutatorian Morgan Riley and Class Valedictorian Emma Sierra deliver their speeches and grant well wishes to the graduating seniors.

Salutatorian Riley thanked the parents, community members and teachers of DHS for supporting the Class of 2018. Riley said that if her feelings are any indication, graduating and going out into the world is probably the most terrifying thing for all the new graduates.

She shared the wise words of C.S. Lewis: "There are far, far better things ahead than any we leave behind." Then she added, "So, as we begin this new chapter our lives, let us not be afraid, or sad."

Emma Sierra

Emma Sierra's speech brought smiles to the faces of her classmates and her audience, when she talked about the many years the class of 2018 spent together: from the time when they were in elementary school, chasing each other around the "big toy," to graduation from high school, and becoming the "sophisticated, responsible, mature seniors" they are now.

"Along the way, each of us did something right, because each and every one of us is sitting here today," she said.

"To the Class of 2018, wherever we are in 10, 20, or 30 years, I hope each and every one of us finds happiness," she added. "Always remember to be kind to one another. But for today, let's enjoy this moment."

At the end of the graduation ceremony, 24 jubilant seniors were ushered out into the world, diplomas in hand.

Rev Your Engines for All Wheels Weekend

24TH ANNUAL EVENT FEATURES CLASSIC CARS AND CARLOADS OF OTHER ENTERTAINMENT

By Ken Graham | THE TIMES

DAYTON – Anybody wandering into downtown Dayton Friday evening will be excused if they think they've entered a small-town time warp and jumped backward 50 years. Classic cars cruising Main Street and '50s and '60s music in the air will engulf visitors to downtown, as Dayton's All Wheels Weekend revs up.

Friday afternoon, cars will begin rolling into town for the weekend-long event. Registration starts at 4 p.m. in front of Bette Lou Crothers' State Farm office at First and Main.

This is Crothers' 24th year leading the committee that puts on Dayton's car show. When planning that first show in 1995, she thought there was a real good chance it would be a big flop. But it was a great success, and All Wheels Weekend has now become Dayton's biggest annual event.

Cruise Control, a band from Tri-Cities, will perform from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Friday evening on the Columbia County Courthouse lawn, sponsored by Pacific Power.

HomeStreet Bank's parking lot will again be home to the opening ceremony at 7:30 p.m., and the presentation of cars for the next couple of hours.

Downtown shops and restaurants will be open late Friday. Food court vendors on North Second St. will offer meals and lots of goodies Friday and Saturday. Lots of other non-food vendors will be offering their wares on South Second St. both days.

Marilyn Monroe (or someone who looks an awful lot like her) will be on hand Friday night and Saturday, sponsored by Puget Sound Energy. Also on hand both days will be Big Top, the Clown, a professional clown from Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Raffle Tickets will be on sale for $10 at the registration desk for this year's raffle truck, a 1983 Ford Ranger. This year's truck raffle is sponsored by The Times and Bill and Michelle Konz. The winning ticket will be drawn during Saturday's trophy presentation.

Registered cars will begin lining up at sunup on Main Street for Saturday's Show and Shine. As many as 300 or more vehicles are expected to line the closed-off street, while hundreds of visitors will wander the downtown, admiring the classic cars of all ages, including some more than a century old. The Show and Shine officially begins at 9 a.m., and wraps up at 4 p.m.

Jesse Smit, Dan McKinley are Waitsburg Lions Award Winners

SMIT IS LION OF THE YEAR, MCKINLEY RECEIVES MELVIN JONES AWARD, AT ANNUAL DINNER

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – On June 5, the Waitsburg Lions Club wrapped up their season with a Lady's Night dinner, award ceremony and induction of new officers.

Following a thank-you dinner for the ladies for their behind-the-scenes help and support, Jesse Smit was named 2017 Lion of the Year, and Dan McKinley received the club's Melvin Jones Award.

Outgoing President Randy Farley announced Smit's award. Smit has been a Waitsburg club member for only three years, but has shown great commitment. He is an active participant in fundraisers and activities and serves as the club secretary, even when having to drive from the Tri-Cities to attend meetings.

The Melvin Jones award was presented to longtime Lions member, Dan McKinley, who emotionally accepted the award from former recipient Guy McCaw.

"Dan has been chairman of the salmon feed for a good many years. The preparation and organization required in leading up to that event is a pretty big load, not to mention the event itself," McCaw told The Times.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Ten Years Ago-June 19, 2008

Students of the Month of May include Ben Brown, (5th grade), Tristan Newman (4th Grade) Devon Watts (4th Grade) Austin Hamann (5th grade). Teachers in grades 4 and 5 select students based on citizenship, respectful behavior, effort and attendance.

When students and staff of Prescott High School arrived for classes on June 6, they discovered that the gremlins had been working overtime. A small car was moved carefully into the hallway and surrounded by straw bales. Seniors then went on a scavenger mission, lifting this and that from each teacher's desk, and locking them inside with balloons and a human skeleton at the wheel. A note advised where missing items might be found.

Twenty Five Years Ago-June 10, 1993

The State Department of Transportation this week was expected to examine the intersection of highways 12 and 124 in Waitsburg for safety problems following a near traffic collision in which a retired doctor and his wife say they could have been killed. One problem the traffic engineer will find is that the yellow line that guides traffic through the 90 degree turn from north bound Coppei Avenue (Highway 12) to eastbound Preston Avenue has worn off and isn't visible.

Two young Waitsburg skiers really shined in the ski competition this past season. The skiers, Ryan Leid, 12 and 9 year old Zach Uselman are members of the Bluewood Blazers Race Club. Leid and Uselman competed in slalom, giant slalom, and down hill races at ski areas in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, from January to May.

The Dayton Inn has closed for the second time in about a year. And for the second time the operator said the Inn and restaurant was closing because the "business community" did not support the operation. The Inn has nine rooms, an apartment, a bar, and restaurant for 50 and a banquet room. The Inn is a Dayton landmark and traces its roots to the late 1800's. The two story brick building was constructed in 1887 by Otto Danziger on the site of "Jays old hall", and the J. C. Dott Drugstore opened in the building. Danziger also established a tailor shop there. The heyday for the restaurant operation was while owned by the Dewey Martin family who ran a restaurant there called Dorsey's for 35 years.

Seventy Five Years Ago-June 18, 1943

The old Mechants Bank Building on Main Street which has stood for nearly 50 years is being torn down this summer after being condemned by the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dunn have purchased the Hermann Taylor house on Academy St. across from the grade school. They moved in this week.

Edna Groom and Maynard Pearson of Walla Walla were married Tuesday in the Dayton Methodist Church. They will leave for Cambridge, Mass to make their home for two years.

Places are being completed for the dedication of the new Prescott Presbyterian Church on Sunday, June 20th.

One Hundred Years Ago-June 21, 1918

Smith Philips, the 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Philips was seriously injured last Thursday when he was struck on the head with a big hay fork. The accident occurred at the Blue place east of town which MR. Philips and family recently leased.

C. B. Jams of the Star Barber Shop has just installed an electric hair clipper in his shop. Charlie says he now prepared to electrocute your hair in short order.

C. F. Austin of Dayton left for the Neace place near Alto Monday to assist with the installation of a gravity water system. Water will be piped from a spring 1250 feet to the house.

Miss Mildred Tabor who recently graduated as a nurse at the Seattle General Hospital is visiting her sister Mrs. C. R. James and family

One Hundred Twenty Five Years Ago June 23, 1893

H. J. Woodworth is putting in a dam across the Touchet in the east part of the city and in addition to obtaining power for running a water wheel, will have an ice pond from which he can supply the demand.

J. E. Maxwell is in the mines in the northern part of the state. Mrs. Maxwell and Flo are on the Sound.

A move is on foot for a union Sunday School picnic, which will be held in some grove hard by, in the near future.

On July 27, Walla Walla will vote on a proposition to bond the city in the sum of $100,000 for the purpose of putting in a gravity system of the water works.

Ben Flathers was in the city from Prescott on Monday.

NEWS BRIEFS

WATER AEROBICS IN PRESCOTT

DAYTON – The Dayton Water Aerobics class will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday each week, beginning, June 18, from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. at the Prescott Pool.

Participants do not need to be able to swim to enjoy the class. The water exercises are geared to all levels of ability. Most take place in the shallow end of the pool.

Towel, sun hat, water shoes, sunscreen and two clean empty bleach or juice bottles, should be brought, along with swim attire.

Free transportation is available through Columbia County Public Transportation through Aug. 28. Call 382-1647 to schedule.

For more information about the water aerobics class, contact Carol Anderson at (509) 382-4335.

SMALL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT CONSULTATION IN DAYTON

DAYTON – Entrepreneurs at any stage of running their small business are invited to attend a free session with Joe Jacobs, of the Walla Walla Small Business Development Center. The session will be held June 20, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Port of Columbia office, at 1 Port Way, in Dayton.

Jacobs specializes in advising business start-up, funding, digital marketing, and business succession and exit planning. He also provides insight into marketing, numbers and operational success.

To schedule time with Jacobs, contact Kathryn Witherington, Economic Development Coordinator for the Port, at (509) 382-2577, or by email at kathryn@portofcolumbia.org.

COMMUNITY HEALTH CONVERSATIONS IN JUNE

DAYTON – Community Health Conversations is sponsoring a forum on community health at the Columbia County Fairgrounds Youth Building on June 25 at 5 p.m. The forum is being presented in partnership with the Blue Mountain Community Foundation, the Walla Walla Community Council, Sherwood Trust, United Way of Walla Walla and the Walla Walla County Department of Community Health.

Mary Campbell, Executive Director of the Walla Walla Community Council, said data relating to the priorities identified by the community regarding education, the economy, health and well-being, safety and nature will be shared at the workshop.

“We’ll talk about what surprises us most, what matters most, and what changes we’d like to see,” she said.

Families are welcome. Food will be provided, and Spanish interpretation is available.

Additional workshops are planned for June 18 at the Walla Walla Fairgrounds Community Building, June 19 at the Milton-Freewater Community Building, and June 20 at the SonBridge Community Center in College Place.

KIDS’ SUMMER FILM SERIES AT THE LIBERTY

DAYTON – If you’re looking for fun activities to keep kids entertained this summer, Dayton’s Liberty Theater is stepping in to help. Its Summer Film Series, featuring six PG classics, shown over a six-week period, starts next week.

“Smurfs 2,” the first film in the series, will play at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, June 19 and 1 p.m. on Friday, June 22. Show times will be the same for the subsequent five weeks.

Admission is one dollar per film. The full line up of films can be found on the Liberty Theater website, www.libertytheater.org.

FREE KIDS’ THEATER CAMP

DAYTON – “Playing with Shakespeare,” a free kids’ theater camp led by Patti Jo Amerein, is being offered at the Liberty Theater June 16-20. Amerein will be joined by a classically-trained actor and drama teacher for the camp. Students aged 12 and above can register online at libertytheater.org.

WALLA WALLA CO. TO HOLD COMP PLAN OPEN HOUSES

WALLA WALLA – The Walla Walla County Community Development Department will hold two public open house events next week. The purpose of these open houses is to provide information to county residents about the upcoming county comprehensive plan and development regulations periodic update.

June 19, 2018:
Walla Walla Regional Airport
Conference Room, 45 Terminal Loop
Walla Walla, WA

June 20, 2018:
Columbia Middle School
755 Maple St.
Burbank, WA

Both meetings will begin at 5:30 p.m., and wrap up around 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the meetings is to share with the residents of our County the draft documents completed to date, including UGA amendment applications, and the process for completion, and adoption. County staff and the consultant team will lead the discussion and will be available to talk individually with attendees. Residents will be able to share their comments. A summary of all the comments received at the open houses will be posted on the County’s website.

For more information, contact the WWCCDD at (509) 524-2610.

CORRECTION

In our article about the Columbia County Treasurer’s race in last week’s Times we said that Carla Rowe is a member of the Columbia County Fair Board. That is incorrect. She is a member of the Fair Float Committee, not the Fair Board.

Long-Term Benefits Outweigh Short-Term Sacrifice

By Jennie Dickinson and Kathryn Witherington, Port of Columbia

One of the significant advantages of having new industries invest in a community is the potential of an increased tax base. In Columbia County, we have already seen the effects of this from one important industry – renewable energy. Before the wind industry invested in Columbia County, our tax base was just over $286 million. Ten years later, our tax base has risen to $868 million. This is an increase of 227%. For comparison, Walla Walla County experienced an 86% tax base increase in the same time frame. A larger tax base means more revenue for local governments like cities, counties, library districts, fire districts, ports, and so on. It also means that the tax rate paid by each individual citizen goes down - large industry pays a bigger share of the total taxes collected. The tax base numbers make it clear: when new businesses come to Columbia County, Columbia County benefits.

It is understandable, then, that there was fear and confusion in Columbia County when word first came out that Columbia County commissioners were caught by surprise with tax breaks for Columbia Pulp, the newest industry to locate here. Under the High Unemployment County Sales/Use Tax Deferral Program, Columbia Pulp can receive a tax deferral of around $500,000 for their investment in Columbia County. The program worked exactly as intended, encouraging this new industry to invest in a distressed rural area.

The High Unemployment County Sales/Use Tax Deferral Program is a Washington State tax incentive program that has been in place for decades. In 2014, when Columbia Pulp applied for the tax deferral, Columbia County commissioners and planning officials were made aware of the application. The application was approved, and the long-term benefits are already proving to outweigh the short-term sacrifice.

In 2014, Columbia County was considered a distressed county. We had an unemployment rate that was at least twenty percent above the state average between 2011-2014. We were still recovering from the recession, and very much appreciate the state incentives that help get new industries to invest in Columbia County.

This is one of the many factors that led to Columbia Pulp choosing Columbia County for their plant. It is a short-term break that lets them defer taxes paid on purchases of qualified buildings, machinery, and equipment. Ultimately, if Columbia Pulp remains operational and meets state reporting requirements, the owed taxes may be forgiven.

While Columbia County is in a stronger economic position now than we were in 2014, with a historically low unemployment rate and a higher tax base, it is still important to bring new jobs and new investments to this area. Companies like Columbia Pulp are a huge boon to our community. The value of the jobs that they will create, the investment in the local community, the payroll generated, and the trickle-down effect of their employees spending money locally far exceeds the $500,000 they will save by taking advantage of tax incentive programs.

In just the short time Columbia Pulp has been operational in Columbia County, they have invested millions in our county in the purchase of land, goods, and services. They have purchased a building on our main street, helping to keep our downtown vital. They have already created 25 full-time living-wage jobs, and two support companies have already hired another 18 people. This is before they have even hired the 100 people expected to work at their plant! These employees will live in our communities, shop in our stores, and eat in our restaurants. And, while it should go without saying, we can say with confidence that Columbia Pulp WILL be paying significant property taxes – money that will benefit our local community.

This is why tax incentive programs exist for rural areas: they bring us new industries, new investors, and new opportunities. They make new industries look at an area like Columbia County, recognize the value of locating in communities like ours, and create family wage jobs for our citizens. They ultimately insure that we will have a larger tax base and even more amenities, which will make us appealing to the next big industry that needs a site to locate. That is more than worth $500,000 in sales/use tax revenue.

Washington's Expensive Culvert Court Case

By Don C. Brunell

Editor's Note: The U.S. Supreme Court announced Monday, after this column was written, that it had deadlocked 4-4 (with Justice Kennedy abstaining) on the Washington culvert case, and therefore the lower court ruling will stand.

While much of the media buzz over declining salmon runs focuses on dam removal and predation by sea lions and cormorants, the U.S. Supreme Court is asked to decide whether Washington State needs to spend an additional $2.4 billion to replace more road culverts.

In 2001, Western Washington Tribes sued claiming the state needed to remove culverts which block salmon migrating to spawning channels. The Ninth Circuit agreed with the Tribes and oral arguments were heard at the Supreme Court in April.

The state argues much of the culvert replacement is completed. In 2013, the state legislature added $300 million to the transportation budget to remove fish barriers. Washington's State Department of Transportation (WSDOT) worked with the state's Dept. of Fish and Wildlife to identify and repair problem culverts on over 7,000 miles of state highways.

Washington State Solicitor General Noah Purcell argued that the lower court rulings ignore the fact that the salmon harvests affected by the culverts have declined less than five percent. "We have to replace culverts when no salmon can reach them," he said. "And that is an utter waste of public funds."

Agriculture groups, such as the Washington Farm Bureau, support the state's contention and believe, if the nation's high court allows the decision to stand, "it will bolster lawsuits to remove dams, restrict irrigation and challenge anything else potentially harmful to fish," the Capital Press website reported in April.

As part of the Forests and Fish Law, forest landowners in Washington — both private landowners and public forestland managers — have removed 7,300 fish passage barriers since 2001 across 9.3 million acres, Mark Doumit, executive director of the Washington Forest Protection Association, wrote recently in the Everett Herald.

These landowners have spent $313 million opening up 5,100 miles of fish habitat. Private and public forest landowners have completed 84 percent of their goals and are on track to clear all the fish passage barriers in forested streams by 2021.

Washington's Attorney General Bob Ferguson appealed the 9th Circuit Court Order to upgrade more than 800 culverts by 2030. Former AG Rob McKenna submitted a brief on behalf of the Washington State Association of Counties and the Association of Washington of Cities. McKenna's brief warns that letting the court order stand could force local governments spend money they don't have.

Doumit, a former state legislator from Cathlamet, believes that collaboration is better than confrontation. "We sat at the table on an agreement that is paying dividends for the environment and keeping all the parties out of court."

Washington forest landowners have fixed the thousands of culverts as part of the Forests & Fish Law, a historic agreement between federal, state, tribal and county governments and private forest landowners. All of the parties agreed on a set of forest practices that protect 60,000 miles of streams running through 9.3 million acres of state and private forestland.

There are many reasons for the decline in salmon runs, but improving water quality and fixing the tens of thousands of fish-blocking culverts in Washington are already part of the solution.

"While we have made a lot of progress in fixing fish passage barriers, we need to address all the major habitat factors affecting salmon. We have a shared responsibility to address the health of our salmon and waterways, and collaboration is the best way to ensure our success," Doumit concluded. "Salmon are an integral part of Washington's culture, spirit and identity. It is our collective responsibility to protect them."

Unfortunately, today far too much money is spent in court where it should go to increasing the salmon population.

McCaw said that McKinley also heads up the “wood detail” each year, which involves gathering five to 10 cords of wood to be used in the smokers during the rib and salmon feed fundraisers. He also let slip that McKinley still takes good-natured ribbing for once felling a tree over John Kenney’s pickup “many, many years ago.”

“The Melvin Jones isn’t just about Lions service. It’s as much about what you do in the community. Dan has always been active in the community, and was president of the Days of Real Sport board and served on that board for many years,” McCaw said.

The Melvin Jones Award, named after the Lions Club International founder, is the highest award in Lionism. In order to give the award, a club must donate $1,000 to Lions Club International.

Donated funds are then used to help communities in need. In 1996, Waitsburg received approximately $42,000 from Lions Club International to repair the City Pool after it was badly damaged in that year’s flood.

“For many years we didn’t give the award because we spent all of our money in the community. But after we were on the receiving end, we decided this was something we wanted to do,” McCaw said.

Melvin Jones recipients are selected each year, by past recipients of the award. Former recipients are: Wayne Peterson (2003), Bill Thompson (2005), Glynn Davis (2006), Bob Patton (2007), John Payne (2008), Tom Baker (2013), Terry Jacoy (2014), Guy McCaw and J.E. McCaw (2015), Ken Miller (2016), Dan Cole (2017) and Dan McKinley (2018).

New members Kenny Dimmick and Dale Roberts were inducted into the club by sponsors Ken Cole, Jr. and Jack Roberts.

Past President Randy Farley led the installation of new officers: President Ross Hamann, First Vice President John Alleman, Second Vice President Mark Pickel, Treasurer Kevin House, Secretary Jesse Smit and board members Marvin Arland, Ted Bren, Howard Smith Jr. and Ken Cole Jr.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION WILL HEAR FOLEY TERMINATION CASE IN AUGUST

THE TIMES

DAYTON—Former Columbia County Sheriff’s Deputy Don Foley appeared before the Columbia County Civil Service Commission on Monday to discuss his termination by Sheriff Rocky Miller last month.

At the meeting, Foley requested a continuance in the matter to allow his attorney, David Rose, adequate time to prepare for a hearing. The Commission agreed, and a date for the hearing will be set between August 6 and August 23.

Foley was terminated “for cause” by Miller on May 15, 2018, according to County Prosecuting Attorney Rea Culwell. That same week Foley filed to appear on the August primary election ballot to run for county sheriff in the November 2018 election.

Culwell said an investigation by the Sheriff’s office found that Foley had falsified time sheet entries “numerous times” during the months of January and February, 2018.

Foley described his termination from the Sheriff’s Department as “wrongful” in an interview with the Times on May 31. During that interview, Foley said he had been off work since January 2017 because of injuries he sustained while on the job.

Attorney Suzanne Michael will represent the Sheriff’s Department in the proceedings, said County Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Dale Slack.

Waitsburg Livestock Show and Fair is Longstanding Tradition

APPLIED ARTS BUILDING RECEIVED THE STATE FAIR COMMISSION SPECIAL AWARD

By Dena Martin | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG – Rainy weather didn't put a damper on Waitsburg's 64th-Annual Waitsburg Livestock Show and Fair on June 9. A longstanding Waitsburg tradition, the event was well-attended by competitors and spectators alike.

It was once known as the Waitsburg Livestock Show, and open only to 4-H and FFA members. However, the name was changed a few years ago to be more inclusive, and now welcomes open class entries.

Walla Walla County youth and adults of all ages compete in a variety of animal categories, including beef, swine, sheep, goats, poultry, rabbits and horses. Competitors practice poise and appearance by demonstrating skills in market, breeding and/or showmanship classes.

There were 125 entries in the applied arts building showcasing educational displays, arts and crafts, clothing, horticulture and more.

The event is put on by the Waitsburg Livestock Show and Fair Board, consisting of Sandra Farley (President), Tracy Barron, Kevin House, Jake Long, Justin Gagnon, Becky Harshman and Nicole Abel. While not official board members, spouses can often be seen lending helping hands.

"We meet two to three times a year. We've done it long enough, and those who went before us have done it long enough, that most of the kinks have been worked out," said Barron.

Barron said that about 10 4-H groups, from Waitsburg, Dayton, Huntsville and Walla Walla were represented at this year's event.

"Funding comes from sponsors, and we do apply for state funding based on our show size each year," Farley said. "The state fair judge evaluated us this year and awarded the applied art building the State Fair Commission Special Award.

The Waitsburg Lions Club also supports the fair financially, and Lions members staff the cook shack to keep fairgoers well fed with breakfast and lunch.

Columbia County Struggles to Make Up Revenue Shortfalls

COLUMBIA PULP TAX DEFERRAL IS ONE OF SEVERAL STATE DECISIONS THAT LIMIT LOCAL TAX COLLECTION

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON— Columbia County Commissioner Merle Jackson has said it before, and he said it again last week, "How do we ever dig ourselves out of the hole if everybody keeps giving away our money?"

The county has only two principle sources of tax revenue – property taxes and sales taxes – and the county commissioners have been seeking adequate revenue to cover the cost of essential services and pay for special projects.

The commissioners had been anticipating a one-time bump in sales and use tax from construction of Columbia Pulp's new straw pulp mill near Starbuck. But last week the commissioners were dismayed to hear County Assessor Chris Mills say that the state granted Columbia Pulp a total sales and use tax deferral on construction and equipment back in September 2014.

Mills said those tax payments to the county won't kick in until the third year after Columbia Pulp receives a certificate of completion from the county's planning and building department.

According to the state Department of Revenue payment schedule, the first payment of 10% will be due on December 31 of the third year. Subsequent payments are for 15%, 20%, 25% and 30% in the following four years.

So it will be eight years after completion of construction before the county receives the last payment of the sales and use tax. And that is if nothing happens in the intervening years that would cause the state to issue a waiver, she said.

Mills presented an estimate of $527,000 owed, based on the building permits issued to Columbia Pulp, totaling a little over $30 million. "Full construction cost is going to be a lot more than $30 million," she added.

Mills said that if it is applied for and listed next year, the manufacturers' sales and use tax for machinery and equipment will go into the county's value pot as well.

In the shorter term, the county will begin to see property tax payments from Columbia Pulp, in 2019. Mills said she should know more after the state Department of Revenue's property appraisal, which will be in time for the county's 2019 budget preparations.

Property taxes are the chief source of revenue for county government. They also fund fire districts, the library district, the hospital district, the port and other junior taxing districts.

But the county loses out on property taxes when privately owned land becomes publicly owned. The state's program of "payments in lieu of taxes," is the mechanism the state has in place to compensate counties for this loss.

This compensation is important when entities such as the Department of Fish and Wildlife buy land from private land owners. The problem with PILT is that in 2011, state legislators elected to roll back payments to the counties to 2009 rates, and counties in the state are not getting full payments. "Some counties are desperate," said Commissioner Mike Talbott.

In May the commissioners elected to join in a class action lawsuit with several other counties, to persuade state lawmakers to follow through on their commitment to make PILT, in full.

PILT also applies to timber revenues on federally owned land in the county. "Some counties are mostly timber. This will have a huge effect on them," Talbott explained.

Mills said the county has been getting around $8,000 in PILT, each year, but did receive a higher amount in 2018.

Commissioner Talbott said additional growth in the county's revenue is expected in 2019, when taxes are paid by PacificCorp for its wind turbine repowering project, which is expected to be completed in early 2019. Talbott said the county should receive around $1 million.

Finally, the Washington State Association of Counties plans to address the shortfall in revenue because of the one-percent cap placed on property tax levies, which was voted into law in 2001.

Because property tax levies can only be increased by one percent each year, revenue collections trail behind the cost of essential services, according to a WSAC policy report.

"It should at least keep up with inflation," said Talbott.

ALL WHEELS - FROM PAGE 1

A tribute to the flag presentation will be held at 9:30 a.m., led by Dayton's American Legion Color Guard. Waitsburg's Markeeta Littlewolf will sing the National Anthem.

Shops and restaurants will be open all day, and many will take part in the annual Poker Walk. Registered car owners, and anyone purchasing a $5 hand, can visit these merchants to collect cards in hopes of assembling a winning poker hand and winning prizes. There will also be a $1 dice roll at PDQ.

There will be loads of FREE kids' activities throughout downtown on Saturday. Kids can get their faces painted or paint a special All Wheels T-shirt at Elk Drug, and play putt-putt golf at Banner Bank. The 4-H Robotics Club will also give demonstrations at Banner Bank.

The Dayton High School junior class will sponsor a car smash at PDQ for kids of all ages on Saturday.

On South First St., the Outlaw Lawn Dragster Races, sponsored by Skyline Parts of Dayton, will create noise and excitement for kids of all ages. Racing heats will be held at 10 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 2:45 p.m.

Visitors won't want to miss the infamous Men's Drag Races, sponsored by Northwest Business Services, starting in front of the Liberty Theater at 2 p.m. Grown men in dresses racing tricycles, is a sight that won't soon be forgotten.

At the conclusion of the Show and Shine, the Trophy Presentation will be held at the Dayton Historic Depot, at N. Second and Commercial.

Action moves to the Columbia County Fairgrounds in the late afternoon. The fairgrounds Beer Garden opens at 3 p.m., and preliminaries of the All Wheels Weekend Demo Derby get underway at 4 p.m.

This year's Demo Derby is sponsored by REA. It will be the first in a new five-event "CrashMania" series of derbies that will include two in Walla Walla, one in Hermiston, and the final event at the fairgrounds during the Columbia County Fair in September.

Along with the regular demo derby, a kids' "PowerWheels" derby will be held, offering kids a chance to pop their competitors' balloons without popping their own. All participants will receive prizes.

Dayton's annual Father's Day Breakfast, presented by Skyline Juniors, will be held Sunday morning from 7:30 to 10:30 a.m. at the fairgrounds youth building.

From 9 a.m. to noon Sunday, golfers are invited to take part in the annual All Wheels Weekend Golf Tournament, sponsored by HomeStreet Bank. A $10,000 hole-in-one putting contest will be held at the conclusion of the tournament for tournament entrants only.

It's a weekend not to miss in Dayton, so get ready to rev your engines!

Columbia County Notice of Complete Application and SEPA Threshold Determination

Short Plat 2018-003
Columbia County hereby gives notice that an application has been received and found complete for the below project. Comments relative to the approval and conditioning of this application and the environmental threshold determination noted below are requested. Approval of this application requires administrative approval by the Planning Director with appeals to the Planning Commission. This Notice will be published in the newspaper of record and distributed to surrounding property owners.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:
Being a request to approve the short plat application to subdivide a parent parcel of 470.87 acres into two lots: one being 9.14 acres, naturally segregated from the rest of the property by Whetstone Creek, and the remaining acreage of 461.73 remaining with the second lot. The existing homesite and subsequent outbuildings are to remain with the 9.14-acre lot. No new development, construction or improvements are proposed related to this subdivision that would trigger applications for development or additional environmental protection permits.

DETERMINATION OF NONSIGNIFICANCE (DNS):
Columbia County is lead agency for this project. The lead agency for this proposal has determined that it does not have a probable significant adverse impact on the environment. An environmental impact statement (EIS) is not required under RCW Chapter 43.21C. This decision was made after review of a completed environmental checklist and other information on file with the lead agency. This information is available to the public for review. Public comment period is open for 14 days, and will close on June 28, 2018.

TEENY MCMUNN: MY RECIPE BOX

Baked Four-Bean Casserole

This first ran a couple of years ago. I am cheating as I am just returning from vacation, but I thought it was timely as barbecue season is here. Dena has also passed on to me her family baked-bean recipe, so I will put that in next week.

Since July 4th is just around the corner (can you believe it?), I thought I would share this recipe. Guaranteed to make you look like a great cook.

It is from the Lincoln Heights Garden Club in Spokane. My recipe card, typed laboriously so that no mistakes were made, is discolored and stained. I treasure it.

- 1 can kidney beans
- 1 can green lima bean
- 1 can Van Camp Pork n Beans
- 1 can S & W Beans
- 1# sausage-browned
- 1 small can crushed pineapple
- 1 med onion-chopped
- 1 raw apple, diced
- ½ c. molasses
- ½ c. catchup
- 1 Tbs lemon juice

Mix well-turn into baking dish (I use a 9 x 11 pan). Serves 12 amply. Very good and very unusual. Bake 2 hours @ 300 degrees.

My notes—and I know this would be the first question, no, one does NOT drain any of the cans. I buy a large can of beans (any brand) plus a large can of baked beans (in lieu of S & W beans). I usually use Jimmy Dean sausage, but I don't believe it's critical to the recipe. Drain well after browning the sausage, (as most of us would). The pan will be full. I bake the required two hours, then transfer it to a crock pot to keep warm. In my opinion, it needs the baked flavor (like a baked potato versus a microwaved potato). It is a delightful mix of flavors which people always ask "who brought the baked beans".

Enjoy!

(I will be looking for harvest recipes to share in our Harvest section the last week in July with perhaps stories from those who had to cook for Harvest.)
